Cry of "Play Ball" Draws 14,216 to New Park

LOCAL OFFICIALS BELIEVE ATLANTA HAS WON TROPHY

Slugfest Slows Up Game, Forcing Close in Seventh Inning With Crackers Winners by 16 to 5.

PERFECT TOSS MADE BY GOVERNOR WALKER

Elks' Band and Patrol Help in Opening-day Festivities — President Martin Present.

BY GEORGE CONGDON.

Lowering skies may have kept many fans at home Thursday, but they failed in the cases of upwards of 14,000 Atlantans who made the trip to the new Spiller park for the opening Cracker game at home and saw just exactly what they wanted to see.

Jack Corbett, president of the Atlanta baseball club, announced Thursday night that there were 14,216 people at the game, so the attendance cup seems cinched for Atlanta again.

The first game here wasn't an exciting contest from any point of view, for the Crackers made a good start in the first inning toward the total of 16 runs they finally had to stack beside the Chattanooga Lookouts' four when the game was called in the seventh inning on account of darkness.

Plenty of Hard Hitting.

What the people wanted to see, even more than a close game, was an exhibition of hard hitting, fast fielding and heavy base running. That is what the Crackers gave them for six and a half innings and they were satisfied.

Lines half a block long stretched out from the ticket windows at the ball park as early as 1:30 o'clock. Right up until 3 o'clock, when the game was called, those lines kept moving forward, to be swallowed up in the big oblong opening across which stretched a row of brand new ticket gates.

The new stands looked mighty good filling up the way they did Thursday afternoon until at 3:15 o'clock every one of the 9,552 seats was occupied and hundreds of people were lining the rails at the back of the seats.

Bleachers Are Jammed.

The bleachers were packed solidly long before 3 o'clock. The overflow conveyed to a terrace in center field and parked its collective self in half a dozen rows. The usual crowd of "knotholers" found its usual space on the tops of box cars which usually line the tracks beyond center field.

John D. Martin, president of the Southern loop, was there, so was Governor Clifford Walker, so was R. J. Spiller, who owns the park, so was the Elks' band and the Elks' patrol. All of the dignitaries who should have been there were present. Gov. Walker and President Martin and their parties had box seats just back of the Chattanooga dugout. The Elks' band and patrol in spotless, dazzling purple and white uniforms, after their exhibitions, took places in box seats just to the right of the Cracker dugout.

Only one thing was missing from the schedule. It was the driving of Bobby Jones, national open golf champion, who was to have been there for an exhibition of golf by leading players of Atlanta. Bobby wasn't in town, however, and the driving match was left off the card.

Father To Spring Trap Upon Negro Who Killed Son

Arizona Prison Superintendent Interposes No Objection to Request.

Florence, Ariz., April 17.—The state will interpose no objection to a request by W. H. Grosh, aged father of Ted Grosh, slain university student, to spring the gallows trap to execute William B. Ward, Glove negro, who was convicted of the youth's murder, it was announced today by R. B. Sims, superintendent of the Arizona state prison.

"We will offer no objection, if Mr. Grosh wants to be the executioner," said the superintendent.

Grosh's father was present at the trial early this month when a verdict, finding Ward guilty of first-degree murder, was returned by a jury. Grosh was slain near Globe on the morning of December 26.

Ward was sentenced to be hanged June 20, but sentence was automatically stayed by an appeal to the state supreme court.

REPARATION BODY ORDERS GERMANY TO DO SOME WORK

Germans Instructed To Get Busy on Legislative Acts Needed To Make Plans Effective.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Paris, April 17.—The reparation commission this afternoon virtually told Germany to get down to work preparatory to a blanket acceptance of the experts' reports. Prior to this, the commission decided unanimously to take note of Germany's reply adhering to the experts' reports and to approve the conclusions and adopt the methods proposed.

Need for speed was the outstanding feature of the commission's communique, which tells Germany to prepare enabling legislation for the commission's approval, so that when the allied governments—as seems taken for granted—adopt the experts' reports the ground work of the structure which Brigadier General Dawes, Owen D. Young and the other experts envisaged will already be laid.

To Put Out Feelers.

Pending Germany's compliance with the reparations commission's demand, feelers will be put forth from London, Paris and Brussels designed to bring the experts' projects into concrete form as rapidly as possible, for obviously the members of the reparation commission did not reach today's decision without the full approval of their governments.

The commission's aim, as outlined by one of the members, is to get a general agreement on all non-controversial points of the plan before taking up debatable questions, such as abandonment of economic exploitation of the Ruhr.

"Nothing appears to require immediate decisions by the reparations commission," is the way in which queries have been met concerning the commission's intentions respecting the gaps purposely left in the experts' findings.

Ask for Nominations.

While thus playing for time, the commission has asked the Germans

TROOPS CALLED OUT IN ARIZONA

Action Follows Threat of Californians To Invade State Because of Foot and Mouth Disease.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Tucson, Ariz., April 17.—Over long-distance telephone, about midnight, Governor Hunt, at Florence, told The Arizona Daily Star that he was attempting to get in touch with General Charles W. Harris at Tampe, and instruct him to have one company of Arizona national guard prepared for immediate transportation to Yuma.

His action was taken after officials enforcing the foot and mouth quarantine at the border city had advised him that between 500 and 600 autoists on the California side of the line had held a mass meeting and notified them that they were "coming through" in the morning despite the governor's quarantine order forbidding it.

BITTER DEBATES TO MARK COURSE OF RELIEF BILL

Many Solons Who Will Vote for McNary-Haugen Measure Believe It Unsound Plan.

NECESSITY COMPELS PASSAGE, IS EXCUSE

Creation of Artificial Price for Wheat Considered Bad Economics by Senator Fess.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.

Washington, April 17.—There has rarely been a bill as to which the outcome is more difficult to foresee than the McNary-Haugen bill for aiding the farmer by selling wheat in the domestic market at an artificially raised price through the mechanism of a government-owned and government-financed corporation.

The bill has already been reported out of the senate committee, and is expected to be reported out of the house committee before the end of the present month. Some of the friends of the bill, as well as some of its enemies, claim the debate on it will be the most strongly contested in the present congress.

The reason for the uncertainty about how the vote will go, is that many men in congress, being deeply impressed by the need of the farmer, will vote for measures for relief which fundamentally they do not believe in. For example, Senator Fess, of Ohio, in speaking and voting on a previous and different measure for farm relief, the Norbeck-Burtness bill, said:

Votes Without Belief.

"As a rule I do not believe in this sort of legislation. I am of the opinion that it is justified only on the basis of emergency. In view of the present situation in the northwest, direful and serious, and in view of the possibilities of relief which certainly are within our range, and especially the real, substantial value to the country at large resulting in the relief of the suffering of that great section of the country, I am going to do what I do not very often do, vote for a measure that cannot receive my full adherence on economic grounds."

Senator Fess is a republican. Another senator, a democrat, Ralston, of Indiana, voting on the same measure, took the same position as Fess, saying he opposed it on constitutional grounds but would vote for it out of considerations of humanity.

Consideration Parallel.

While the bill as to which these senators spoke and voted this way is different from the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill which is now to the

STATE DEMOCRATS GATHER AT LYRIC

Theater Obtained for Use by Convention, After Grand Opera Bars Use of Auditorium.

The state democratic convention will meet at the Lyric theater next Wednesday, negotiations for use of the house having been completed Thursday.

George Keene, manager of the Kimball House, who has been assisting Chairman Ed Maddox, of the state executive committee, in search of a hall, announced Thursday that the Lyric had finally been engaged. The Lyric Players do not give a matinee performance on Wednesdays and the only condition imposed upon the politicians for its use is that they conclude sessions in time for the night performance.

The Lyric has a seating capacity of approximately 1,800, and inasmuch as 1,500 is reported as the largest crowd to attend a state political convention in the past, it is believed there will be ample room this year. The city auditorium could not be used because the convention date fell in grand opera week.

The Lyric was obtained through the courtesy of Ford Anderson, district supervisor for Southern Enterprises, Inc., and in general charge of theaters operated by the Famous Players-Lasky corporation in this territory.

McAdoo Managers Hit by Federation For Ignoring Labor

Failure of "Big Four" To Name Labor Delegates To Democratic Convention Criticized.

PRESIDENT DIRECTED TO PRESENT PROTEST

Labor Will Not Be Made "Goat Always," Speaker Says in Flaying "Hand-Picking" Methods.

Charging that organized labor has been ignored by the "Big Four" in making up representation from various counties to the democratic state convention to be held in Atlanta April 24, the Georgia Federation of Labor adopted a resolution Thursday afternoon directing its president to attend the coming convention and make a "vigorous and emphatic protest against the failure of the McAdoo managers to recognize labor in naming the delegates to the state convention."

It was further resolved that incoming and future officers of the federation in similar campaigns be instructed to use their good offices and their influence "at the proper time to the end that labor be considered and its interests protected."

The resolution was introduced at the afternoon session of the state convention, which is being held in the Labor temple in this city, and followed a sharp discussion that arose during the morning session regarding the choice of a national democratic committeeman. Introduced by Delegate Robert E. Gann, of the printers' union, and signed by William Pollard, T. L. Elders, J. F. Scott, and Charles Hilt, the resolution provoked a sharp discussion, which occupied the attention of the federation for some time.

Valentino Opposes.

Immediately upon its introduction, Delegate John J. Valentino, of Savannah, former president of the federation, arose and opposed the resolution on the ground that labor had received recognition at the hands of the McAdoo managers, who, he declared, had appointed a number of alternates from various counties in the state on the McAdoo delegations to the state convention. Mr. Valentino and Max Wilk, of Augusta, argued that alternates to the convention had the same voting power and the same privileges that would be accorded regular delegates, and in view of the fact that a number of labor people had been appointed alternates, said that labor had been recognized.

Carl Karston, of Atlanta, delegate from the musicians' union, and one of the boosters for George L. Berry for vice president, whose forces also had been ignored, it is claimed, by the "Big Four," spoke against the resolution on the ground that the complaint of the Georgia federation should be directed against McAdoo for not naming a labor man on the state committee. "While I feel that we have been unfairly treated," said Mr. Karston, "I do not believe labor took full advantage of her opportunities before the primary, and I do not wish to shift our responsibilities upon some one else."

Supporting the resolution in the

EIGHTH DISTRICT TO HOLD CAUCUS DESPITE LETTER

Chairman Erwin Declares "We Reserve Right To Run Our Own Affairs in Our Own Way."

Characterizing pre-convention activities of the Georgia McAdoo managers as an "affront to intelligent women voters," and "reserving the right to run our own affairs in our own way," Andrew C. Erwin, chairman of the eighth district McAdoo campaign committee, Thursday denounced the suggestion of Atlanta McAdoo headquarters that no conferences or meetings be held in various districts prior to the convention here next Wednesday.

In a signed statement, given out Thursday night at his home in Athens, Chairman Erwin said, "we resent this attempt of two or three outsiders to interfere in the selection of our delegates," and declared that the eighth district conference would be "held as planned."

Erwin's Statement.

The statement follows:

"For the first time in my experience I am forced to break with my associates before the work we jointly undertook is completed. I am one of the McAdoo executive committee. I served my time and gave may efforts to further Mr. McAdoo's cause in our section. For this I have no regrets or apologies.

"It is my firm conviction that the designated leaders erred when they failed to call into conference the McAdoo supporters in each county in respect to naming the delegates. Some were ignored who were most entitled to recognition. This action caused me much embarrassment toward supporters who were looking to me to have them named and called for numerous explanations on my part. I bore this in silence.

"But when the suggestion comes from headquarters that members of the eighth district delegation do not confer until after the convention convenes, then the point is reached where I can follow them no longer. We, of the eighth district, reserve the right to run our own affairs in our own way.

"Affront to Women."

"The suggestion is based upon the flimsy pretext that the convention should determine the proportion of women to be named on the delegation to the New York convention. This suggestion is an affront to the intelligent women voters of Georgia. The women fought for and obtained equal rights of suffrage and that is precisely what they want. They desire no preference and will tolerate no discrimination.

"The various district delegations can be relied upon to treat the women and the men alike fairly, and headquarters know this. I fear this is not the real motive behind the suggestion.

"As to whether Clark Howell or John Cohen will be the next national committeeman from Georgia is a matter of small moment to me. I am in no wise committed to either candidate, nor do I intend to commit myself.

"We resent this attempt by two or three outsiders to interfere in selection of our delegates as much as we would a similar attempt to name our congressman from our district.

"I am a delegate to the state convention. It has come to me that I will be a delegate to New York. It is my desire to go as a delegate to New York, but if in order to go I must violate every democratic precedent and break faith with my fellow delegates, then I prefer to stay at home.

"The eighth district conference will be held as planned."

ANDREW C. ERWIN,
Chairman Eighth District McAdoo Campaign Committee.

WITNESS DECLARES WHEELER REFUSED TO REPRESENT HIM

Geologist Tells Borah Committee Senator Said He Could Not Appear Before Department.

Wheeler Did Offer To Represent Campbell Before Courts of Montana, According to Testimony.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, April 17.—Cutting at once to the heart of the whole controversy, the special senate committee investigating the Montana charges against Senator Wheeler opened its hearing today with testimony bearing directly on the extent of his activities in Washington in connection with cases in which his Montana clients were interested.

From Gordon Campbell, geologist, who said he had employed the senator in 1922 to represent him in the state courts, the committee received copies of two sets of telegrams passing between him and Wheeler, one purporting to show that Wheeler had "been advised" the government could not intervene in Campbell's behalf in a land proceeding against him, and the other indicating that the senator had arranged for Campbell to confer with Solicitor Booth of the interior department regarding "the Lincoln permit."

Refused To Act.

Campbell, who was indicted with Wheeler in Montana, insisted this did not constitute Senator Wheeler's "appearance" before the interior department on behalf of his client, as charged in the indictment. On the advice of Solicitor Booth, the witness said, he had hired his own Washington attorney to handle land cases here. He insisted that Senator Wheeler had told him he could not handle such cases because of his election to the senate.

Former Representative Tom Stout, of Montana, told the committee he had approached Wheeler on the subject of acting as counsel for Campbell in state litigation and that Wheeler himself had raised the point of his inability to handle any cases except in the state courts.

Stout on Stand.

Former Representative Stout, of Lewistown, Mont., was called today as the first witness before the committee.

Stout testified that he had been editor and publisher of The Daily Democrat-News of Lewistown for nineteen Federation Declines To Ask Governor for Mercy. Urges Separate State Labor Department.

LABOR DENIES AID TO SATTERFIELD

The Georgia Federation of Labor, in the second day's session of its twenty-sixth annual convention, Thursday afternoon refused to adopt a resolution calling upon Governor Clifford Walker to grant clemency to J. B. Satterfield, whose execution is set for Friday of next week, and whose appeal is to be made, it is declared, to the chief executive of Georgia today.

Among other interesting matters that came before the state labor body for action were a demand of the next legislature that the present office of commissioner of commerce and labor be separated and that a commissioner of labor be created to take entire charge of labor matters. The body also acted upon many reports and resolutions of minor import.

The Satterfield resolution came up on the floor of the convention from committee to which it had been referred upon introduction. This committee recommended that it not pass, upon the ground that it was not with-

Gold To Finance 'Christ's Return' Had Real Wings

All God's Chillun in This Texas Parish Wish Pinions Were Theirs.

Dallas, Texas, April 17—If all God's chillun had wings, the Rev. John Quincy Adams would be out of luck.

But all God's chillun at the Holy Pentecostal church here ain't got nuthin' any more, let alone wings to fly after the Rev. John Quincy Adams.

The pastor is charged with stripping his congregation of all its worldly possessions in order to "finance the return of Christ."

After the homes and furniture of all his parishioners had been sold and the proceeds turned over to him to give to Christ on Easter morn, Adams vanished in a flivver.

TEXTILE WORKERS ARE AUTHORIZED TO CALL STRIKES

Emergency Board of Union Instructs Locals To Fight Wage Cuts or Increase in Hours.

Boston, April 17.—Instruction to "fight if any attempt is made to reduce wages or lengthen working hours" will be sent next week to all local unions affiliated with the United Textile Workers of America, the emergency board of the union voted at a special meeting here today. The force of this order, it was understood, would be to sanction local bodies to declare strikes without waiting for the permission of the central organization.

The meeting was attended by all the organizers of the union now working in the New England, middle Atlantic, southern and midwestern districts, and was called ten days ago to receive reports on trade conditions in the various sections of the country and for discussion of the wool tariff as affecting textile workers.

President Thomas F. McMahon, of the United Textile Workers, explaining the action of the meeting, said:

Text of Statement.

"These instructions notify the membership that if an attempt is made to change existing conditions, to fight and fight hard, and they will be backed to the full extent and resources of the international union.

"Reports from organizers in all sections of the country, other than the far west, show that New England is not alone in having textile mills shut down or working slack time. The same conditions exist everywhere, more so in the south. In the south the textile industry is practically at a standstill with but very little manufacturing being done. What mills are working are operating only on specialties.

"As a result of a study of the conditions that cause this state of affairs to exist the emergency board voted unanimously to instruct its general officers to send out notices to every affiliated local union ordering the members not to accept, under any circumstances, a cut in wages or a lengthening of working hours."

Blames Politics.

Mr. McMahon said that one underlying reason for existing depression in the textile industry was that "manufacturers are taking advantage of the political situation that develops with a presidential election year."

"Another reason is that textile manufacturers in foreign countries were unable to dispose of their tremendous stocks because of the unstable money market which forced them to unload on buyers in the United States," he added. "Thirdly, manipulation of raw cotton values by Wall street speculators created a situation which makes it unsafe to buy cotton for manufacturing purposes from a financial standpoint."

No statement was made as to the action of the board on the question of wool tariff.

COOLIDGE, HUGHES SCOUT JAP NOTE AS WAR THREAT

American Government Cannot Picture Japan as in Any Position To Wage Conflict.

SENATOR LODGE HOLDS OPPOSITE VIEWPOINT

Senate Adopts Amendment to Alien Bill Fixing Quota at 2 Per Cent on 1890 Census Base.

SENATE AND HOUSE AGREE ON QUOTA BASE.

Washington, April 17.—(Special.)—Alien immigration to the United States will be fixed on quotas based on the census of 1890.

Late today the senate adopted the Harrison amendment to fix quotas at one per cent on the 1890 census. Later, he offered an amendment to fix quotas at 2 per cent on the 1890 census, as is provided in the bill already passed by the house.

Previously, the senate had accepted an amendment fixing the quota base at one per cent on the census of 1910.

Washington, April 17.—The American government does not regard the Hanihara note protesting against Japanese exclusion legislation as a threat. This was made known on high authority following two conferences between President Coolidge and Secretary of State Hughes Thursday.

This government is confident that Japan had no intention of conveying a threat in the note, it was stated.

This interpretation is the opposite of that made by Senator Lodge, majority leader, who declared in senate debate this week that the note of Ambassador Hanihara constituted a veiled threat to the United States.

No War Scare Here.

The real purpose of the note, in the opinion of this government, was to state the terms of the gentlemen's agreement and to offer to modify it if the United States so desired.

There is reason to state that this government cannot conceive of Japan seriously thinking of war with the United States in view of the disaster occasioned by the recent earthquake and in view of the disparity in military strength.

President Coolidge has reached no final decision as to whether he will approve the immigration bill with the Japanese exclusion provision included, but indications are that he will sign it, perhaps issuing at the same time a statement designed to mollify Japanese resentment.

"Consequences" Not Sinister.

Hanihara's phrase "grave consequences" which caused such a stir when read with its context meant that grave consequences were feared to the friendly relations between the two governments, it was stated. No sinister meaning is seen in this use of the phrase by American officials.

Ambassador Hanihara, it was explained, wrote his note to clear up the uncertainties surrounding the gentlemen's agreement. The house, in debating the immigration bill, questioned the existence of the agreement, saying its terms had never been made public. The provisions, it is understood, are embodied in a voluminous correspondence extending over a year. Hanihara summarized this correspondence into a brief document and performed a useful service in so doing, it was stated.

TWO POINTS IN BILLS STILL ARE DIVERGENT.

Washington, April 17.—While the white house and state department considered the situation which has arisen from inclusion of a Japanese exclusion provision in the new immigration bill, the senate today progressed with its task of perfecting that measure to the point which warranted prediction of its passage tomorrow.

Two per cent upon the census of 1890 was approved by the senate as the basis of immigration apportionment, thus bringing it into agreement with the house bill in the section which was expected to produce most controversy in conference.

Similar to House Bill.

As it now stands, the senate bill is similar to that of the house in its Japanese exclusion and other important provisions. Two items will have to be thrashed out in conference, however; the authority for certain "exceptions" from quota restrictions given in the house bill and the senate provision for a nationality-group survey to be made by a departmental commission by July 1, 1927. The latter would have the effect, senators said, of limiting the life of the pending bill to threeyears.

Action on the quota provisions came after an all-day discussion during which the senate at times seemed hopelessly entangled in a parliamentary morass. Insistence of those favoring reduced admittances to separate votes upon various proposals relating first to the date of census and then upon one, two or three per cent of the agreed national poll, made it necessary to duplicate action on certain points.

Senate Makes Record.

At one stage the senate had gone on record for a record low immigration total of 80,000—represented by one per cent on the census of 1890.

Before recess was taken, Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, obtained unanimous consent to limit further debate to ten minutes for each senator on the bill and an equal period on any amendment. Motions awaiting action were not expected to call for prolonged discussion and senate leaders expected to have the bonus bill the unfinished business before tomorrow night.

The pending amendment tomorrow will be that of Senator Simmons, democrat, North Carolina, which would give preference to farmers and farm laborers within the quotas.

Majorities Decisive.

In every decision today the senate registered decisive majorities. Rejecting, 72 to 8, the proposal of Senator Copeland, democrat, New York, to make the quota 3 per cent, the senate by a vote of 54 to 26 adopted instead the amendment of Senator Willis, republican, Ohio, under which the committee amendment providing 2 per cent was stricken out and 1 per cent as originally reported in the bill restored.

The census of 1890 was approved 47 to 32, the 2 per cent quota restored and a motion to reduce it again to one defeated 56 to 23.

The immigration question has never been a partisan one, Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, declared, in moving substitution of the census of 1890 for that of 1910. He denied that his amendment would discriminate against any country and urged that the senate reach an immediate agreement withthe provisions adopted by the house in the Johnson bill in order that "this whole affair may be put behind us."

McCormick Fears Slump.

"If you don't act now, you may never have the chance," he warned, "the influence of foreign groups in this country is growing steadily."

An impending industrial slump was foreseen by Senator McCormick, republican, Illinois, who said not enough attention had been given to "prospective unemployment." Already, he declared, key industries are going on par: time schedules and "bids are made for future deliveries which do not offer a profit—one of the first signs of unemployment."

Chairman Colt of the immigration committee, opposed the census of 1890, asserting it meant the admittance of "five Prussians, for instance, to one Pole or one Italian."

Total exclusion for at least two years was urged by Senator Herflin, Alabama, in order that the country might have a breathing spell. He reiterated his charge that the quota law was being ignored by dishonest immigrant authorities, who "pass at least a million a year."

JAP AMBASSADOR MAY BE RECALLED.

Tokio, April 17.—(By the Associated Press.)—Ambassador Hanihara at Washington is to be recalled by the Japanese government, the newspaper Yomiuri declared today. The publication added that Foreign Minister Matsui will resign in order to appease the storm expected at the coming session of the imperial diet over the immigration problem. Both reports were officially denied.

CHINESE LABORERS BARRED BY JAPAN.

Tokio, March 30.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—Japan, the emigration of whose nationals constitutes such a thorny problem for the United States, is having immigration problems of her own.

Just as Japanese laborers are barred from America, Chinese laborers are barred from Japan. Certain classes of Chinese, however, are permitted to immigrate. Two years ago Japan was inundated by a flood of Chinese umbrella peddlers, most of them, according to Japanese police, entered Japan as merchants, but later became manual laborers. Now the trouble is with cooks. Chinese cooks hitherto have been admitted, but the police say that many who enter as cooks have later become coolies. The metropolitan police of Tokio are conducting a roundup of Chinese cooks for deportation.

ITALY ANXIOUS ABOUT LEGISLATION.

Rome, April 17.—Decision of the United States congress as to the basis for quotas under the new immigration law is being anxiously awaited here. It is pointed out that if the 1910 census is accepted as the basis, as was incorporated in the senate bill, approximately 20,000 more Italians may enter the United States yearly than under the 1890 census basis, which was incorporated in the measure as passed by the house.

PLOT TO SMUGGLE ITALIANS THROUGH FRANCE.

Foggia, Italy, April 17.—Another association to promote clandestine emigration to the United States from Naples through France has been discovered here. Peasants from the neighborhood of Benevento and Avellino, it was declared, in some cases paid as much as 8,000 lire for the necessary papers.

Heads of the organization were arrested and the peasants who had fallen victim to them were sent home.

Widespread plots to smuggle Italian emigrants through France to the United States were discovered at Genoa, Turin and Naples last October and November. In some cases it was declared the victims were charged 10,000 lire each for falsified documents which, it was represented, would gain the admission to the United States.

MEXICO TO BE HAVEN FOR ORIENTAL COLONY.

Washington, April 17.—Possible development of an "Asiatic colony" of a million persons in northern Mexico, as a result of ratification of the Colorado river compact, was pictured today to the house immigration irrigation committee, by George H. Maxwell, executive director of the national reclamation service.

Mr. Maxwell said a man named Chester Allison made a trip to Tokio to confer with Japanese financiers in regard to promoting the colony. A group of Tokio financiers, he added, returned with Mr. Allison with a view of acquiring the land, if an assurance could be obtained of an adequate water supply from the river.

Negotiations, Mr. Maxwell said he understood, had progressed to the point where a contract had been made to sell the land if the water difficulties were adjusted.

in the province of the Georgia Federation of Labor to make a request of the governor to act in this particular case, the condemned man not being an active member of organized labor, so far as was known, and that the question of clemency was one that did not involve organized labor of the state. Speeches were made by Chairman Robert E. Gann, of the committee, and Mrs. Mary Sewell, of the garment workers' union, both expressing the deepest sympathy for the condemned man, but in both addresses it was pointed out that for the state federation to call upon the governor for action in this case would not be in keeping with the ethics of the body. The resolution failed of adoption when put to a vote.

Ask Separate Department.

A resolution asking the legislature to amend the law creating the state department of commerce and labor in such manner as to create the office of commissioner of labor in addition to that of commerce, was adopted by the federation and referred to the executive board for further action. In supporting this resolution, it was pointed out that the interests of labor in the state were of sufficient importance to deserve the supervision of a commissioner.

A report made by Vice President Emmett L. Quinn, of Atlanta, which was concurred in by the federation at a former session, and which purported to show that the million-dollar Rich department store, the Hurt Annex and other big Atlanta buildings, are being and have been erected by union labor, was reconsidered at the afternoon session Thursday at the instance of William Pollard, of the building trades council, who stated that he could show that many non-union craftsmen had been employed on these jobs.

Mayor Sims Applauded.

The announcement that Mayor Walter A. Sims, of Atlanta, had refused to issue a proclamation regarding the opening day of Atlanta's new ball park, and had also declined to pitch the first ball at the initial game of the season, was read to the delegates by President Charles B. Gramling, and the city's chief executive was applauded.

The reason assigned for the actions of the city's chief executive was that a part of the work on the big grandstand had been done by non-union labor, according to President Gramling. A controversy has been in progress for several months between members of the local building trades and the owners of the local ball park over contracts with union workers. A number of conferences have been held, representatives of the ball club and of park owners meeting representatives of various crafts involved in the erection of the big stand. R. J. Spiller, owner of the park, has stated that he and the club owners were not responsible for the fact that the work has not been done entirely by union labor, and the responsibility has been placed upon the contracting firms.

Carpenters Report.

A report was made by J. H. Weaver, head of the carpenters' union, Atlanta, in which he said this craft has recruited its ranks to an increase of 300 per cent. He was cheered as he added that the union is still growing along with Atlanta's great increase in population and building activity.

Business Agent C. B. Koesling, of the barbers' union, also of Atlanta, made a splendid report of his organization, which he said is prospering greatly in this city, as well as over the state.

An interesting address was delivered by Marcus Loeb, Atlanta overall manufacturer, who congratulated organized labor upon its great progress, and who expressed his sympathy with the movement.

Street Car Men Organized.

B. E. Cook, of the street railway men, Atlanta, said his organization is now 100 per cent organized, and was given enthusiastic applause as he made the announcement.

John J. Valentino, former president of the state federation, and delegate from Savannah, spoke of labor conditions in his section of Georgia. L. S. Bash, moving picture operator, spoke for his organization, picturing splendid conditions within the craft.

Much interest centers about the election of officers for the coming year, and the naming of a meeting place for 1925, which will take place today, it was stated. While no definite announcements have been made regarding the officers for 1925, it is understood the present officials will stand for reelection. It is also said there will possibly be other candidates for the various offices, and that a spirited contest will take place when the delegates are called upon to name officers.

Carraway May Be Candidate.

The only announcement that has so far been made by possible candidates is an admission upon the part of Walter C. Carraway, of the local typographical union, that he will probably stand for the office of secretary-treasurer, now held by Louie P. Marquardt, of Atlanta. Mr. Carraway has served as president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades, and is now financial secretary of the organization. He is also a member of the Atlanta bond commission.

The convention will, in all probability, come to a close Friday afternoon or night. The delegates will leave for their homes before Saturday night, after one of the most successful conventions, it is declared, in the history of organized labor in Georgia.

The number of native Hawaiians is rapidly decreasing, about 25,000 of pure blood remaining in the islands.

NORRIS' DISCHARGE IS PROBE TOPIC

Washington, April 17.—The house committee investigating the shipping board devoted virtually its whole session today to discussion of the wisdom of the "discharge" for alleged irregularities of Waldo R. Norris, port representative at Antwerp, by Huntington T. Morse, Emergency Fleet corporation director for Europe, and the committee's witness.

Representative Davis, democrat, Tennessee, prosecutor for the committee, charged that Norris, who had been given the alternative by Morse of resigning or of "forcing him (Morse) to take some action," had been "convicted" on mere suspicion and without any tangible evidence warranting it. Representative Cooper, republican, Wisconsin, also charged the port official had been let out without due hearing.

Records were read showing Norris had been exonerated by investigators sent from Washington. Asked by several committee members why he had refused to adhere to the requests of the Washington office that Norris be reinstated, Mr. Morse said he would stand on his previous testimony that he had done everything to arrange a hearing for Norris and he believed Washington was "without the facts" in the case.

Representative Lineberger, republican, California, said the case had simmered down to a question whether Morse's superiors would accept his judgment or dispense with his services. He added that whether "you are right or wrong, personally I want to admire your sincerity and your statement that you would not be swayed by political influences."

WATER RATE DECISION WILL BE MADE TODAY

Decision on a reduction in water rates will be left to the full finance committee of city council at a special session this morning, it was announced Thursday by Alderman J. R. Bachman, chairman. A sub-committee, composed of Mr. Bachman, Mayor Pro Tem I. N. Ragsdale, chairman of the water committee, and Comptroller R. Graham West, will lay the results of its survey of water rates and finances before the committee today.

Halifax, Nova Scotia.—Three million dollars were spent on the Nova Scotia highways last year and over $12,000,000 during the past four years, according to the provincial minister of highways. During the past four years, according to the same authority, over 700 miles of main trunk roads have been reconstructed, and almost 1,500 miles of secondary roads, while the capital investment in bridges totals over $4,000,000.

Victrola values are as good as Victrola quality is high

Both are unequalled. You will find the prices of all the twenty-one Victrola models as moderate as Victor standards of manufacture permit them to be. There are many cheap talking-machines,—cheaply made,—but remember that the fleeting satisfaction of a low price, never equals the everlasting regret of poor quality.

Minuet (in D) (Mozart) Violin Solo — Jascha Heifetz Widmung (Dedication) (Schumann-Auer) Violin Solo — Jascha Heifetz	997	$1.50

Violin and piano. A Mozart minuet, at first simple, then intricate; and a superb arrangement of Schumann's impassioned song. Played with consummate art, and recorded with that perfection which makes Victor Records famous.

Santa Lucia In Italian — Titta Ruffo Marechiare (When the Moon Rises Over Marechiare) (Tosti) Neapolitan — Titta Ruffo	995	1.50

Two of the magnificent Neapolitan songs that today every one knows. This great baritone sings them in a voice of immense beauty and power. Numbers that should be in every record library.

Melodious Instrumental

Rustle of Spring (Sinding) The Improvisator—Overture (d'Albert) — Rudolph Ganz and St. Louis Symphony Orch.	45389	1.00

Sinding's familiar number set for the full symphony orchestra; and a brilliant, modern overture with half a dozen themes but a tarantella-rhythm prevailing. A record that is worth many hearings.

Light Vocal Selections

Amoureuse Waltz (Feraudy-Berger) Printemps (Spring) (Stern) — Lucy Isabelle Marsh	45390	1.00

Beautiful waltz songs, for the purest and most flexible type of soprano voice. Well-known numbers that you will recognize with delight—and cherish on these records.

Oh! Susanna (Featured in "The Covered Wagon") Gwine to Run All Night — Wendell Hall and Shannon Quartet	19290	.75

Two of Stephen Foster's songs—wholesome, good-natured old-time favorites with life in them. Presented by a new combination of artists that will strike the fancy of Victor Record audiences.

Home in Pasadena — Billy Murray-Ed Smalle What Does the Pussy-Cat Mean When She Says "Me-Ow"? — Billy Murray-Ed Smalle	19293	.75

New hits. The first is fox-trottish, with some double-time effects calling for nimble vocalization. The Pussy-Cat number, with Steve Porter meowing, is cleverly done.

Dance Records

Whose Izzy is He—Fox Trot — The Virginians Scissor Grinder Joe—Fox Trot — The Virginians	19292	.75

Neo-jazz records for the "Collegiate" and new steps. Bits of Jewish melodies on one, and the shrill wheel of the grinder in new effects on the other. There's good dancing ahead for those who buy this record.

Take a Little One-Step—Medley Fox Trot (From "Lollipop") (Introducing "Tie a String Around Your Finger") — International Novelty Orchestra There's Nobody Else But You—Fox Trot — Joe Raymond and His Orchestra	19294	.75

Fox-trots, both—in spite of the title of the first number. It is a beautifully refined piece of scoring, and the other is a good companion.

KAMPER'S ATLANTA KAMPER'S

Congratulations to the Builders of the New Atlanta-Biltmore

Accustomed, as Atlanta is, to doing big things in a big way, among which may be mentioned the bringing and maintaining of Grand Opera, the Stone Mountain Memorial, the subscribing of the immense fund for the Community Chest, the Spring Street Viaduct, the erection of mammoth skyscraping office buildings in record time, the bringing of hundreds of conventions every year, and many other huge undertakings, our good town has done itself proud again in the completion of the finest hotel in the entire South and one of the finest in the country, the Atlanta-Biltmore, which opens its doors this week.

This is no small undertaking. It took vision in the beginning to be able to see the mammoth structure rising to grace our city. It took brains to put this vision into concrete form before a stone was ever laid. It took money—immense piles of money—to finance building operations, and the very best architectural talent in our broad country to put those stones together after the dream had crystallized into an actual corporation and launched as a business venture. Everything that modern financiering and building ingenuity could offer was called upon in this most stupendous undertaking.

Gentlemen: Owners, Financiers, Builders, Contractors:

WE ARE PROUD OF OUR NEW ATLANTA-BILTMORE AND MAY EVERY SUCCESS ATTEND YOU IN YOUR UNDERTAKING.

RESPITE LIKELY FOR SATTERFIELD

No definite date for hearing the plea of J. H. Satterfield, for commutation of the death sentence imposed upon him in Fulton superior court, had been set by Governor Clifford Walker Thursday.

The state prison commission Wednesday declined to recommend clemency for Satterfield, who was convicted of shooting his brother-in-law, R. F. Hart, to death in a soda stand on Whitehall street in December, 1921. The date for execution is set for Friday, April 25. It is thought probable, however, that the governor will grant respite to the condemned man, inasmuch as he has stated he will not decide on the case until he has examined the record and heard both sides in full. To do this will require considerable time, and it is not likely the governor will be able to reach a decision before next Friday.

DENIES 'OPEN SHOP' FIGHT IS ABANDONED

Replying to charges that opponents of the closed shop were abandoning their fight on organized labor with this weapon and were resorting to an "industrial spy" system, the allegation made by delegates to the state labor convention here, W. E. Dunn, Jr., secretary of the Southern Metal Trades association, Thursday addressed a communication to The Constitution, stating that his organization was "still very much opposed to the communistic and radical spirit of the American Federation of Labor."

Mr. Dunn called attention to a set of resolutions passed at the recent annual convention of the metal trades body calling for active opposition to the federation of labor and its "designs on the commercial and industrial welfare of the country." The resolution cited characterized the federation as having "selfish, designing, vindictive and destructive methods," which reserved "not only the published protest, but an active opposition."

Mr. Dunn's letter, in reference to the resolutions and the metal trades body's attitude, follows:

Editor Constitution: We wish to deny the charge or report by the Georgia Federation of Labor that the "open shoppers" have withdrawn their opposition to the activities of labor unions in promotion of the "closed shop."

We inclose herewith, a copy of resolution passed at recent annual convention of this association. You will note therefrom that we are still very much opposed to the communistic and radical spirit of the American Federation of Labor, and a copy of this resolution was mailed to the principal papers throughout the south, as well as to every senator and congressman at Washington.

Labor unions of this country now have a membership of a fraction over 2,000,000 members, as compared with 3,000,000 or thereabout at their peak point during the war, when they took advantage of the situation caused by the loss of workers who volunteered for service in their country. We do not believe that their loss in membership signifies that employers have given up the open shop.

Most respectfully,
W. E. DUNN, JR., Secretary.

CASTON IS NAMED WATER AND LIGHT ASSOCIATION HEAD

D. L. Caston, of Gainesville, was elected president of the Southeastern Water and Light association, at the final session of the organization held Thursday at the Ansley hotel. More than 150 members from seven southern states attended. Chattanooga was chosen as the place for meeting in 1925.

The following members were elected vice presidents: E. O. Sweet, of Birmingham; J. H. McClure, of Chester, S. C.; A. T. Percilius, of Chattanooga; Frank Sewabel, of Clear Water, Fla.; E. M. Foster, of Greenville, Miss.; H. C. Powell, Griffin, Ga.; C. L. Karner, of Charlotte, N. C. W. F. Stieglitz, of Columbia, S. C., was elected secretary and treasurer.

After the session Thursday, visitors were guests of the local organization at a barbecue at the city water works.

The principal speakers at a banquet in celebration of the session were J. H. Norcross, Zode Smith, T. M. Early and John Ragan, of Philadelphia.

HARRISON TRIAL OPENS

Larceny After Trust Charged to Lawyer.

Trial of Fred E. Harrison, Atlanta attorney on a charge of larceny after trust in alleged conversion of $1,000 sent him by C. G. Binion, of West Palm Beach, to secure release of his brother on bond, began in Fulton superior court Thursday before Judge G. L. Howard.

Binion charges that his brother, C. E. Binion, had been jailed on a charge of forgery and when he appealed for money to offer bond, the Florida man sent $1,000 to Attorney Harrison for that purpose. He says the attorney used the money and left his brother in jail. The defendant is represented by Attorney Hooper Alexander.

Jews of Atlanta Begin Celebrating 'Passover' Week

Atlanta Jews, in common with co-religionists throughout the world, begin celebration of the week of "Passover" at sundown today, in commemoration of the flight from Egypt under leadership of Moses.

Services will be held in the Reformed Congregational temple at 6 o'clock today, 10 o'clock Saturday morning, 6 o'clock next Thursday night and 10 o'clock next Friday morning, Rabbi David Marx in charge.

Orthodox congregations will hold the following services in all three synagogues: Today, 6:30 p. m.; Saturday, 8 a. m., and 6:30 p. m.; next Sunday 8 a. m. and 5 p. m.; next Thursday, 6:30 p. m.; next Friday 8 a. m. and 4:30 p. m.; next Saturday, 8 a. m. and 4:30 p. m.

Home observance includes eating of unleavened bread, or matzoth, to remind of the haste in which the departure was made from Egypt; the lamb-bone, a reminder of the Passover sacrifice of a lamb, as related in the book of Exodus; bitter herbs to remind of the oppression of the Egyptian taskmasters, and a mixture of apples, ground almonds and cinnamon mixed into a paste, to suggest the mortar in which the Israelites set the bricks which they had to make to build the store-houses of Pharaoh. There are symbols of spring, and a roasted egg, held to symbolize eternity, or the perpetuity of the people.

In payment, Mr. McDuffie gave a vacant lot in the intersection of Marietta, Walton, and Cain streets, also at a $70,000 valuation.

Mr. Holt, for L. B. Holt, of Sandersville, sold the Belmere apartment house, on Seventh street, to W. C. Broadfood, at a valuation of $75,000. Broadfood in part payment gave a lot in Wilmington, N. C., valued at $25,000, and the balance in cash.

Two Atlanta building permits were issued Thursday, one to F. S. Patterson for a $5,000 one-story brick house at 19 McLynn avenue, and the other to Bellfor and company for two $4,500 one-story brick houses at 70 and 80 Beatie avenue.

SAYS WHEELER REFUSED TO REPRESENT HIM

years and that he had known Senator Wheeler "quite intimately" for a number of years. Stout also said he had talked with Gordon Campbell in December, 1922, about Campbell's employment of Senator Wheeler.

Campbell did not know Wheeler, Stout said, and he volunteered to see Wheeler about his being retained. The case involved was a receivership matter in the state district court.

When he saw Wheeler, Stout said, the latter advised him that he could not represent Campbell except before state courts.

Stout said he had had no further connection with the matter, but knew that Senator Wheeler had appeared for Campbell in the state court cases.

At the outset of the hearing Senator Sterling, republican, South Dakota, suggested that it might be well to have the witness waive immunity.

"None of these witnesses are charged with anything," said Chairman Borah.

Attention was called that Campbell had been indicted with Senator Wheeler, but Senator Borah said that could be taken care of when Campbell was called.

The chairman read the statute under which Senator Wheeler was indicted on a charge of accepting a fee to appear for Campbell before the interior department in the interest of oil land claims. Stout then was called to the stand.

The witness said his conversation with Campbell about the employment of Senator Wheeler took place in December, 1922, a month after Wheeler was elected to the senate. The litigation related to an effort to throw Campbell into receivership. He himself, Stout said, was not interested "in any way" in the company. He said the fee Wheeler had asked to represent Campbell was $10,000 a year.

Stout thought John M. Cooper, now of Los Angeles, might have been with him at the time of his conversation with Wheeler in Butte, but he was not sure.

Chairman Borah told Stout that his testimony that Wheeler had "raised the question" of his inability to represent Campbell except before state courts was "a very important" part of the committee's record. Stout reiterated his statement that such was the fact.

"Do you know anything about the extent and number of cases Campbell had in the courts in Montana?" asked Senator Borah.

"No, except that he had a great deal of litigation."

Campbell on Stand.

Gordon Campbell, indicted with Wheeler, followed Stout on the stand and waived all immunity.

Wheeler told him, Campbell said, that as he "had been elected United States senator he could not attend to any of my land cases."

"He didn't want anything to do with the land cases," Campbell added.

Campbell began his testimony by saying he was a geologist and telling of his discovery of the Kevin-Sunburst oil field in Montana. He said he had been involved in about forty law suits in oil field matters, and said the property concerned was of "very great value." He described his conversation with Stout and said he had told Stout his own lawyers were "not standing pat with me" and that he had thought of employing Wheeler "because he's a fighter."

Wheeler came to his office in Great Falls about December 20, 1922, and the agreement for his employment was reached verbally, Campbell added.

Campbell declared Wheeler had never appeared for him before the interior department and had "repeatedly told me he couldn't."

"What do you mean by land matters?" asked Senator Sterling, republican, South Dakota.

"Some of our lands had to be cleared up," Campbell said.

"Did Senator Wheeler give any reason why he couldn't appear for you in those matters?"

"He said he could not appear before government departments. Some of the leases were coming before the general land office. We had a man in our office who attended to that, and I so told Mr. Wheeler."

Under questioning by Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, he reiterated that he had had no understanding, "direct or implied," with Wheeler in regard to any land matters.

The witness insisted there never was any "question of government permits" involved in his dealings with Wheeler. He confirmed that the fee agreed on was $10,000, and said he paid Wheeler $2,000 "to represent me in this litigation in Great Falls."

About a month ago, Campbell said, he telegraphed Wheeler when "they were going to pull some of my casing" in oil wells on public land. "They" referred to the bank which had foreclosed.

"Is there no way for the government to stop ruining these wells?" the message to Wheeler said.

Campbell produced a "true copy" of Wheeler's reply, saying he was "advised" that the government could not intervene in the bank's plan to sell the casing under a foreclosed mortgage.

Another Campbell telegram to Wheeler was presented, relative to "the Lincoln permit." It asked Wheeler to arrange a conference with Solicitor Booth, of the interior department. Senator Wheeler's office replied that the senator had seen Booth and that the latter would see Campbell when he came to Washington.

The "Lincoln permit" telegram from Campbell to Wheeler as put into the record, reads: "Please advise when you expect to return. Believe matter of Lincoln permit vitally important. Is it possible you can discuss matter with solicitor and can I come to Washington and discuss matters with him with view to satisfactory settlement even during your absence? Feel this permit should have prompt attention."

This reply was sent to Campbell: "Have already discussed permit with solicitor, but did not have number. Wire that to me and I will arrange to have you see him in person if you come here."

"I will state," interposed Senator Wheeler, when the telegram was read, "that that telegram was sent from my office in my absence, but I take full responsibility for it."

Campbell said he did confer with Solicitor Booth and the latter had told him he should employ Washington lawyers to represent him before the interior department. He followed that suggestion, he added, reiterating that Senator Wheeler had never "appeared" for him before the interior or other government department.

Copies of correspondence between Campbell's land attorney in Great Falls and his land attorney in Washington were produced. The originals had been taken from his office in Great Falls "by the government," he said.

"How did the government take them?" Senator Borah asked.

"Just took 'em," said Campbell. "They worked a whizzer on my office force."

Campbell then testified that various department of justice and postoffice people had taken the papers from his office, included in the group being the postmaster of Great Falls, whose name he did not know.

"They worked a very high-handed game," Campbell said, adding that he had previously told officials who had called at his office on the case that he would give them any information they wanted.

Campbell testified that the $2,000 payment to Wheeler was made about the middle of January, 1923.

Senator Borah read a count in the indictment returned against Senator Wheeler charging that he had accepted $2,000 from Campbell in January, 1923 to appear before the interior department.

"What was this $2,000 paid to Senator Wheeler for?" asked Senator Borah.

"To appear in the state courts in the receivership case."

"Did he so appear?"

"Yes, sir."

"Was it successful?"

"Yes, sir; he won the case."

"Did you ever pay Mr. Wheeler any sum to represent you before the interior department?"

"No, sir; and he never appeared before that department for me.

Campbell said he later had paid Senator Wheeler an additional $2,000 on account of the $10,000 annual retainer. He said Senator Wheeler still is his counsel in the Montana state courts.

Baldwin on Stand.

Senator Borah called for Solicitor Booth when Campbell was excused, but as the interior department official was not in the room, James H. Baldwin, Wheeler's law partner, was put on the stand.

The law firm's books showing payments made to the firm by Campbell in the cases in which it represented him were produced by Baldwin, who gave also details of the state court cases. He said he understood that "the Standard Oil" and its subsidiaries" were trying to get control of the Montana oil field involved in the 19 cases in which the Wheeler-Baldwin firm represented Campbell.

"Was there anything pending in your office relative to Mr. Campbell's affairs requiring you to appear before the interior department or the local land offices?" asked Senator Borah.

"Absolutely not," Baldwin replied.

Baldwin corroborated Campbell's statement as to the employment of Senator Wheeler to represent Campbell in the courts in Montana. He said the fee was $10,000 a year with agreement that Campbell should pay expenses. Two payments had been made, the witness said, "one on account of the fee and one for expenses."

"Coming to the first $2,000 payment," said Senator Borah, "what was it for?"

The witness said it was for representing Campbell solely in the state courts.

Campbell had been unable to pay on the basis of the original contract with the firm, he said, but the firm was "going right on" representing him because "he is on the rocks and needs help." Campbell owes the firm about $6,000, the lawyer said, under the old contract for fees and expenses, and if he "won out" he would be asked to pay.

The witness added that "Wheeler and I" regard the services to Campbell as a "contribution" to the cause of "progressive policies" in Montana.

"It's always been open season on progressive politicians in Montana," he remarked.

Baldwin said that while there was no written contract with Campbell or letter giving the terms of that verbal agreement, there was a letter to Wheeler from Campbell showing that Wheeler, because of his senate membership, could appear only in the most important state cases.

"There never has been any litigation except in state courts?" Senator Borah asked.

"None but in state courts," said Baldwin.

Baldwin was excused and the committee adjourned until 2:30 p. m.

Mr. Booth, who resigned some time ago as interior department solicitor, was again called when the committee reconvened, but was again absent.

Visited Wheeler Socially.

Booth later appeared and was put on the stand. He said his "legal residence" was in Montana, and that he was now assigned as special assistant attorney general.

"Did you see Senator Wheeler after he came to Washington?" asked Borah.

Booth replied he had "visited socially" with Wheeler's family.

Up to the "middle of March, 1923," Booth said, Wheeler had "never mentioned" the Campbell cases to him. In March, Wheeler was in his (Booth's) office and said in substance that he had been in the Campbell lawsuit in Great Falls, that Campbell's financial situation was bad and that Wheeler was "desirous of assisting him."

R. A. Haste, secretary to Senator Wheeler, was put on the stand and testified that he had taken Gordon Campbell to the interior department and introduced him to Booth in April, 1923.

Haste also identified one of the telegrams sent to Campbell with Wheeler's signature as having been "handled by me" as Senator Wheeler was getting ready to leave for Europe.

"To your knowledge, did Mr. Wheeler ever go to the interior department in relation to the Campbell matters?" asked Senator Borah.

"Not to my knowledge."

"Was anything said about the business on which he wanted to see the solicitor?" asked Senator Borah.

"Nothing whatever."

This was the only occasion, Haste said, that Campbell had come to the office for the purpose.

DEBATES TO MARK COURSE OF RELIEF BILL

front, yet the same consideration is influencing the attitude of many senators and congressmen who regard the McNary-Haugen bill as a first and dangerous step in inflation.

That the farming situation in some parts of the northwest is very serious admits of no question. Apparently the sufferers do not seem disposed to express their feelings politically, at least not yet, for Coolidge did better in the Nebraska primaries than anybody expected, and in North and South Dakota Hiram Johnson and LaFollette ran less strongly than in previous and normal years. As to this, one claim is made that the farmers refused to vote for Johnson and LaFollette because they are isolationists, whereas, the farmers themselves have come around to seeing international cooperation as indispensible to them.

Economic Situation Bad.

Whatever the doubt about how the situation will express itself politically next fall, there can be no doubt that the bad economic condition is there. One reason the east has been slow in realizing it was stated in a letter from a Nebraska banker, who said: "I know that meetings were held in the west, and a campaign of propaganda starte dto counteract the facts that were getting out with reference to the condition of the farmer because it was hurting the western municipal and farm mortgage market."

Another story is about a western politician who is also the owner of a western farm paper. The story is to the effect that when he began to make political speeches about distress among the farmers, he was rebuked by his advertising manager who said it was making it difficult to get advertising.

To Blame Bankers.

The opponents of the McNary-Haugen are going to make, among others, two points. They are going to say that the inspiration of the McNary-Haugen bill, nad much of the actual authorship of the idea, did not come from the farmers, but from business men who sell things to the farmers especially the makers of farm implements. Then they are going to say that the real cause of the farmers' distress is less the farmer himself than the local bankers who over-persuaded the farmers to accept too much credit in order to enable him to buy more land and therefore bring about a land boom, and also the business men who "oversold" the farmer with more things than it was wise for him to buy on long credit.

STUDENTS WILL MAKE MEMORIAL ADDRESSES

Waynesboro, Ga., April 17.—Waynesboro will celebrate Confederate Memorial day this year in a unique manner. The address of the day, which will be held with other appropriate exercises at the courthouse with the decoration of the graves of the veterans at the cemetery later, will be made by no state-wide, famous orator, not even a local speaker of note.

School boys will make the addresses. Hansel Stembridge and Ross Stribling have been selected. The memorial day exercises will be held on Friday, April 25, instead of Saturday.

Now! Another week—

We pay 41c on your first pair!

To acquaint you with hosiery that is sheer and lovely—but has amazing durability. In all newest colors!

Ten days ago we announced that Holeproof Hosiery was now to be had at local stores. To make sure that you tried a pair, we offered to pay 41c on your first purchase.

We knew that no woman could overlook the beauty, the value, the economy of Holeproof Hosiery.

But response has far exceeded our broadest estimates. Thousands of women have accepted it. Thousands more have not yet found time or opportunity to do so. The time-limit originally set was today.

Therefore we have decided to extend the offer for one week—6 shopping days. Until Thursday, April 2th, we will continue to pay 41c on your first purchase of Holeproof Style No. 2200—at $2.00.

Style, beauty—plus durability

Millions of well-dressed women buy Holeproof today for no other reason than that it is lovely, sheer, lustrous, of faultless style. They would buy and wear it for that reason alone—if no other existed.

But the fact is that amazing durability is combined with this exquisite sheerness, this style. Holeproof actually outwears most hosiery that is bulky, coarse.

And prices are moderate. For $2.00 you get hosiery of appearance and style for which you would ordinarily pay considerably more.

For years this hosiery luxury, this economy has been denied the women of Atlanta. This has been one of the few cities in which local stores did not carry it. Now we have changed that.

And here is your opportunity to learn of this hosiery which well-dressed women of America, and all the world favor.

Finest materials, tests—and skill

None but the finest quality of silks, "yarns" and lisle for reinforcing, can go into Holeproof. Our dyestuffs are costly, scientifically selected.

Skilled, intelligent knitters—working with most modern equipment—produce every pair of Holeproof.

All thread or "yarns" are tested for strength and fineness in our laboratories—on steel-jawed machines that stretch and pull them.

Finally, every finished pair must successfully pass a series of searching inspections. Only the perfect, flawless ones can leave our factories.

And back of all this is more than half a century's experience in knitting fine hosiery—in making beautiful hosiery durable: durable hosiery beautiful. This is an advantage younger manufacturers cannot possess.

The result? It is apparent the moment you look at a pair of Holeproof Hosiery—sheer, lustrous, lovely in every way. It becomes more apparent as you wear the beautiful stockings, and see them retain that lustrous newness, that snug, graceful fit—long after most hosiery is worn out or laundered out.

Now we pay part for you

Accept our offer. It is an unusual bargain—but it is also much more than that. For it introduces you to new hosiery satisfaction, new economy.

Clip the coupon. Present it at any store listed here.

It will apply as 41c in cash on your first purchase of Holeproof Stvle No. 2200 (described elsewhere on this page).

Thaw Dramatically Quits

:: BOTH SIDES DECLINE TO QUIZ HIM ::

Stand After 7 Questions

Philadelphia, April 17.—Harry K. Thaw had his day in court Thursday, a day that dwindled to 11 breathless minutes as the most famous lunatic of the age sat in the witness chair, perspiring, restless, until suddenly he was told:

"That's all, Mr. Thaw."

His chance to speak for himself, to convince the world through his actions in open court that he was sane and entitled to freedom, had come—and gone.

Thaw was asked only seven questions—his name, his age, and his purpose in appearing, and then abruptly the attorneys who are conducting his fight for liberty turned him over to those opposing.

Staggers "Billy" Gray.

It was a clever legal trick. "Billy" Gray's jaw fell noticeably. Gray is Philadelphia's famous trial lawyer, representing Evelyn Nesbit, Thaw's former wife, in the action to block the millionaire's release. With an unexcelled reputation for cross-examination, his attack upon Thaw on the stand was expected to be the dramatic climax to the sanity trial.

The purpose of Thaw's counsel in thus delivering him to the opposition for questioning was evident. They wanted to thrust the initiative upon Gray, and hold him responsible for any erratic answers that might develope to his questioning.

After a hurried consultation with his associates, and with alienists who later testified against Thaw, Gray met the move with one of his own.

Thaw Totters From Stand.

"We have no questions," he announced, and Thaw, almost dazed by his sudden turn that robbed him of his chance to testify, was helped from the stand.

Thus passed the great moment of the trial. It was minutes before the spectators, who had perched tensely on chair edges, grasped the purport of what had happened.

They had sat as though frozen when Judge Patterson, Thaw's counsel, called him to the stand shortly after 11 o'clock. From the front bench rose the figure of a portly, middle-aged man. There was no trace in the thick, composed features of that gay youth who burned up Broadway when the century and he were young together; nor was there a hint of the homicidal lunatic who pumped bullets into the body of Stanford White or of the pervert who whipped the boy Gump.

Testimony Not Competent.

Running his tongue over his lips, his eyes fixed on the witness chair towards which he made his way past the jury box, Thaw walked steadily to the stand.

He was sworn. Like any sane, normal citizen he put his hand on a Bible and swore to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. But it didn't mean anything. Thaw is, legally, a lunatic, and the laws of the state of Pennsylvania provide for no such procedure.

Spectators, jury, and even counsel, literally held their breath as they leaned forward to catch the first words. Thaw gave his name and age, 53, speaking in a low, gutteral voice that held a pronounced trace of accent.

Move Was Dramatic.

"Mr. Thaw, you asked me to put you on the stand in order that you might have an opportunity to demonstrate your sanity to anyone, no matter who, who might care to question you, did you not?" Judge Patterson asked.

"I did," Thaw answered.

Patterson turned to the opposing counsel's table.

"Question the witness," he said, and sat down.

Thaw shifted in his chair to face the expected storm. He had been steeled for months for this moment; he was prepared to match his brain, the power of which no alienist has denied on matters of general interest, against those of the lawyers a few feet away. He had come prepared for questioning on the subject of the White killing, the Gump whipping, his attempted suicide and his abnormal amusement with rabbits while at Kirkbride's.

Secrets Still Untold.

What Thaw intended to tell, not even his own counsel knew, it was disclosed. The opposition let him sit there for what seemed an interminable period. His furrowed brow was bathed in sweat, and he turned to look at the nondescript jury in whose hands his fate has been placed, and smiled at them. Then he was told to leave, and almost tottered from the stand. The let-down was terrific; there were many among the spectators who would have needed similar assistance.

Then Patterson announced that the Thaw side rested. Mrs. Mary Thaw, the millionaire's mother, was too ill to take the stand Thursday morning, but she appeared, apparently in good health, early in the afternoon.

Insane Yet, Say Doctors.

Four doctors, called by attorneys representing the committee of the Thaw estate who oppose his release on the ground he is not competent to manage his affairs, testified in the afternoon.

They swore they believe Thaw insane at the present time, that he would reverert to his former malpractices if released, and that he was incompetent to manage his estate.

Evelyn Nesbit, Thaw's former wife, was in town, but did not come to court. She may herself appear on the stand next week. The trial was adjourned until Monday because of the Easter holidays.

Thaw himself may again appear on the stand. It all depends upon which side, in the final analysis, feels it has gained most from his mute moments in the witness chair Thursday.

THAW STILL INSANE, JEROME BELIEVES.

New York, April 17.—William Travers Jerome, who as district attorney of New York county prosecuted Harry K. Thaw for the murder of Stanford White, today expressed the opinion that Thaw was insane, despite testimony of alienists in Philadelphia.

Jerome returned from a two weeks' trip in Bermuda on the Arcadia today.

Alienists testifying at Thaw's attempt to regain freedom that he had had no delusions or hallucinations, Jerome declared, did not disprove his insanity. The former prosecutor said these manifestations were present only when the insane person was mentally tired. It was particularly hard to detect these conditions, he said, when the person in question had extensive experience with psychiatrists and court procedure.

LETTERS IRRELEVANT, HEFLIN DECLARES

Washington, April 17.—Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, prosecutor in the senate committee's inquiry into charges of fraudulent land sales in the lower Rio Grande valley of Texas, challenged as irrelevant a batch of letters introduced into the record today on behalf of R. B. Creager, Texas republican national committeeman, whom the senator has accused of being implicated into the alleged frauds. The letters, read by George A. Hill, Jr., of Houston, Texas, counsel for Creager, were all signed by democrats—lawyers, bankers, judges and politicians—who expressed a high opinion of Mr. Creager's character and business life.

Senator Heflin objected that the signers of the letters said nothing to indicate they knew of land conditions in the Rio Grande valley; asserted many were written from points removed from the Rio Grande valley, and suggested they had been "solicited."

Chief Postal Inspector Rush D. Simmons, the only witness during the day, was asked by him if he "would not regard it strange that individuals claiming fraud had not attempted to prosecute local agents making alleged misrepresentations," and replied that he would.

"If it was reported that land men would employ persons to harass and murder those they could not control, you would consider conditions bad, wouldn't you?" Senator Heflin questioned the witness. Simmons replied that he would.

M'ADOO MANAGERS HIT BY FEDERATION

most vigorous language were R. E. Gann, of Atlanta; Delegate Mixon, of Savannah, and George Marshall, also of Chatham. William Pollard, of the electrical workers' union, Atlanta, also voiced his approval of the resolution in the most emphatic way

Gann Answers Valentino.

Mr. Gann, author of the resolution, was the first to take the floor in its behalf. He answered the claim of Delegate Valentino that a number of alternates had been appointed from the labor ranks by pointing out some four or five possible labor alternates in a state representation of 600 or more. He also denied that alternates in the state, or other conventions, have the same voting power and other privileges enjoyed by delegates. "My purpose in writing this resolution, and in presenting it for passage here," said he, "is to notify the 'Big Four' that has hand-picked the representations from over the state almost completely ignoring labor, that we are on the job, and that we do not propose to be made the goat always."

Mr. Gann then said that the alternates at the state convention would have no more votes or privileges than would be given a mule. "We did our part toward the success of McAdoo in eGorgia," continued Mr. Gann, "and we mean to put the McAdoo leaders in this state on notice that we do not mean to be ignored."

George Marshall, of Chatham county, a delegate to the state federation, took the floor then to support the resolution, and said that if the labor people had voted in the same proportion for McAdoo as they had been given representation in the state convention, "Underwood would be the man holding the Georgia vote at this time. The people who do the voting should have something to say about who will represent them," said Mr. Marshall, amidst applause.

Labor Must Fight.

Delegate Mixon, of Chatham county, was recognized to voice a most emphatic "indorsement of the resolution.. It was organized labor that carried Chatham county for McAdoo," said the delegate, "and we have a right to kick against being ignored by the state managers in naming the delegates to the convention. The trouble with organized labor is that we are afraid to talk, afraid to fight, and afraid to make our protests known. discussed the question wkith much We won't get anything without kicking for it—that you must admit."

The discussion precipitated by the "Big Four" resolution absorbed a large portion of the federation session for the afternoon, and the vote came only after many of the delegates had discussed the question with much evident feeling.

The resolution, as adopted by the federation is as follows:

"Whereas, organized labor in Georgia supported and voted for William Gibbs McAdoo in the recent preferential primary in this state, and

"Whereas, the McAdoo managers in Georgia ignored organized labor in appointing delegates to the state democratic convention, therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the president of the Georgia Federation of Labor be and is hereby instructed to attend the democratic convention to be held in Atlanta, April 24, to request the privilege of speaking and to make a vigorous and emphatic protest against the failure of the McAdoo managers to recognize organized labor in naming the delegates to the state convention and be it further

"Resolved, That in similar campaigns in the future it shall be the duty of the officers of the Georgia Federation of Labor to use their good offices and their influence at the proper time to the end that organized labor be considered and its interests protected."

WESTINGHOUSE CO. SALES MANAGER HERE FOR VISIT

Walter S. Rugg, general sales manager of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, who is on a tour of inspection of the various district offices of the company, is spending several days as a guest of the Atlanta branch of the concern. He addressed the sales force of the local district office Wednesday, expressing optimism concerning the 1924 business outlook, and lauding the rapid commercial development of the southern states. He spoke Wednesday night at a banquet of the Atlanta Electrical association at the Capital City club.

W. S. RUGG.

Mr. Rugg has become a factor in the electrical industry because he combines the exact and analytical training of an engineer with the broad economic experience of a commercial executive.

Though he has been engaged in almost every line of electrical development, he has also become especially identified with the transportation field, on both land and sea, and has been active in introducing more efficient methods into both branches.

The position of general sales manager of the Westinghouse Electric company was a new one in that company when Mr. Rugg took charge in 1922, and his appointment was in recognition of his broad experience in the electrical industry and his capabilities in sales work in which he had been engaged for many years. He was an engineer salesman and his appointment, at the time, indicated the gradual trend in the technical field toward the necessity of trained technical men in the selling of technical products.

CITYWIDE SHOW OF ATLANTA-MADE GOODS PROPOSED

Decision on a suggestion to hold a city-wide exposition of Atlanta manufactured products here during Grand Opera week will be made at a conference this afternoon of the special committee from the advisory board of the clean-up campaign, it was announced Thursday by Fred J. Cooledge, Jr., secretary.

George M. Brown, Jr., president of the Atlanta Real Estate board and chairman of the special committee, declared Thursday night that he believed all Atlanta realtors and owners of downtown buildings would cooperate in the exposition plan.

The proposal is that all vacant store rooms in the downtown district be offered to local manufacturers for use during opera week in displaying Atlanta-made products.

One of the architectural curiosities of London is an office building five stories high and only ten feet wide.

Illness of Pet Dog Causes Paderewski To Cancel Concerts

Chicago, April 17.—Illness of his pet Pekingese, Pingy, caused Ignace Pan Paderewski, world famous pianist and former premier of Poland, to abandon part of his concert tour and rush to Chicago yesterday to obtain the services of the best veterinary surgeons of the middle west.

The dog, said once to have belonged to a Chinese imperial prince, contracted a cold two days ago in Sioux Falls, S. D. When his condition became worse the next two concerts were canceled and the Paderewski retinue returned to Chicago, wiring in advance for four leading veterinarians to meet the train.

Pingy's ailment was diagnosed as rhinitis, complicated by gastritis. A long rest and careful treatment, with special attention to diet, will be necessary for recovery, the veterinary doctors said.

$35,000 SECURED BY MAIL BANDITS

St. Paul, Minn., April 17.—Thirty-five thousand dollars in currency was included in the loot obtained by three bandits who held up two postal employees in South St. Paul today, escaping with five pouches containing a large quantity of registered mail.

The robbery occurred at the Chicago Great Western station, just after a train had unloaded the five pouches, one of which contained the $35,000 payroll for Armour & Co.'s South St. Paul plant.

As the pouches weer being loaded on to a truck, the bandits drew up in an automobile, two sprang out with drawn revolvers, forcing two postal employees to surrender the bags.

While one bandit kept the two postal employees covered, the other threw the pouches into the automobile. Then both jumped into the machine and sped away, heading north toward St. Paul.

In addition to the payroll, the pouches contained registered mail of an undetermined value, but the police expressed the belief that the payroll was the only thing the bandits were after, and that they probably would discard the other pouches.

The $35,000 in currency was consigned by the Federal Reserve bank in Minneapolis to the Stock Yards National Bank of St. Paul. It was kept in the Minneapolis postoffice yesterday and put on the train this morning.

Both postal workers were armed, but with the handling of pouches occupying their attention they had no opportunity to draw their pistols.

Two hours after the robbery, gun squads found the bandit car fifteen miles from the scene. Apparently they continued their flight in another machine.

Police reports first placed the amount of currency stolen at $50,000, but a check-up at the federal reserve bank in Minneapolis and the Stockyards National in South St. Paul, completed this afternoon, disclosed that the shipment was $35,000.

The money was to be used by the Stockyards National bank to meet the payroll of the Armour plant at South St. Paul which is issued by checks drawn on this bank and therefore Armour & Company had no part in the money transactions. The money shipment was fully insured, bank officials said.

FORD SHOALS OFFER IS ATTACKED BY HALL

New York, April 17.—The political party which in the coming campaign make a well-defined declaration against relinquishing into private hands the nation's power resources will receive the approval of the American people, Representative Hull, of Iowa, today told members of the Women's National Republican club.

Criticising adversely the McKenzie bill by which the Muscle Shoals projects would be turned over to Henry Ford, Representative Hull said:

"I am convinced that those who try to do it will be held responsible for it by the people; and that the question of Muscle Shoals will therefore become a great issue in the coming political campaign.

"The Teapot Dome and other natural resources scandals which have been occupying the attention of the public as a result of the senate investigations prove that this is the wrong year in which to try to give away the people's natural resources."

Mr. Hull traced the history of the Muscle Shoals project, which, he said, was second in magnitude among national enterprises only to the Panama canal, and asserted that the best way to solve the difficulties of the question was to submit them for investigation to a committee, creation of which, he added, had been suggested by President Coolidge.

"Acceptance of the present Ford offer," he declared, "would nullify and repeal the federal waterpower act in the sense that it would create a precedent for ignoring its essential provisions."

The compensation offer, he continued, was wholly inadequate, adding that it was "unheard-of procedure to turn over to any one man or corporation to be formed by him so much power at the price contemplated."

The congressman declared the government had two other reliable offers for the property, both of which, he asserted, would yield more than the Ford offer. He declared the nitrate plants were really arsenals for national defense and that they should under no circumstances be sold outright to any individual.

League Is No Real Factor In Big European Problems

Problematical Whether It May Become Agency for World Peace of Which Wilson Dreamed.

BY FRANK H. SIMONDS.

Geneva, Switzerland.—Five years ago it was my fortune to be present on that memorable day when, in the first plenary session of the peace conference, the late President Wilson presented to the conference and to the world, and obtained from the former, the acceptance of his covenant of the League of Nations. For all of those who were then present, the memory of Mr. Wilson, flushed with triumph, conscious of the fact that the eyes of the whole of the world were upon him, contrasted with the pathetic figure of the dying man who lingered in Washington for brief but bitter years thereafter, constitutes one of the supreme tragedies of experience.

And with the memory of this past event stirred by a recent stay in Paris, where many things and many people recalled that other day, I came to Geneva during the session of the council of the league to see what had been the development of the idea in the still brief period of time between the Paris conference and the present moment.

Now when one attempts to write about the League of Nations, even about the fact which is disclosed here in Geneva, there always interposes the realities and—if you please—the futilities of the long political battle in America. Thus one must, in recording facts, struggle with two memories—that of Mr. Wilson as he delivered his great pronouncement which was the origin of the league in Paris in 1919, that of the United States senate and all the enormous battle over the league which was carried on in American politics and measurably still continues.

League Is Different.

The first impression, then of the League of Nations in Geneva, and perhaps the last, is that it is something equally different from the thing which Mr. Wilson dreamed and the United States senate feared. The first reaction is not of a body engaged in tremendous tasks and backed by the public sentiment of mankind, not of men or of an institution capable of preventing future wars, and it is just as unmistakably not of an institution seeking or even threatening to become a superstate, invading the liberties of free countries and subordinating nations to its brand of internationalism.

To get even the remotest conception of the league of nations as it exists, not as it has been conceived or forecast, one must see it actually within its own field of operation. Seen there, what does the league appear like? First of all, a detail as incongruous perhaps as it is striking, the headquarters of the league are in what was once one of the considerable hotels of Geneva, a hotel which has preserved all its furnishings and its character, something as distinct from any conception of world politics or international affairs as the Waldorf Astoria hotel in New York might seem if it were suddenly annexed as a new seat of congress. What I mean is that you never for a single moment, in the palace of the society of nations in Geneva, quite escape the sense of the hotel, the hotel where citizens of many nations encounter each other.

And the second impression, for in a sense it is all a matter of impression, is of the wonderful beauty and calm in which the league meets. From the windows of the room in which the council meets you look through evergreen trees across a tranquil lake at the snowclad majesty of Mont Blanc. In the days of warm and early spring when the last session took place, there was a sense of peace which was astonishing, you had a feeling that had the conference to make peace five years ago met in Geneva instead of in Paris it might have done a better job.

But these passing impressions give away at once to the observation of the council to the league beginning operations. It is meeting is one of the salons where undoubtedly ten years ago a throng of tourists met to take tea—and it is the hour of tea. But now the room has been transformed into something recalling at the same moment the school room of childhood and a committee room in the capitol at Washington where, for example, a committee of the senate is exploring into some national question.

Seated about a long table facing the audience are a dozen or more citizens of Europe who are the council. In the center sits the chief permanent officer of the secretariat of the league, Sir Eric Drummond, the perfect outward semblance of that marvelous thing which has administered the British empire for several centuries, namely, the public school boy who become the British civil servant. Right and left of him, without distinction of dress or manner, are the members of the council.

It is with the membership of the council that one has I think, the first real shock at Geneva. Theoretically, the league is the great gathering of the representatives of the peoples of Europe—instinctively, you look to see men of presence or of importance. What you actually discover are several rather fussy and impatient men, obviously eager to be through with the business and be off home, for the session ends at once.

There is Hanotaux for France, once a foreign minister, ever so long ago and now content to be here. Lord Parmoor, of Britain, who, succeeding Lord Robert Cecil, has demonstrated how little importance the British prime minister can attach to the present session of the league. Sallandra, of Italy; Ischii, of Japan, is a more considerable figure, but Japan is not interested. Of all who are present, only Benes of Czecho-Slovakia and Branting, of Sweden, count in their own country.

Second String Men.

Remember at the moment when this session of the council is meeting great events are happening in Europe. In Paris there has been the great crisis over the exchange and the expert commissions are now at work on the task of finding a plan to solve reparations and European reconstruction, take place which may again unsettle ous prime minister is casting about to find a way to reorganize Anglo-French relations, to get at the business of reconstruction, of peace.

Yet here, in the palace of the society of nations, a certain number of relatively insignificant politicians, Europe. In Britain a new and vigor- In Berlin, a great election is just to second string men, so far as the great countries are concerned, have been for a week wrestling with the problems of Memel, of Javorina, of police effectiveness in the Sarre Valley and, perhaps a shade more important, of the financial reconstruction of Hungary. Inevitably, then you have the impression that in Geneva you are in a back eddy, a side street of Europe, that somehow, for reasons which may be of one kind or another, the big procession has gone by the other street.

The brief session which I am seeking to describe lasts but a minute. All has been settled, this is the end of the week, what is left is routine, the merest routine, conversation in French, declarations of principle on the part of Poles in French, more or less formal inquisition by Lord Parmoor, suggesting desire for notice rather than information. While this continues the audience, inconsiderable, made up mainly of the relatives of the permanent secretariat or of the visiting delegates, stirs uneasily. Most of what is said is too unaudible to challenge interest. You feel that you came to see, not to hear, that everyone came to see and having seen is quite ready to depart. Again the odd recollection of the hotel comes back, guests who strayed into a salon where a public lecture was going on and then strayed out. Then abruptly the thing breaks up, the delegates their secretaries, everyone rushes out for the hotel, as delegates after a national convention at home.

Gives Trivial Impression.

This first general impression which I am seeking to describe, then, is one a little I think of triviality. Is it quite fair? No, I am sure it is not. The more one observes the league, the more one talks with the men and women who are engaged in the necessary tasks, the more clearly it is demonstrated that there is here a great deal of devotion, not a little intelligence and, looking out over Europe, not a little of achievement.

The two curses of the League of Nations so far have, in my judgment, been the result of claiming too much for it and then treating it as too insignificant. Seen at close hand, it certainly is not the thing that Mr. Wilson and the world dreamed about five years ago. What it exactly is at the moment is an extraordinarily and useful little machine, working in a remote and tranquil corner of Europe, working on relatively minor matters, but dealing with them in a pretty average efficient manner.

As it stands at the moment, the league is not even remotely a thing which could prevent war between great powers, it has little or no concern with the larger questions of peace or war. The great powers do regard it as important enough to send considerable men to attend its sessions, and the great questions of Europe are not being considered in Geneva, but in Paris, London and Berlin.

But, by contrast, as one after another questions like those of Austrian and Hungarian finance, Lithuanian and Polish boundaries, Sarre valley difficulties arise, Geneva is an enormously convenient pigeon hole in which to file these matters away, to file them away not to remain and gather dust, but to be disposed of. Europe devolves upon Geneva those questions which it is tired of wrestling with, would like to see settled, but is sufficiently indifferent about to be willing to resign. And bear this in mind always, Geneva takes them up and deals with them with a really noteworthy degree of competency.

May Become Useful.

Talking with members of the secretaries, and from Sir Eric downward, all showed me a courtesy and spoke with a frankness which leaves me their debtor. I had the impression that all were engaged in the task of constructing a machine with the hope that in the future this machine might be available for application to greater problems of Europe. I am bound to say that the underlying conception seemed to me to have its origin rather in the British tradition of civil service than in any American and necessarily less concrete notion of moral influence. The thing is a little difficult to phrase, but what I mean is there was the feeling that the effort was to create a machine that might be available if nations should agree to use it, rather than to organize a force which would compel nations to reckon with it.

Beyond all else, the league seen from Geneva gave the impression of an institution rather than an idea, that the idea which was the foundation of the league had passed through an enormous measure of reduction in finally being expressed in the present society of nations. You could understand how most governments, perhaps all governments, would find it a mighty convenient thing to which to refer questions of opium traffic, white slave trade, even the financial administration of bankrupt succession states like Austria and Hungary. And I emphasize again that it was impossible not to feel the injustice of the charge that the league had done nothing and could do nothing.

In addition it was manifest what an incalculable benefit must flow even from the relatively restricted contact of men of many nations, restricted, because, after all, only the minor powers sent considerable representatives. And in a Europe which until today has been separated by so many barriers and still is, this has its value. More perhaps than anywhere else on the continent at this moment, you may detect in Geneva the first faint traces of a European state of mind beginning to develop.

May Formulate Agreements.

What you feel about the League of Nations in its present incarnation is that whenever the great or even the little powers can agree as between themselves, the League of Nations will be an admirable body to formulate the agreement and see it applied. And in the same sense it is manifest that when other nations disagree, but do not want to fight, reference to the league will be a simple escape. Now it would be foolish to say that this is nothing, that it is not on the contrary a material gain. There is something at Geneva which has done and will continue to do a useful thing which has not been done before and needs to be done.

But that the League of Nations constitutes in its present state or in a future which may be based upon its present prospects, a body which can materially affect the relations of the great powers to the extent of preventing wars, that it has become or is becoming the vehicle of expression of world opinion that it has acquired a moral authority which in any measure approximates what was hoped for it and rather rashly claimed for it, this seems to me, after my experience, a matter of speculation, at best.

Dealing with minor questions, the league has done well, but the moment you go from Geneva to any capital in Europe, you feel at once that all major questions remain where they were. It is Germany, France and Great Britain which will determine the reparations settlement, if there is a settlement, and Geneva will not influence one way or other the question of a settlement. At most, if there is a settlement in terms, Geneva may be called upon to oversee the application of the terms. Its role will be passive, not active. It can receive, it cannot give; it can accept but it cannot influence, has no great inclination to influence. And that is perhaps exactly what I mean when I said that it tended to become institutionalized.

Will It Grow Larger?

Now there are two other phases of the question. First of all, will Europe presently turn to the machine which is being set up on the shores of Lake Geneva and seek to transform it into something larger and more potent, something like what Mr. Wilson dreamed for it and many millions of Americans at one moment believed for it? No one can answer that question now, although it is true that Ramsey MacDonald has more than once given a hint of such a purpose. It may be that if there is a reparations settlement, if there is a general agreement on the larger issues, that once this agreement is made the league will enter into its own.

I am sure that is what its present servants and supporters believe and hope, and I do think it would be rash to forecast now that the thing is out of the question. But over against this stands the unlikelihood that the statesmen of great nations, themselves elected directly by the people, will willingly abandon their control of the foreign policies of their nations, particularly when, as in Europe, foreign policy is the largest and most dignified occupation of a statesman. Just as long as Britain sends Lord Parmore and France, Hanotaux, you may safely conclude that the British and French cabinets will continue to direct their representatives at Geneva, and that the influence of London and Paris upon Geneva will be far and away greater than that of Geneva upon either.

The second question that is asked me as an American is naturally actual contact with Geneva has given me any definite reaction with respect of American participation. I must quite frankly in answer that such reactions as I have had have been emphatically against American participation by membership. More and more the league is tending to become a pan-European congress, a meeting place for Europeans and the place where exclusively European questions are disposed of. That, as I have tried to explain, seems its greatest hope.

That Europe may some day develop some form of United States, however different from ours; that it must find some way by which the various races can live on the continent without wars which more and more surely threaten the extinction of Europe and civilization, seems to me axiomatic. Conceivably, the league may become that thing—just conceivably—but in any event, the more successfully it becomes a European meeting place, the less reason and the greater danger of American participation, for, as the problems become more and more parochially European, the greater the disadvantage of the intermingling of Americans with matters which are outside their experience and their vital interest.

U. S. Recognizes Value.

Already our state department has recognized the value of cooperating with the league in certain of its activities, notably opium traffic, inevitably as the league decreases as a political factor in America, this co-operation will increase. There are a whole range of later financial matters in which American bankers are likely to desire to be represented. Now and again, as recently over Memel, there arises a question to the settlement of which all parties concerned invite an American collaborator. And Norman H. Davis' service in this regard is likely to lead to repetitions of the invitation.

Yet, laying aside these special cases, one has to recognize that to succeed in a large way the league must mainly grapple with purely European problems of security, quite as much as reparations, that the settlements must in the nature of things involve some form of guarantees, and I cannot believe that the American people will consent or should be asked to participate in such guarantees.

If I may briefly sum up my first hand impressions of the league, I would say that it seems to me, first of all, that its actual achievement has been underestimated in America and that, at least in its present form, there remains no basis for the old apprehensions based upon the superstate idea. It has become a useful and effective machine which is likely to continue and certain to increase in influence and importance as a European circumstance. It is in a sense no inconsiderable monument to the ideas and ideals of the British civil service, to which, through Sir Eric Drummond, it obviously owes much.

No Real Factor.

On the other hand, it is not today any real factor in the great problems. Whether it may become the agency for world peace which Mr. Wilson dreamed is still problematical. It hasn't done this yet, and there is nothing but the hope and faith of those who believe in ti to suggest that it will. The present year and the results of the new attempts to solve reparations and security problems must have an enormous i portance for the future of the league; if it is passed by or made a mere side issue, its moral prestige will continue to decline as it has for the past two years, when it was confined to relatively minor matters, while great disputes were filling Europe.

It is true, as Sir Eric Drummond pointed out to me, that the misfortune of the league was to be born before peace was made in Europe, rather than after peace had been born. In a sense, it is not fair to expect the league to function highly while the old war is still unliquidated. I cannot, however, disguise my feeling that in the end, for the reasons whichI have tried to indicate, it may remain useful rather than becoming really a great power.

Finally, while there is every reason for increased American co-operation with many of its activities, I could discover no new or sound reason why, either for Europe or America, American participation should go beyond this limit.

SEA JUMP STATIONS READY FOR FLYERS

Dutch Harbor, Alaska, April 17.—With elaborate preparations already made, additional plans to facilitate the passage of an American army squadron around the world were being pressed at Dutch Harbor, Unalaska, tonight.

Snow was falling here, but reports received from Chignik, 900 miles eastward and the last stop of the expedition on the American continent, had indicated that three of the four planes engaged in the adventure would fly to Unalaska soon. The word from Chignik was that Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith, Lieutenant Erik Nelson and Lieutenant Leigh Wade, the fliers who reached that point while their commander, Major Frederick L. Martin, was stopped at Kanatak, 120 miles further back on the route by a leak in his crank case, were "getting hard boiled on Alaska weather."

Twice these three aviators had made a day's stage with an Alaska tempest rocking their machines and pounding hard Alaska snow into their eyes.

Last Wire Stop.

Here has been the last land station for electrical communication on the route of the fliers until they shall have reached Japan. Communication between here and the Kurile island, Japan, 1,756 miles further on, was to have been maintained by the cutters Haida and Algonquin, of the United States coast guard, which arrived in Dutch Harbor yesterday.

But Lieutenant Clayton Bissell, advance officer for the flight, announced today that he would place an emergency station on Atka Island, 350 miles beyond here and the next scheduled stop, at once.

Lieutenant Bissell, returning from the west, reported that buoys for anchoring the planes were ready at Atka and at Attu Island, 330 miles beyond Atka.

Protect Lives.

In maintaining communications and in otherwise aiding the fliers, the Algonquin and the Haida are to be assisted by the Eider, a small boat of the United States fisheries service.

Every effort is being made, Lieutenant Bissell disclosed, to make sure that whatever happens there shall be no loss of life.

Arrangements here provide that when the planes alighted in Unalaska Bay they should be towed by small craft to an anchorage.

Aboard the Haida was Major Blair, a weather expert of the government.

Monticello district conference is in session in Covington, Ga. Rev. John Harmon, presiding elder, will close its session tonight.

Prominent educators and ministers from all sections of the state delivered addresses to the conferences. Revs. J. A. Hadley, C. A. Wingfield, R. V. Thornton, J. H. McFarlin, J. W. Langster, W. C. Kelley, W. J. Williams, J. T. Johnson and others delivered special addresses urging more than 5,000 colored citizens in the district conference to remain on the farms and stop migrating to other sections.

More than $3,000 will be raised for Morris Brown university.

NEFF CHALLENGES RECORD OF M'ADOO

Dallas, Texas, April 17.—Governor Pat M. Neff, continuing his campaign in Texas for an uninstructed delegation to the national democratic convention, today challenged William Gibbs McAdoo to answer his charge that his record makes him unfit to be the democratic standard-bearer this year.

The chaotic condition of politics at present makes it unwise, Governor Neff said, to tie the Texas delegates to any candidate. The candidate selected today may be indicted tomorrow, such is the uncertainty of "this investigation age," he declared.

Governor Neff insists that he has nothing personal against either McAdoo or Senator Oscar Underwood. He said he could not criticise their professional conduct, but "when they aspired to become the standard-bearer of the democratic party in the year when it seems victory may perch on the democratic standard, that is a horse of another color."

Sen. George Requests Savannah Be Retained As Ship Board Office

Washington, April 17.—(Special.)—Senator George, of Georgia, requested the shipping board and emergency fleet corporation Thursday that the traffic department and general offices be not removed from Savannah to Charleston. The senator made his request in view of the removal of the accounting division at Savannah to Charleston.

According to official reports, the tonnage handled from July to December, inclusive, at Charleston, Savannah and Jacksonville, is as follows: Charleston, 14,699 tons; Savannah, 34,886 tons; Jacksonville 26,294 tons.

IMMIGRATION ISSUE.

ould seem a pity that the on of immigration should to come up at this time.

ith the bonus bill, tax revision, aterial investigation, supply bills, the like, congress already has hands more than full. Moreover, country feels that congress, in present state of mind, is not able of giving its best thought to question that is so fundamental, vital to the best interests of the ion as is that of immigration.

Congress is a bit on edge. arges and counter-charges of cor ption, coupled with the jockeying political advantage that has been manifest in recent weeks, have ely affected the equanimity of legislative leaders. Many of m have lost their temper — as ness the recent vote on the Jap se exclusion amendment — and igration is too serious a ques to be settled in the heat of ion.

ecretary Hughes and Senator , chairman of the immigration mittee, stand almost alone in osition to Japanese exclusion. the statement of Ambassador ihara, which suggested that the sage of a bill which should abso exclude immigration from Ja might lead to an unfriendly in his country towards the States, that this statement untimely and unwise, should en as a "threat" is ridiculous. ongress, however, has seen fit the matter in this light, and partment of state will doubt no little embarrassed.

gardless of the wisdom or lack wisdom of the attitude that has taken by congress with regard Japanese, it is certain that a strong public demand for ive legislation as to immi on.

is within the power of the d States to stop all immigra and when the time comes that h a step is not only desirable t also necessary for the public od, the step will be taken.

Just now, however, the number immigrants who shall be allowed enter our ports every year, their lection, their race—all this is a stion of policy.

ponents of the Johnson bill that it is inspired by intoler prejudice, and ignorance. point out that this is a coun of immigrants, that the same "America for the Americans" ised seventy years ago by the Nothings. They deplore the t for the first time America criminate between man and They vigorously attack the icious Nordic theory," which s that certain northern peo should be especially favored. an article in the New York es Current History Magazine April:

The northern peoples continued in vage state for thousands of years it is precisely the races which our erical anthropologist regards as sed and inferior, which he would de from formative America have laid the foundation for ver civilization the world now ses and which, in numberless in s, have reached such culture s as we are still able to attain, for all the aid of precedent and ex ample."

Doubtless civilization does owe much to India, to China, to Egypt; nor will the culture of ancient Greece and Rome ever be lost to s. But that we should continue to ject our immigrants from these urtries, ignoring the descendants f those northern races, which once ere savage, would be the height of ery race has every degree of tuality, granted, but the con s steadily growing that must pick her immigrants hem carefully if she is to fulfill her destiny—the building of a great race and of a greater nation.

In the past, the persecuted and oppressed of all countries have come to America. In the future, America must welcome not the oppressed only, but rather those who are mentally and physically qualified to be of real value to her. Our first duty is to improve our own stock—to see to it that those of foreign birth who are already here shall be true citizens, loving America, living and working for America. And education is the answer, for in education lies happiness.

There are three things of primary importance. First, we must determine how many immigrants we can afford to take each year; second, we must determine what races are best fitted to help fulfill the destiny of America; and, third, those who shall be permitted to come into our country and be one with us must be carefully selected—not at Ellis Island, but at the port of embarkation.

Then, and then only shall we be able to say to our immigrants, as Woodrow Wilson has said:

"You have taken an oath of allegiance to a great ideal, to a great body of principles, to a great hope of the human race. . . . And while you bring all countries with you, you come with a purpose of leaving all other countries behind you—bringing what is best of their spirit, but not looking over your shoulders and seeking to perpetuate what you intended to leave behind in them. . . . Because you bring dreams with you, America is more likely to realize dreams such as you brought. You are enriching us if you come expecting us to be better than we are."

THE MAYOR'S VETO.

Without taking issue in the slightest with Mayor Sims for his veto of the Armistead traffic ordinance, and commending indeed his statement that our greater need is a better enforcement of the laws we have rather than a batch of new laws which will make general enforcement of all even the more difficult, we do contend that one of the most crying needs of the hour in Atlanta is the establishment of through-town "traffic boulevards" on which there shall be the strictest regulations as to cars moving into such boulevards from intersecting streets.

These regulations should provide that the car coming into such a designated boulevard should come to a full stop before proceeding to wedge its way into the line of traffic.

As a matter of fact there are a number of intersections all over Atlanta, outside of the down-town districts, where this should be done anyway, and especially at certain hours of the day.

The new traffic ordinance provided for these traffic boulevards, and this feature was good, as were some of the other provisions. On the general proposition, however, that our needs for enforcement are paramount to our needs for more traffic laws, we agree heartily with the mayor.

The problem of parking and parking space is growing more difficult every day. With the tremendously large number of cars added to the normal traffic at the beginning of each warm-weather season the problem necessarily becomes more acute.

Many suggestions have been made—a great municipally-owned parking area being among them. Great automobile hotels, built high into the air, with elevators for cars, has been suggested. Something must be done, for "down-town parking"—and down town now runs away out into what used to be the suburbs—is the cause of much of the congestion and many of the accidents. In New York not long ago it was seriously proposed by a high authority to relieve congestion by closing the congested district to pleasure cars. But to draw the line between one automobile used for pleasure and one engaged in business might not be easy. Indeed it would be impracticable.

Might it not, however, be possible to provide for parking a great number of cars well outside the congested district by a well-worked-out system of supplementary transport? This applies specially to the multitudes of people from the suburbs or from out of town who leave their cars for a considerable time in one place. Some of them go to their work in the city, others perhaps go to the theater or go on foot for a round of shopping in streets close at hand leaving their vehicles until they are ready to return home.

Until recently it has been easy enough to provide for this need by permitting unlimited parking in streets adjacent to the business heart of the city. It is not easy now. Yet this part of the problem is not unsolvable. Sufficient parking space can be found provided it does not have to be too near the center. At present the limit is set by the distance which automobilists can conveniently walk after leaving their cars.

The Atlanta Safety council, in conjunction with the traffic committee of council, the police department and citizens generally, is working diligently toward a settlement of the traffic problem in Atlanta as far as it is physically possible to settle.

Atlanta's traffic situation is a serious one, but it is a serious problem in every great, busy city.

We must approach it in a spirit of cooperation, and not in a spirit of indiscriminate censuring.

We cannot sing your praise,
But Spring has no camp meetin' tunes
That any one could raise,
And at a frosty gate we wait
'Till Summer's on the blaze.

There's not a picnic plan;

To bless the shiverin' lan'
The birds were fooled with weather

Even though the world runs wrong!
We'll breast the stormiest river

Great world, where we are livin',
With its sorrow and its song.

Songs of the Old North State.

"Pearson's Poems" is the title of a volume of the songs that James Larkin Pearson, of North Carolina, has written. It is not his first book, but decidedly his best. The poems are, for the most part, songs of the home soil, the fields and the woodlands of his native state, as well as songs of love and faith. Mr. Pearson is the printer-poet of his state; also known as the man who invented and made "The Fool Killer," a newspaper of wide circulation. His work in the poetical line has made his name a household word in "The Old North State," and is worthy of the place it has made for the poet in the hearts of the people.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

ALUM IN THE MEDICINE CUPBOARD.

A doctor book which I can unreservedly recommend to discriminating people informs the reader who has paid his two dollars for a copy that alum is the simplest and cleanest astringent for local use. By that, understand, I meant no aspersion on other astringents which may be suggested in other doctor books. As an astringent, alum is none too clean, at that, though I know of none cleaner which a layman can safely use.

The dangerous dirt is the dirt which is invisable to the naked eye—the kind we see through the microscope.

A little powdered alum may be shaken into the grove where an "ingrowing nail" is seemingly cutting the flesh. It shrivels the raw, red fleshy mass—"proud flesh," granulation tissue—which developes in the groove and prevents healing. When applying alum to stop oozing or bleeding from a small cut or abrasion sprinkle some of the powder on a clean handkerchief or on a clean towel and dab it over the cut gently, or sprinkle the powder on the cut itself.

A solution of a teaspoonful of alum in a quart of hot water makes a mildly astringent gargle, wash or douche.

Stronger solutions, one or two tablespoonfuls of alum in a pint of water, may be mopped on the skin of the armpits or the feet or hands to relieve excessive sweaating, two or three times a week, allowing the solution to dry on the skin. The weaker solution (teaspoonful of alum to the quart of water) applied hot will often relieve intense itching (pruritis). The weaker solution is also a relief in some cases of chilblains and may be sprayed in the nose to stop nosebleed, or a tampon of absorbant cotton moistened with it may inserted in the nose.

Singers and speakers find alum useful to prevent hoarseness or huskiness of the voice. Dissolve two teaspoonfuls of alum in seven ounces of barley water and add two teaspoonfuls of honey of roses. Gargle once or twice with some of this shortly before singing or speaking. Honey of rosees may be had at any rose factory or behive. I have a still better gargle for singers and speakers. I'll be glad to mail it to any one who will provide a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

GOOD FRIDAY SERVICE AT FIRST METHODIST

A Good Friday service will be held at the First Methodist church at 10:30 o'clock this morning in the Sunday school room. The pastor will speak on "The Words From the Cross."

Just In Passing

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON

I had hoped that there would be no further occasion for me to refer, even inferentially, to the lie that Thomas J. Hamilton, of Augusta, a member of the famous (or infamous) secret cabal, had published in The Augusta Chronicle, and republished in an Atlanta afternoon newspaper, to the effect that I had attempted to "trade" with the Georgia Underwood manager for the national committeemanship.

Self-respect, however, demands that I do so.

When Hamilton made this charge, saying later that the information came to him from John W. Hammond, his Atlanta representative, in whom "he had every confidence," etc., I immediately wired R. C. Gordon, manager of the Underwood campaign in Georgia, and concluded it, "You know whether this is true or not; answer."

Mr. Gordon replied from Memphis that the Hamilton charge was absolutely and unqualifiedly false and added, "make this as strong as you like."

All of this wire correspondence I published in Monday's Constitution.

Despite the wire of Mr. Gordon, which was as emphatic as the English language could make it—a wire which proved the Tom Hamilton statement a lie by his own witness, as he had cited Mr. Gordon as proof—that now notorious cabalist came back in his paper with a lot of ex parte stuff, in which the veracity of Mr. Gordon was questioned, and a lot of wiggling and waggling and "explaining" on the part of Mr. Hammond.

He sent me all of that worm-wiggling junk for publication, and I returned it with the information that the Gordon telegram (branding him a liar) closed the chapter, so far as I was concerned.

Hamilton then published it in an Atlanta afternoon paper, which paper thereby assumed its proportionate responsibility in the false charge.

I cared nothing about that.

* * * *

In the meantime, however, Mr. Gordon, smarting under the unfair charges involving himself, reached Atlanta Wednesday night, and on Thursday voluntarily issued a signed statement, which he asked all papers to carry, and I shall take pleasure in incorporating it in this article.

It should be understood that following the Gordon telegram to me, giving the unqualified lie to Hamilton's charges, The Augusta Chronicle and subsequently The Atlanta Journal published the quibbling statements from Mr. Hammond still trying to justify the charge of his boss, Hamilton.

The voluntarily-issued statement of Mr. Gordon, who was in Atlanta Thursday, I hope will close the matter forever, as the Augusta-Atlanta discussion on Hamilton's part now is simply a scheme to keep on clouding the issue of usurpation of the rights and political liberties of the people of Georgia, such as has never been attempted until the secret cabal began to function in the "back room" of the Kimball.

The Gordon statement of Thursday follows:

To Whom it May Concern:

Being out of the state for two weeks or more, I have only today been able to review the correspondence between Mr. Hamilton and Mr. Holiomon in detail, and to learn how my name became connected therewith, and by whom it was first used.

Mr. Hollomon wired me that Hamilton had charged that Hollomon called at my room on a certain Sunday morning (10 o'clock it was, to be exact) and treated with me for the retention of Mr. Howell as national committeeman in the event Underwood carried Georgia.

There is absolutely no foundation for this statement and I so telegraphed Mr. Hollomon from Memphis on the 13th instant.

Mr. Hollomon, like some other newspaper men I know, did discuss the political situation with me that morning, but the committeemanship was only mentioned as he proceeded to leave the room by his remarking that it would be a shame if they (not the Underwood or McAdoo forces specifically, but "they") should turn Clark Howell out of his place that he had so ably filled for twenty years.

I confirmed the above by telephone to Mr. Hammond, and denied most emphatically that Mr. Hollomon had ever in any way, or at any time, mentioned a trade or compact with the Underwood forces, and stated further that I sincerely wished he had.

This is the plain unvarnished truth, and while Mr. Hammond has been very close to me for many months as a friend and coworker, yet I cannot permit any erroneous or misleading statements to go out with my name connected therewith, even though they might help a cause or adorn a political tale.

I personally resent my name being brought into this wrangle, but as it has been, I must insist that what I know and said be truthfully recorded, whoever it might help or harm.

And, by the way, I think it of very, very small consequence anyhow. R. C. GORDON.

Atlanta, April 17, 1924.

In John W. Hammond's statement in The Augusta Chronicle and Atlanta Journal, he used the following words:

"Moreover, the incident was again verified Saturday afternoon (yesterday) in the lobby of the Kimball house by the manager of the publicity department of Underwood headquarters, who was in a brief conversation with a prominent south Georgia newspaper editor and myself."

The "incident" referred to my alleged attempted "trade" with the Underwood manager.

As an answer to this, as to the Thomas J. Hamilton lie, I present the following telegram from Ernest Camp, "manager of the publicity department of Underwood headquarters":

Monroe, Ga., April 17, 1924.

James A. Hollomon, Atlanta, Ga.: The statement of Hammond that I verified any attempted trade between you and Mr. Gordon is wholly incorrect. As a matter of fact, I know nothing whatsoever of any such attempted trade and any statement quoting me to the contrary is without foundation.

ERNEST CAMP.

Another instance of taking their own witness to convict them.

The Randolph-Bell-Hamilton cabal must be desperate.

The World's Window

"Is It Nothing to You?"

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

There is a seething mob in the narrow streets. Hooting, yelling, jeering and sniggering taunts. Breastplates of Roman soldiers glitter in the morning sunshine. A rattle of arms. A sudden move to protect the prisoner in the center. For a vile beggar from the gutters tries to break through the cordon to spit on the passive face. A snarl from the centurion, applause from the mob, hisses, flouting and mocking gibes. There is a short halt, a wooden cross is brought from a carpenter shop. It is placed on the prisoner's shoulder. Then the march is resumed, a squirming, seething column of passion-heated human beings. Out over the road of sorrows to a hill in the distance. That is Jerusalem 2,000 years ago. The prisoner is Jesus Christ, son of Mary of Nazareth, a dreamer, one who called himself a king. There He goes to be nailed to the cross.

* * * *

He hangs on the cross. The midday sun is beating down on the bare hill. His hands are torn with the weight of his own body on the nails. Blood streams over His face. For there is a crown of thorns on His head. But from the tortured man's lips come gentle words for His mother, who stands at His feet. Overwhelming faith lies in the promise to the thief at his side: "Verily this day thou shalt be with me in Paradise." The sky darkens suddenly. The cross assumes huge proportions in the spreading gloom. It rises out of the earth as a terrible fantastic shape. The face of the sufferer can not be seen any longer, but His voice is heard again. Not in Hebrew, nor in Latin, but in the tongue of his mother, the speech from the land of Galilee. For it is in the hour of greatest agony that man returns to his mother's tongue. "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" Not yet is the end. Other words must be spoken. At last they come. "It is finished. Father, in Thy hands I commend My Spirit." That is voluntary death. So speaketh One who commands death. So dieth not a mere human. So died Jesus Christ, Son of God.

* * * *

Down at the foot of the cross stands the captain of troops. He has warred in Spain and Germania. He has borne the eagles of Rome in faroff Gaul, he has seen cruelties and atrocities. He has seen men die by the thousands. But never saw he such a scene. Anxiously he cast his eyes from the darkening sky to the figure in the center of the three crosses. What supernatural mystery is here? The earth trembles, there is panic among the spectators. The Roman stoic beats his breast. "Verily this man was the Son of God."

* * * *

In the marble palace of the proconsul a silent man walks up and down. His hands are folded across his breast. His white toga is draped around his shoulders. He is Pontius Pilate. Remorse has come to him after the condemnation. Mature reflection has convinced him that he has shed innocent blood. To the messengers from Calvary who come with a request he thunders in blazing anger. He will not change the inscription over the cross. "Go ye hence. What I have written, I have written." That's the last we hear of Pilate, the Roman jurist, the representative of Caesar, who prides himself on justice and right. Remorseful, bitter, disillusioned and cynical he passes into history, and his place knows him no more.

* * * *

Preparations for Easter are going on in the palatial residence of the high priest. The candles are burning and the meats and viands for the holidays spread a delicious aroma. Caiaphas is in a joyful mood. He has with him as guest his father-in-law, Annas. They discuss the crucifixion. Their eyes are brilliant with fanatic passion. Their hatred for the cursed Galilean distorts their noble patrician faces. But there is satisfaction. The heretic is dead. Word has just been brought from Calvary's hill. He who called himself a king, who went about undermining the authority of the Torah. It is a good day. Easter will be a splendid feast.

* * * *

Supple Oriental dancing girls are swaying to and fro. Slaves carry trays with food and golden wine vessels. Incense and exotic perfumes pervade the atmosphere. There is the irresistible rhythm of sweet, intoxicating music. On a gilt throne languishes Herod, king in name. A load has fallen from his shoulders. A messenger has just told him that the Nazarene has given up the ghost on Golgotha. He sighs with relief. No longer will that specter of John the Baptist disturb his sleep. For he had an idea that Jesus was the Baptist risen from the dead. And it was Herod who ordered John executed. But now his mind is set at rest. He orders more wine, he commands the orchestra leader to strike up the latest melody from fashionable Rome, and he drinks himself into a senseless stupor.

* * * *

Out in the slums of Jerusalem there is a little gathering. In a backroom, upstairs. At the foot of the stairs a man stands on guard. In the bare room there is sorrow, overwhelming grief, intense affliction. A man walks up and down, silently. That is Andrew, the brother of Peter. In a corner sits a woman. She cannot speak. Her grief is too great for words. That is Mary, mother of Jesus. Someone lays a hand on her shoulder as if to comfort her. That is John, the beloved disciple. Suddenly the door bursts open. A man enters, his eyes stare wildly before him. His chest is bare and covered with blood. He is beating himself with a stone in Oriental fashion. That is Peter, who betrayed his Master. He runs to Mary and buries his head on her knees. Mary's hand strokes his head. That is forgiveness. The most sublime instance of mother love in all the ages.

* * * *

The moon is chasing high in the cloudy sky. Dogs are snarling below in the valley. They are fighting over bones. Human bones. The bones of Judas Iscariot. He who sold his Master and in terrible agony of self-accusation hanged himself, fell downward from a cliff when the cord around his neck snapped in twain.

* * * *

Rumors pass through the bazars of the city. There is a hint that the veil in front of the Holy of Holies has been rent in twain. That darkness at 3 o'clock? That earthquake? Can it have anything to do with the death of the man from Nazareth? Conjectures, opinions, boisterous bravado, yet secret anxiety. The people are worried about their own words before Pilate in the morning: "His blood be on us and upon our children." It's a dark hour in the world's history.

* * * *

Soldiers are gambling by torchlight in front of the tomb. In that tomb lies the body, wrapped in fine linen and spices; last tribute of secret friends. It is the hour of evening sacrifice. The festivities for Easter have begun. But the priests are worried and ask that the tomb be sealed. Out in the garden sleeps Jesus, waiting the Resurrection morn.

Bits of New York Life

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

Thoughts while strolling around New York: Millinery girls carrying their boxes and reading paper-backed editions. A slight shower. Almost as good as Belasco could do it. And the sun pops out again. The old woman near the Plaza who cries: "Violets for your sweetheart!"

A movie star in an electric brougham. She gazes at gapers with a slight tinge of insolence. After all, they made her. Handsome William Courtenay. Still the Beau Brummell. Whatever became of Robert Hilliard? The gaudy and glittering splendor of the jewelry shops.

The girls have stopped wearing flapping galoshes. Goody! A "Lecture on Color." There's Rodman Wanamaker. The sheik influence in cafes. There's one called "The Desert." What next! What next! Soon Coney will open again. How desolate and white it is in the winter.

That line haunts me: "It is the little children, running up the road before us, who hide death from our eyes!" A famous lawyer who resembles Lincoln. A severe, brown-fronted mansion where a gambler lives. And has a hall of fine paintings.

Since the Knickerbocker bar closed one never sees a professional southerner. And one wonders who gazes now at Maxfield Parrish's Old King Cole. Frank A. Munsey. Lean as a sapling. And a steady first nighter. Wonder what paper he's going to shoot out from under the boys next?

The old Garrick theater. Musty with age-old romance. Apples 30 cents each. I used to go buggy riding for 20 cents more. And everybody cries save, save, save. Just try to do it. Sandwich men bearing their crosses with a martyred air.

Sam Harris, the theatrical man. Another shower. And no rubbers or anything. The silver gleam of the Hudson. Factory girls smearing pale cheeks with dabs of red. A side-wheeler churning to Albany. Spring—tra-la-la is peeping through Jersey hills.

The tragedy of a play that dies a-borning is a disheartening spectacle. The other evening I watched a play doomed to die the second evening. The notice had gone up on the bulletin board: "We close following this performance." Here were stage people miscast who had rehearsed for many weeks—hoping against hope. Tomorrow meant the dreary round of the agencies. Long waits and perhaps another failure yet tonight they must be light-hearted and gay.

The old Barnegat Light, which for almost a century has stood guard over the shoals of the Jersey coast and sent warning signals against treacherous seas, is soon to become a tradition of the Atlantic. The sea has gradually washed away the base. Barnegate Light was first erected in 1835 on the north end of Long Beach.

A question bureau has opened in a Fifth avenue building. It seeks to supply information on any subject about New York to visitors. The fee is $10 a year. High optimism seems to have inspired the backers for the truth is that nearly every big hotel and all the big terminals have information bureaus that dispense all information free.

Speaking of railway terminals, there is a plan now to have a joint station for suburbanites to relieve the strain on the Grand Central and Pennsylvania.

Fifteen years ago at the old Astor house lunch counter downtown one could have a filling lunch of chicken pie, creamy mashed potatoes, brown bread and a foaming tankard of nut brown October ale for 30 cents. The same lunch at a smart uptown hotel—sans ale—is exactly $1.95. In those days New York was without a rival for its cuisine. Today its cuisine is mostly indegistible French pastry and ice water.

The Cabal's Letter to Delegates An Insult to Their Intelligence And an Affront to the Women

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON

The propaganda, alleged to have been issued by Miller Bell at Milledgeville, and "indorsed" by Hollins N. Randolph in Atlanta—both of whom are members of the secret cabal that hand-picked delegates to the state convention from all of the 160 counties in Georgia without consultation with the county democratic or McAdoo committees—in an attempt to stem the tide of indignation sweeping over Georgia at the effort of the cabal to estop the traditional pre-convention district conferences, is of the same unfair, high-handed, dictatorial and deceptive type, as that of the other unthinkably tyrannical acts of the conspirators since the primary of March 19th.

It will be recalled that in Thursday's paper we smoked the cabal out on this proposition.

I knew of the letters that were going out to delegates all over Georgia directing, in the guise of a suggestion, that the old and time-honored democratic policy of district conferences be abrogated, in the interest of the manipulators for a hand-picked slate of delegates to the New York convention, and as we never fail to do under such circumstances, we exposed the scheme in no mincing of words.

Following that exposure the cabal issued, under a Milledgeville date line of April 17th, a letter sent to all the Georgia delegates to which Miller Bell added that he was gratified at "the large number of favorable rseponses already received."

Therefore, as it takes some considerable time for a letter to find its way to the addressee, and the reply to find its way back to the addressor, the admission is made—though perhaps unwittingly—that the letters seeking to abrogate the democratic and political home-rule custom of holding district conferences, were mailed several days ago.

Then why the secrecy until the scheme was exposed in Thursday's Constitution?

The conspirator always works in secret and tries to run to cover as quickly as found out. That has been particularly the record as to the strange and mysterious manipulations of the secret cabal.

Very well! Let's proceed—

The following is the letter, sent to the delegates several days ago, as "smoked out" of the cabal by The Constitution's exposure of Thursday morning:

"The women voters throughout the state, through their votes and active interest, contributed substantially to the overwhelming victory won by Hon. William G. McAdoo in the recent primary. We feel that the women voters are entitled to representation in the selection of delegates, both from the state at large and district delegates to the national democratic convention to be held June 23, next. The convention alone can settle this question and give direction as to the percentage of the representation the women should have.

"In view of the fact that it is a question for the convention to settle, we respectfully suggest that it would be better to postpone the caucuses to be held by the congressional districts, for the selection of their delegates to the New York convention until after the convention convenes and fixes, by resolution, the number of women delegates to be sent to the New York convention. We hope this suggestion will meet with your approval and request your cooperation in deferring the district caucuses until after the convention settles this question. When it is settled, the order of business can provide that a recess be taken for the purpose of district caucuses. As information, we will state that each congressional district will be entitled to four delegates to the New York convention, each with one-half vote.

"We are enclosing herewith copy of the resolution passed by the subcommittee, held at their meeting in Atlanta Saturday, April 12, recognizing and ratifying the authority given to us by Mr. McAdoo to appoint his delegates and alternates to the Atlanta convention."

My! What a weak and feeble effort to placate the women voters, thousands of whom did do valiant service for Mr. McAdoo, and whose right of suffrage gives them an equal status with the men voters, in every political voice, and in every political responsibility!

The unvarnished fact, however, is that only about 10 or 12 per cent of the delegates and alternates to the state convention are women, and the agreement has already been reached by the cabal that only 25 per cent of all the state delegates to the national convention shall be women. I know that to be a fact.

That is not all—

Listen to the words from the letter insult the intelligence of every demo requesting the abolition of the pre convention district conferences—

"As information we will state that each congressional district will be entitled to four delegates to the New York convention, each with one-half vote."

Think of such a deliberate attempt to deceive the women of Georgia—indeed, the McAdoo people generally.

I knew of the contents of this letter long before we "smoked it out," and I knew that statement was false. The Constitution wired Hon. Richard Linthicum, of the national democratic committee, for the facts. Here is his reply:

"Washington, D. C., April 17. "The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. "Attention James A. Hollomon: Resolution does not apply to congressional districts but only to delegates-at-large. It is only a recommendation and not mandatory both with respect to the number of delegates-at-large and to one-half the delegates-at-large being women.

"Herewith paragraph of resolution referred to in full: 'Resolved, That no state or territory shall elect any number of delegates, with their alternates, in excess of the quota to which such state or territory may be entitled under the basis of representation herein indicated; provided, however, that in order that opportunity may be afforded to various states to give adequate representation to women as delegates-at-large without disturbing prevailing party custom, there may be elected four delegates-at-large for each senator in congress with one-half vote each in the national convention; and, further be it recommended to the states, that half of the delegates-at-large shall be women.' Am mailing copy of resolution.

"RICHARD LINTHICUM."

Therefore the intention of the cabal seems to be to fool the district delegates into believing they can send four delegates to New York, one to be a woman, and when the delegates get to New York to then tell them that only two can be seated, which is the fact as shown above.

Then where would the women delegates from each district be?

That's problematical!

Was there ever such a burning cause for holding preconvention district conferences when the cabal deliberately attempts to fool the women and the other convention delegates in this matter?

Only two delegates, Mr. Randolph, from each district, and you know it!

The cabal must, in its manipulations, give the women a 50-50 deal or ignore them entirely. There is no speculation about that; no convention problems about it. It is as plain as a peak in a prairie, and the scheme to take advantage of the women, and of the delegates, in this manner is unworthy of even the secret cabal, and a direct affront to the women voters of Georgia.

Why didn't the cabal frankly admit that there could be eight delegates-at-large, with one-half vote each?

Because—

Because Randolph, Bell and Hamilton each wants to be a delegate-at-large, and the Lord knows how many others have been promised, but who are not on the hand-picked slate already made.

They knew if the delegates should understand that eight instead of four could be appointed that there would be a disturbing demand that some of these pre-primary promises be made good.

Also as plain as a pot leg!

Was there ever before such an attempt, by secrecy and deception, to usurp the rights and privileges and political liberties of the people?

NEVER!

Let's read some more of that remarkable letter:

"We hope this suggestion will meet with your approval and request your cooperation in deferring the district conferences," etc.

Thus wrote the conspirators!

"COOPERATE!"

That is to say, "we shall fix the organization, committees, list of all the delegates and so on, anyhow, in spite of you, but we hope you will 'cooperate'!"

Brazen affrontery!

And I might go on. The letter reeks with deception and convicts itself of its one purpose—

And that purpose is to manipulate the convention at the will of the conspirators, with the delegates as helpless as babes in the woods—

Although Mr. McAdoo has sounded a warning that he is opposed to manipulated, back-room controlled conventions.

Why doesn't the cabal give the delegates and alternates credit for sense and judgment and democracy?

FLORIDA DELEGATES PLEDGED TO COOLIDGE

Palatka, Fla., April 17.—Florida's ten votes in the national republican convention today were pledged to President Coolidge by the Florida state republican convention, in ses- sion here. The delegates will go to Cleveland instructed.

Virtually every county in the state was represented when the convention, in what has been forecast as one of the most important the party ever held in Florida, got under way at 11 o'clock.

Charges that the "old line" dele- gates were "hand picked," and that the call for the meeting to select del- egates had actually been chosen, was made by the so-called "lily white" faction at a caucus last night. The executive committee, after listening to the charges, went into secret session and decided to seat both factions, giv- ing each delegate a half vote.

Inauguration of the primary sys- tem and elimination of the negro from the party in Florida were antici- pated as the outstanding features of the convention.

Today's business before the meeting was the qualification of delegates.

The D. V. S. society is not a politi- cal organization, but seeks the men of each class who by their unselfish work and high ideals have gained the recognition of the honor, which is considered the highest honor that can be conferred upon a student.

SMITH FOR PRESIDENT ORGANIZATION BEGUN

New York, April 17.—Formation of an organization to shape the campaign to obtain consideration for the name of Governor Al Smith at the national democratic convention has been begun by New York democrats.

To date, not a penny has been ex- pended in favor of the governor, his supporters say.

A headquarters with an adequate staff is to be opened and workers will be sent throughout the country to tell elected and potential delegates of the new Messiah.

Governor Smith is not participating in the erection of this pre-convention scaffolding, according to the organ- izers.

MORE TRUCKS ADDED FOR CLEAN-UP DRIVE

Assignment of a special motor truck to answer "clean-up week" calls ex- clusively will be considered by the sanitary committee of city council at the regular session this afternoon, Chairman W. E. Saunders announced Thursday.

Chief John Jentzen, of the sani- tary department, announced Thursday that the last three days of the clean- up and paint-up campaign increased the quantity of garbage eighty tons over the same three days of last week and despite addition of a new squad- ron of three big motor trucks to the garbage collection fleet, facilities of the department are being hard pressed to keep pace with clean-up activity.

Will Use New Trucks.

An additional squadron of three more motor trucks is to be put in service by Wednesday of next week and plans to abandon use of 30 trash carts that may be postponed if the present clean-up activity continues, members of the committee stated.

The sanitary department has dis- posed of 671 tons of garbage during the last three days of the clean-up campaign, most of it going to the in- cinerator and surplus going to trash dumps in outlying territory.

The plan of the committee to re- lieve the immediate congestion, before the new trucks are secured Wednes- day, is to have one truck stationed at a central point to be sent out at the request of residents who tele- phone the sanitary department that they have cleaned up their premises and want the rubbish removed. Chief Jantzen has been filling requests with the regular route trucks this week, but the number has grown to such proportions as to make them difficult to handle in that way.

STREET REPAIRS RUSHED FOR OPERA.

An additional street repair gang was thrown Thursday into the work of putting all downtown streets in perfect condition for grand opera week, it was anounced by Chief of Construction William A. Hansell. Thirty laborers under two foremen are now engaged in the repair work.

Walton, Mitchell and Gilmer streets were repaired by the gangs Thurs- day. Work on those streets is to be completed and two more started by the construction forces today.

The intensive street repair drive was launched by the city Monday after a survey made by Mrs. B. M. Boykin and Miss Susie Wailes in the "clean-up, paint-up, keep-up cam- paign" now in progress.

NEGROES STAGE CLEAN-UP PARADE.

The negro division of the "clean- up, paint-up, keep-up" campaign staged its second parade and pageant Thursday along Maple, Tattnall, Nel- son, West Fair, Chestnut, West Hun- ter and Mitchell streets, led by the Morehouse College band. All pupils of the Edmund A. Ware school and several hundred from other negro schools participated.

As the paraders moved through the west side negro sections, they gathered buckets full of rubbish and started trash bonfires all along the line of march.

A mass meeting terminated the pa- rade on Mitchell street and Rev. Rus- sell Brown spoke on health and clean- liness there. The negro division held its first clean-up parade Monday along Auburn avenue.

LAYMEN LEAD REVIVAL AT OAKHURST CHURCH

Oakhurst, Ga., April 17.—(Spe- cial.)—Rev. J. O. Brand, pastor of Patillo Memorial Methodist church, here, has introduced an innovation in pre-Easter revival methods. Instead of sending for an evangelist, or doing his own preaching, he has enlisted lay workers of his church. The music and singing have been notable features of the meeting, which is now in its second week. George Connor is di- rector of a choir of about 50 voices.

The Epworth league had charge of the service Thursday night. The sub- ject was "What Will You Do With Jesus?"

Friday night the service will be in charge of the Woman's Bible class, the subject "The Ideal Home."

There will be no services Saturday, while on Sunday the revival will end with the Sunday morning message by the pastor, the subject being "Im- mortality."

McKellar Strikes At Campaign Gifts In Senate Bill

Washington, April 17.—Restriction of campaign contributions is proposed in a measure just introduced by Sena- tor McKellar, of Tennessee, as a re- sult of disclosures made in the scan- dal investigations.

McKellar's bill provides that:

No corporation may contribute more than $500 to a presidential campaign nor $100 to a congressional contest.

No candidate for president may spend more than $10,000 in his own behalf, no senator more than $5,000, and no congressman more than $5,000.

Total campaign contributions of senators should be limited to $10,000 and congressmen $5,000.

No national political committee would be permitted to spend more than $1,000,000 during a campaign nor to collect more than $1,000,000 for deficits afterwards.

Finesh with up to two years' impris- onment are specified for violations by individuals and corporations would lose their corporate existence and pay fines up to $20,000.

ALBANIA BANDITS KILL 2 AMERICANS

Athens, April 17.—It is rumored here that two men from the steam yacht Corsair, belonging to J. P. Morgan, of New York, have been mur- dered at Tirana, Albania.

The rumor lacks official confirma- tion.

The yacht Corsair, with J. P. Mor- gan and Mrs. Morgan on board, left Naples last month for a cruise in the Adriatic and Mediterranean seas. Late in March the Corsair was re- ported as cruising among the Greek islands.

Robert L. Coleman, of San Fran- cisco, and George B. de Long, of New York, recently were murdered by ban- dits near Tirana.

ALBANIAN MINISTER SAYS REPORT UNTRUE.

Rome, April 17.—The Albanian minister, at a late hour tonight, said he had received no report from Al- bania regarding the report that two additional Americans had been killed by bandits at or near Tirana. He added that in view of the fact that he had received no information, he believed the report untrue.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK GOOD, SAYS MELLON

Washington, April 17.—Secretary Mellon regards present business as in an ebb but considers the condition as not highly consequential, it was said today at the treasury where it was disclosed also that the general situa- tion had been discussed at a recent cabinet meeting. Most of the cabi- net, it was said, holds the same view as the treasury head, who believes that there is sufficient new business originating to check the present ten- dency towards a lessening in activity.

The credit situation is regarded by Mr. Mellon as good and indications at the treasury point to little sent- iment prevailing for tampering with the rediscount rates of the federal re- serve banks. The reserve board itself has only one or two members holding the view that changes in the discount rate are advisable at this time. The others, who are in the majority ap- parently, have become convinced that the same purposes can be accomplish- ed through control of open market operations of the reserve banks, as can be had by alteration of the redis- count charge.

Some of the cabinet members regard present business conditions as pro- pitious in that the stocks held by most retailers are low and their re- plenishment imminent.

The cabinet generally believes, it was stated, that the administration's efforts toward relieving agriculture have met with a degree of success and that the results will be much more apparent in two months. President Coolidge takes the view, it is under- stood, that the farm relief program has been directed properly and his advis- ers insist that the returns to the farm- ers this year will prove the wisdom of the new course adopted.

B. AND O. SHOPCRAFTS ASK 1921 WAGE SCALE

Baltimore, Md., April 17.—Twenty thousand members of the federated shopcrafts organization on the Balti- more & Ohio railroad have filed a re- quest with road officials for a con- ference to consider restoration of the pay scale in effect on July 1, 1921. The increase sought would amount to three cents an hour for mechanics, four cents for stationary engineers and five cents for other classes of employees.

PLAY BALL DRAWS 14,216 TO NEW PARK

band did some startling stuff in the way of drilling. The Elks' part of the program was complete, since Fat El- rod was directing activities.

It was about 3:05 when Umpires Bill Brennan, Campbell and Pigue got together with Bert Niehoff, Crack- er manager, and Les Nunamaker, the Chattanooga pilot. This was a signal for the artistic Mathewson who has photographed everything and every- body of any importance in North and South America, and his fellow cam- eramen to get busy.

The conference between managers and umpires came to an abrupt end, however, when R. J. Spiller trotted out on his own new field, followed by a secretary, who carried a huge floral design in the shape of a horse- shoe. It developed that these flowers didn't belong to Mr. Spiller just then, for President Martin, coming from an opposite corner of the field, took pos- session of the horseshoe as soon as he got to the home plate. Then, with a few words of greeting and express- ing his best wishes for the Crackers, he made the flowers the property of Mr. Spiller.

Score One for Governor.

Governor Walker was the next dig nitary to come in for introduction to the crowd and his part in the cere- monies. He pitched the first ball to Manager Niehoff of the Crackers. The governor made a perfect throw. In fact, he threw the ball exactly into Bert's glove at a distance of some- thing like 20 feet. The governor may not know it, but he probably broke the record for distance in that cere- mony of pitching the first ball.

Manager Niehoff, remembering that Governor Walker has a couple of size- able sons, presented the ball to the executive as a souvenir to hand to the boys.

Then the game got under way. It was sort of a quiet crowd at first. It stayed unusually quiet from the time the governor threw the first ball un- til the middle of the second half of the first inning. Zoellers had singled and was on second after Burrus, Cracker first baseman, grounded out to Bates, the Chattanooga second baseman. McCabe flied out to center field, and Ben Paschal, the big ber- tha of the Crackers, was at bat.

Zoellers Comes Home.

Roe, the Chattanooga pitcher, put a good one over the plate. Paschal swung hard and hit a two-bagger in- to right field that brought Zoellers across the plate for the Crackers' first run. Pandemonium broke loose. It gave the immense crowd its first opportunity to show what it could do in the way of cheering, shouting, yell- ing, screaming and every other man- ner of noise-making.

After that first outbreak, it was easy for the 14,000 people there to let the Crackers know they liked what they were seeing. It wasn't a selfish crowd, either. Roe, the Chatta- nooga pitcher, struck hard luck in the second inning and walked a flock of men. Yowell was sent in to pitch, and he couldn't break the walking streak that had settled on Roe. Camp went in and broke the Cracker hik- ing club's activities. When he did the crowd gave him just as much ap- plause as it had given the Crackers on their spectacular plays.

From then on the applause came repeatedly. Everybody was happy ex- cept Les Nunamaker and his crowd of ball players and probably they couldn't help absorbing a little of the good feeling in spite of their defeat.

That crowd, the Crackers and the Lookouts (somebody had to be the loser), gave Atlanta a real opening day. Incidentally, a bouquet to Mr. Von Herrmann, our estimable weath- er prophet, if he had anything to do with keeping the water shut off until the game was called.

$1,400 BOGUS BILLS FOUND HID IN CAR OF MAN, IS CLAIM

Waycross, Ga., April 17.—(Special.)—J. A. Williams, who gave his home address as Daytona, Fla., was practicing or anticipated practicing counterfeiting on a wholesale, according to Officer Smith, of the local force, who says he discovered a package containing 28 counterfeit $50 bills neatly strapped to the bottom of the seat in Williams' car tonight. Williams was arrested here Wednesday when he is said to have attempted to pass a $50 bill on the manager of a local filling station in payment for a tire.

A thorough search of the car yesterday and again today by federal secret service men failed to bring to light any additional evidence, but on going over the car this afternoon, Officer Smith discovered the hiding place of the bills. Williams is in jail here awaiting the arrival of federal officers, who were notified immediately after his arrest.

"Saint Elmo."

(At the Lyric.)

Three more performances will end the Lyric players' revival of the old classic "Saint Elmo" and leave the stage clear for the production next week of "Irene." Tonight, Saturday afternoon and night close the week for the exciting romance of the old south, based on Augusta Evans Wilson's novel. "Irene" is to be staged lavishly with a chorus of 20 Atlanta boys and girls.

Vaudeville.

(At Loew's Grand.)

Arthur Ashley, noted screen and stage actor, who became famous as the star of "The Man Who Came Back," will be at Loew's today and tomorrow, closing a most successful week as the headline attraction of a well-balanced bill of vaudeville. Mr. Ashley, with the assistance of Miss Clement, presents one of the scenes from "The Man Who Came Back," and with great dramatic ability, "Desire" is the feature picture.

"Sporting Youth."

(At the Howard.)

The fastest auto race ever shown on the screen which is one of the features in "Sporting Youth," starring Reginald Denny, which is playing at the Howard this week, is creating quite a bit of excitement in all quarters. The patrons of the theater have actually stood up and cheered as the hero in this remarkable speed picture tries desperately to overtake his opponent who holds the lead in the last lap of the great race. Reginald Denny is at his best in this picture and in the support is beautiful Laura LaPlante.

"Flowing Gold."

(At the Metropolitan.)

Not since the days of '49, during the epochal rush to the gold regions of California, has this country afforded opportunity for real virile and rugged romance such as that found in the great oil fields of Texas.

And every possibility for dramatic action and thrilling incident of that locale has been included in "Flowing Gold," that is being offered at the Metropolitan theater this week.

"The Man Next Door."

(At the Rialto.)

The daughter of Old Man Wright, who has grown up without a woman's care, petted and pampered by an indulgent father and everyone of the hard-fisted cowpunchers who comprise the staff of the 20,000-acre ranch over which she roams at will; who can shoot, ride and rope a steer, and who is transformed into a young debutante in an eastern finishing school but learns that true happiness lies not in riches but in love.

SONG AND DANCE NUMBER PLEASES FORSYTH AUDIENCE

It's a merry road to vaudeville, according to Herford Hartwell, Pearl Morris, Tommy Baldwin and Grace McFail and their unique offering of song and dance, "The Road to Vaudeville," which tops the bill at Keith's Forsyth theater Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The act is filled to the brim with fun, well-executed songs and dances that will delight the average vaudeville patron.

The bill also includes a clever comedy playlet, the offering of George Alexander and Company. Sam Adams and J. P. Griffith add their share of humor to the program with a novel presentation called, "A Music Lesson," which is a humorous illustration of the vicissitudes of the musical instructor. While many did not understand why Charles F. Semon should be billed as "The Narrow Feller," all were delighted with his act, which is a decided novelty. Ross Ellis and Rose present a novel, hazardous number called "The Jumping Jacks." A Pathe newsreel in which are several "shots" of the opening day crowds and participants at Poncy park are shown and an installment of Aesop's Fables completes the bill.

REPARATION BODY ORDERS GERMANY

to make nominations for the various posts which are to be created under the Dawes report and it is expected that these nominations will be submitted some time next week, after which the commission will name its own allied and neutral representatives, such as a member for the bank of issue committee and two for the committee dealing with industrial mortgages.

These are purely executive appointments, as members of the fund transfer committee cannot, however, be made until the plan is ready for actual operation. Some of the holders of these posts have already been designated in the experts' reports, notably the director of the reichsbank to be director of the bank of issue, and the railway experts Sir William Acworth and M. Leverve.

The reparation commission lays particular stress on the unanimity with which the document was approved today; they point out that their decision followed logically the decision taken on Friday past. Their sole desire, it is explained, is to get the big work under way as soon as possible, putting in the background any controversy as to whether certain recommendations of the experts run counter to the treaty of Versailles.

It is considered most unlikely that the reparation commission can find anything in the Dawes report of an anti-treaty nature, but as one member expressed it: "If Germany and the allies agree on a common solution, what does it matter if it is outside the treaty?"

As a special courtesy Dr. Ruppel, the new president of the war burdens commission, and other German members attended today's session.

Matrimonial Bark Launched

HUBBY EXAGGERATED MEANS, NAGGED, WIFE, 19, SAYS

By Elopement Hits Snag, Sinks

Macon, Ga., April 17.—(Special.)—Two months ago a beautiful school girl's romance reached a climax with the elopement from Bessie Tift college at Forsyth of a pretty sophomore with her prince charming. Today the romance ended.

The filing of a petition for divorce in Bibb superior court today revealed the blasted romance.

On January 19, 1924, Miss Augusta Wadsworth, 19, disappeared from her dormitory at the Forsyth institution, leaving two notes to her classmates.

"When you read this I will be married and on my honeymoon," they said.

The groom was James Allen Harrison, of Greenville, S. C., formerly of Rome, Ga. Later notes told of the "supreme happiness" of the couple.

In her divorce petition today Miss Wadsworth states she had been led to believe that Harrison was a young man of considerable means, with a good position and ample income for two. His stories of his financial condition proved to be "fabulous misrepresentations," according to the petition. When the young bride discovered it, she says her young husband "began to nag, cruelly and unjustly, telling her that he did not love her."

This cruelty, the petition states, forced the young woman to leave him, returning to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wadsworth, March 12, just a week less than two months from the date of the elopement.

Dinner by Presidents' Club To Open New Hotel Tonight

The first of a series of functions to open the new Atlanta Biltmore hotel will be held tonight, when the Presidents' Club of Atlanta, with prominent guests, will gather in the Georgian ballroom of the new caravansary for its annual dinner. Mell R. Wilkinson, life-president of the club, will preside as toastmaster.

Dinner will begin at 7 o'clock, but prior to the seating of the honor guests at the speakers' table, an informal reception will be held by President Wilkinson in parlor "A," where those at the speakers' table will meet John McE. Bowman and William Candler, the financiers who constructed the Biltmore.

F. J. Paxon, vice president and chairman of the executive committee of the Presidents' club, has announced that guests must present their tickets of admission at the door of the Georgian ballroom, where they will be shown to their seats by an attendant in charge. Tickets should be preserved to prevent confusion, Mr. Paxon cautioned.

Engagement Year Old.

The President's club engaged the ballroom of the new hotel more than a year ago for the occasion, when an approximate date of the opening became available.

After the invocation, to be delivered by Dr. J. B. Mitchell, and the dinner, greetings will be extended by Governor Clifford Walker, Mr. Bowman, Mr. Candler and other distinguished guests and Eugene R. Black, one of the city's most able orators, will deliver an address on the Presidents' club, "United for Public Advancement." Macon's greetings to Atlanta will be delivered by R. L. McKenney, of Macon, and Dr. Carter Helm Jones, pastor of the Second Baptist church will talk briefly on the topic, "In and Out."

Mr. Bowman and Mr. Candler, promoters of the hotel enterprise, will also deliver short talks to the gathering, after which Bishop Warren A. Candler will pronounce the benediction.

Official Public Opening.

The official public opening dinner dance and inauguration of the Biltmore hotel will take place at 8 o'clock Saturday night, with a brilliant assemblage of prominent people from all parts of the United States in attendance.

Enrico Leide and his orchestra will furnish music for dancing, and the Rainbow orchestra will be under the direction of Rolf.

The reservation list has been closed, more than a thousand applications having been made to attend this notable event.

Leonard Schultze, of the firm of Schultze & Weaver, the architects, who has designed some of the greatest hotels in this country, is here to participate in the official dedication.

John McEntee Bowman, president of the Bowman group of hotels, stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast, arrived here Thursday night from New York.

Earl Carley, mayor of Bellaire, Fla., and vice president of the Bellview at Bellaire and the Griswold at New London, Conn., also arrived Thursday. Mr. Carley declared the Atlanta Biltmore was one of the finest hotels he had ever entered in architectural construction, furnishings, refinement and location.

Constitution Bureau.
Masonic Temple Annex. Phone 1069.

Rome, Ga., April 17.—(Special.)—Millard Simms shot and seriously wounded Will Swint last night, near his home on the Lindale Pike, because Swint persisted in paying attention to his sister, he told police.

Simms called the sheriff's office and asked them to come and get him after the incident. He stated that he had warned Simms numerous times to stay away from his sister and that Swint paid no attention to him. He said he became disgusted with Swint's actions and hid near the house last night. When he saw Swint approaching the house he fired, the bullet entering Swint's right leg. He was taken to a local hospital where physicians state that his condition is serious. Simms was arrested but released on bond.

The case will in all probability go to the jury tomorrow, court officials say.

HASTY DIVORCES WARNED AGAINST BY JUDGE BELL

Warning against hasty divorces with a strong appeal that husband and wife learn the philosophy of "give and take," and that differences be settled out of the court room, Judge George L. Bell, of the Fulton superior court, Thursday scored the divorce evil in Atlanta and plead for harmony and understanding in the home.

Children, he declared, in referring to the alimony suit of Mrs. Alice Weekley, 57 St. Charles avenue, against her husband, Charles K. Weekley, are the paramount consideration in separation suits.

The three children of the couple, Mary, Charles and Elizabeth, ages from five to nine years, were in the court room during the hearing. Judge Bell said that the happiness of the children affected him most and they were to be considered foremost in the proceeding.

Mrs. Weekley was awarded $25 a week temporary alimony and given control of the home on St. Charles avenue.

Judge Bell expressed the hope that the differences in the Weekley family might be patched up so that there would be no separation. Mr. Weekley was granted the right to see his children whenever he wished.

Foreman O. C. Bradberry, of the American Agricultural Chemical corporation, who was severely injured Thursday afternoon in a fall from the top of a freight car at the company's plant in East Point, was said by surgeons at the Grady hospital Thursday night not to be seriously hurt.

Bradberry, who lives at 173 Hemphill avenue, in some manner lost his balance while standing upon a box car and fell to the track below.

Tobacco was introduced into the Philippines from Mexico in the sixteenth century.

DANIELS DECLINES USE OF HIS NAME

Raleigh, N. C., April 17.—The definite assertion by Josephus Daniels, former secretary of the navy, that he was not seeking presidential honors, his request that his name be not put before the convention for its indorsement, and the awarding to women of four of the nine delegates-at-large to the democratic national convention were the outstanding events of the session of the state democratic convention here today.

Mr. Daniels' statement, in the form of a letter to the Raleigh Daniels-for-President club, averted what for a few moments promised to develop into a tense situation.

The women won their spurs as delegates-at-large by an overwhelming majority, which was made practically unanimous by acclamation when most of the opposing county delegations, hastening to get on the band wagon, changed their votes from "nay" to "aye" on the resolution giving them representation.

Wilson Death Deplored.

The convention adopted a platform indorsing the state administration, deploring the death of Woodrow Wilson as untimely and a loss to the nation and the world, commending the action of the last general assembly in appointing a ship and water transportation commission, reviewing the achievements of the democratic party in the state along educational, social and humanitarian lines, and praising and calling attention to the road program of North Carolina and its resultant system of hard surfaced roads.

The platform was unanimously adopted.

The delegates-at-large to the democratic national convention elected were Josephus Daniels, former secretary of the navy; Governor Cameron Morrison, former Lieutenant Governor C. Max Gardner, State Chairman John G. Dawson, Colonel Wiley T. Rodman, commander of the North Carolina American Legion; Mrs. Palmer Jerman, of Wake; Miss Mary Henderson, of Rowan; Mrs. J. J. Fearing, of Pasquotank, and Miss H. M. Berry, of Orange.

Soldiers Complimented.

The vote for Colonel Rodman was in the nature of a compliment to the former service men of the state, and was carried through under a suspension of the rules after the other eight delegates had been elected. The delegation will have four votes at the national convention and each delegate will have four-ninths of a vote.

Walter B. Siler, of Trenton, and D. F. Giles, of McDowell, were nominated as candidates for presidential elector on the democratic ticket, which in North Carolina is practically equivalent to election.

ARREST BROKAW ON TWO COUNTS

Macon, Ga., April 17.—Edward Andrean, alias Brokaw, confessed, according to the police and postoffice inspectors this afternoon, that he is Fred Harrold Brokaw, of Puyallup, Wash., near Tacoma, and that he has defrauded persons in various parts of the country out of more than $1,400. He said he has served two years in San Quentin Prison, Cal., for the same offense and is now on parole from that institution.

Brokaw was closeted with the officers for three hours, during which it was announced, he apparently came clean with the whole story of his frauds. He got information on which to operate from the Export Register, Federation of British Industries.

Formal charges of forgery and obtaining money under false pretenses were booked against Brokaw late this afternoon, in connection with an alleged $150 fraud worked on W. F. Lamoreux, of Copper Hill, Tenn., a few minutes before Brokaw was placed under arrest.

Many Cities Involved.

The confession, which officers said Brokaw made, told of his alleged operations in Hartford, Conn., Chicago, St. Louis, York, Pa., and several other Pennsylvania cities, Boston and Springfield, Mass.

Plennie Minor and B. Donaldson, of Solicitor Boykin's office, Atlanta, were here late today aiding the local police in their investigation of Brokaw.

While Brokaw's partner, J. K. Biegger, of New York, does not appear to be involved in the frauds, according to the police, he is being held on a technical charge of loitering.

After serving two terms at San Quentin prison, Brokaw told the police, he tried to reform and kept out of trouble for two years, being furnished money by his father, whom he says is a retired lumber man.

Needed Quick Cash.

Need for quick cash got him back into the old rut, he said, and he used names from the list of directors of prominent business houses to carry out the schemes.

The name used here was that of Edward Andrean, of London, Ont., whom Brokaw said he ascertained was a friend of W. F. Lamoureaux, of Copper Hill, Tenn., and also of the Birmingham man whom he wired for money. The latter happened to know that Andrean was in London and suggested to the local police that they investigate the man seeking money, the arrest following.

Brokaw is 32 and says he is an artist.

Big National Park Urged for Georgia By Habersham Club

Cornelia, Ga., April 17.—(Special.)—The national park proposal was endorsed here today at a meeting of the Habersham club, a local civic organization, and a committee instructed to take whatever action necessary in to locate it in Rabun county, Georgia.

Members of the committee are C. Cronwall, of Cornelia, secretary of the club; J. A. Grant, of Alto, and R. H. Black, of Cornelia.

J. M. Kitchen, president of the club, presided, and outlined plans for the park. He stated that it is proposed to locate it in Raburn county, Georgia and in Macon county, North Carolina.

"Macon county has already begun paving a road through the grounds and Rabun county will begin shortly," he said. "Habersham county, Georgia, has agreed to take up the road at the Rabun county line and extend it through Habersham to connect with roads from Atlanta. This would give a continuous paved road from the heart of Georgia into North Carolina," he said.

"Prominent citizens from all sections of the state hate endorsed the national park idea. We propose to make it one of the largest in the United States, and it can become a reality if we will get behind it. The Habersham club will push the project, taking the matter up with business leaders, civic organizations and clubs of both states concerned. North Carolina will cooperate with committees from Georgia in the matter."

FORD WILL PAY HOSPITAL BILLS FOR ATLANTA MAN

W. L. Pethel, a building contractor, Thursday afternoon left for Detroit where he will be treated for the unusual disease of blastimycosis at the expense of Henry Ford, the automobile magnate, and by his physician.

Pethel, who has been a patient at the Grady hospital for a number of weeks, will be accompanied by Jesse Mercer, who acquainted and enlisted his with Pethel's ailment and enlisted his interest and help.

Blastimycosis, though very infrequent in this country, has puzzled medical authorities. It is believed to be conveyed to a human being through the saliva of a cow. This is sometimes done when a man's skin is pricked by thorns and weeds where cows have been grazing.

Everett, secretary of the Americus and Sumter county chamber of commerce, and John Bowen, agent here for the Seaboard railroad, announce that the Seaboard's "chicken special" will be operated between Americus and Helena, Friday, April 25.

New York, April 17.—The cotton market was very quiet today and after a fairly steady morning, turned easier under preholiday liquidation. May sold off from 30.54 to 30.20 and closed at 30.33. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 14 to 24 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of four to 15 points in response to relatively steady Liverpool cables. There was selling on the more favorable showing of the weather map and reports of continued poor demand for cotton goods which eased prices off several points during the forenoon. The market steadied up again, however, on covering promoted by the larger export for the day. July advanced to 29.00 and new crops recovered most of the early losses, after which the demand tapered off and the market weakened owing to rumors of further price-shading in the goods trade and reports of an easier early afternoon tone in the stock market. July declined to 28.66 and October to 25.00 and last prices were the lowest of the day on all positions except May, which increased its premium over July to 167 points at the close, compared with 158 points at the close yesterday.

SPOTS IN NEW YORK.

New York, April 17.—Cotton spot quiet; middling 30.70. Cotton futures closed barely steady. May 30.33 to 30.35; July 28.66 to 28.70; October 25.00 to 25.05; December 24.40 to 24.41; January 24.07.

TAME AFFAIR AT NEW ORLEANS.

New Orleans, April 17.—The cotton market was rather a tame affair today compared with recent sessions. It was influenced mainly by pre-holiday conditions. After opening higher on cold weather in the western belt and favorable Liverpool cables, May, July and October traded 10 to 27 points above the previous close but the market soon turned easier. Despite occasional rallies of small proportions the trend was downward on realizing in advance of the holidays and prices reached the low levels of the day in the last few minutes with May down to 30.33, July 28.42 and October 24.30, or 35 to 43 points down from the high of the morning. The close was at the lowest showing net losses for the day of 12 to 21 points on old crop months and 19 to 25 on new crop positions.

After the higher start the market was under the influence of the impending triple holiday. Such rallies as occurred were due to shorts covering to even up commitments and the gradual decline was brought about by longs realizing, not wishing to allow trades to remain open during such a protracted holiday. There was very little if any new buying or selling. The selling during the afternoon while mainly due to evening up for over the holidays was helped by a report that the price of ginghams had again been reduced in northern markets and prospects of fair and warmer weather in the west. Rumors to the effect tenders on May contracts in New York might reach 10,000 bales was also a bearish influence. The New Orleans and New York markets will be closed tomorrow and Saturday and the Liverpool market in addition to being closed on those days will also remain closed on Monday.

News, Views And Reviews

Stock Letter.

FENNER & BEANE.

New York, April 17.—Brokerage loans are at the lowest in about two years and the short interest is becoming overcrowded. In spite of the contraction in business, it seems as though some lines must be pretty thoroughly liquidated. Certain stocks may go still lower but after a little further irregularity we look for an upward movement of considerable proportions. We still favor public utilities, rails, oils and coppers.

Cotton Letters.

POST & FLAGG.

New York, April 17.—There can be little question that the amount of goods needed is very large in all parts of the world and this is fully confirmed by the vigorous efforts made by foreign spinners to secure raw material here which in the exhausted condition of interior supplies merchants find it well nigh impossible to furnish. Daily fluctuations are not a fit subject for estimate, but unless the legitimate factors which have always operated to determine prices fail entirely to function the short position in the spring and summer months will in due course prove very costly.

FENNER & BEANE.

New Orleans, April 17.—The trade appears mostly inclined to wait developments in May or the weather before taking a stand, though many are now claiming that the recent weather has been beneficial as a whole.

ORVIS BROS. & CO.

New York, April 17.—Exports to date are 4,857,000 compared with 4,219,000 last year but the most glaring part of this picture are exports for last year of only 848,000 bales between January 31 and April 17, whereas this year they are 1,056,000. This shows that during the period after which spinners and merchants knew individually what spinning had taken place that demand for cotton kept good. This would argue that business is going good and the movement and consumption of cotton are as full as supplies warrant. Our favorable view of the price of cotton is unchanged.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO.

New York, April 17.—Prospects are for further bad weather in the western belt, but little attention has been paid to that today. Market will be closed from tonight until Monday morning and Liverpool will be closed until Tuesday morning.

E. B. NORMAN & CO.

New Orleans, April 17.—The outlook seems to be for a further display of bullish sentiment after the holidays, so far as the old crops are concerned at least.

New York, April 17.—Under the leadership of United States government obligations, several issues of which established new top figures for 1924, bond prices generally moved into higher ground today. Improvement in the market's tone was helped by the ready subscription of new offerings.

Institutional buying of Liberty bonds, combined with the easing of money rates, stimulated activity throughout the government list, sending the first and fourth 4 1-4s to par for the first time this year and carrying the treasury 4 1-4s to a new record price of 101 10-32. Purchases were believed to be for accounts of both the British and United States governments.

With liquidations of the Japanese 6 1-2s still in progress, the price dropped 5-8 to 90, which was 2 1-2 points below the subscription price. Weakness continued in the Oriental development 6s, another Japanese issue and the bonds yielded 1 3-8 points. Other foreign obligations, however, were firm.

A broader tone for high grade railroad liens was reflected in stiffening prices throughout this list, with a number of speculative rails displaying independent strength. Sugar and rubber bonds improved with the advance in stocks.

Award of the $10,000,000 Illinois service compensation bonds to a New York banking syndicate on a bid of 100.197, it was said, would be followed by public offering next week, probably on a 4 per cent yield basis. New York bankers also announced today the purchase of $5,000,000 short term 5 per cent Swedish treasury bills which were placed privately without a public offering.

DAILY STOCK FEATURE

YELLOW CAB: Yellow Cab continues to be the feature of today's market and declined several points to a new low of 58. The erratic action of this issue stamps it as an extremely dangerous speculative proposition and purchases should only be made by traders who fully realize its danger.

REPUBLIC WIRE & STEEL CO.: Republic Wire & Steel Co. for the quarter which ended March 31, 1924, has reported net profits amounting to $1,356,158 after taxes, interest, depreciation, etc., or the equivalent of $3.06 a share on the $30,000,000 common stock outstanding.

SINCLAIR: It is understood that reports of the Sinclair corporation for year ended December 31, 1923, to be issued shortly will show a deficit of approximately $1,300,000 after all charges and taxes. This compares with net profit of $14,761,743 or $3.24 a share on the 4,491,892 no par common shares after preferred dividends in 1922.

More Short Covering Brings Further Advance in Stocks

High, 1924, 101.24; low 90.83.
Twenty railroads averaged 81.95; previous day 81.60.

New York, April 17.—Pre-holiday dullness characterized today's stock market which developed moderate strength on a resumption of short covering operations by professional traders.

Steel shares gave one of the best demonstrations of group strength, net gains of a point or so being registered by United States Steel common, Bethlehem, Republic and Crucible. Some of the buying in this group was in expectation of an optimistic statement by Chairman E. H. Gary at the annual stockholders' meeting of the United States Steel corporation next Monday.

Active buying of Southern Pacific, which advanced nearly 2 1-2 points to 90 7-8 was one of the late features. Other strong spots in the railroad group included Norfolk & Western, Lackawana, Frisco and Reading and Lehigh Coal "rights" all up 1 to 2 points. Another sharp reduction in car loadings apparently was ignored.

Weakness again cropped out in the motor and motor accessory group, Chicago Yellow Cab and Yellow Cab closing at net losses of 3 1-2 and 4 points, respectively. Fisher Body broke 4 points. Studebaker old stock touched 86 and then fell back to 85 5-8, up 1-4. Possibility of unfavorable dividend developments has been an important factor recently in the selling of the motor shares, one of the latest companies mentioned in this connection being the Eaton Axle and Spring, directors of which are reported to be considering either the reduction or passing of the dividend due to be declared next week.

Publication in the financial district of an interview with Secretary Mellon in which he stated that the New England textile industry was in a period of depression was used as an excuse for a bear attack on American Woolen which was hammered down more than 3 points to 65, a new 1924 low. It rallied later to 66 5-8. New lows also were established by American Sugar Refining common and preferred at 53 1-4 and 88 1-2, respectively.

Oils held relatively firm despite a sharp increase in domestic crude production, special buying being noted in Cosden and Phillips Petroleum.

Call money opened at 4 1-4 per cent and then dropped to 4 where it closed. Time money and commercial paper markets were quiet with no change in rates.

Foreign exchanges held relatively firm on the light volume of trading. Demand sterling ruled just under $4.35, and French francs were quoted around 6 1-4 cents. Another break in Japanese yen carried them down to a record low around 40 1-4 cents.

GAINS ARE SEEN IN WHEAT MARKET

Chicago, April 17.—Higher prices witnessed in the wheat market today were largely a result of attention given to consequences of the possible enactment of the McNary-Haugen bill. Wheat closed unsettled at half to 7-8c net advance, May $1.02 7-8 to $1.02 7-8 @1.03, and July $1.05 to $1.05 1-8, with corn varying from a shade decline to 1 cent gain and oats a shade to 3-8c up. In provisions, the outcome ranged from 2 cents off to a rise of 5 and 7 1-2 cents.

It was contended by a leading authority that if the McNary-Haugen bill became a law an attempt would likely be made to establish $1.25 and perhaps $1.50 a bushel as the ratio price on wheat. Under such circumstances, traders showed considerable disposition to avoid the selling side of the market, and to purchase a good deal more freely.

Besides, there were complaints of lack of reserve moisture in the spring wheat states and of delay to seeding in Canada. Prospect of a liberal reduction of the acreage of domestic spring wheat this season received more notice, too, than has heretofore been the rule, and so likewise did the fact that primary arrivals were less than half the total a year ago. Near the end of the day, however, part of the advance was lost through sales to realize profits.

Corn averaged higher in sympathy with wheat and owing to smallness of receipts. There was also a slightly improved shipping inquiry from the east.

Oats displayed independent strength, all of the 2,000,000 bushel stock at Duluth being reported sold except 225,000 bushels.

Provisions at first were eased by the downward trend of hog values, but were later affected in the opposite direction by grain.

GRAIN LETTER.

Chicago, April 17.—WHEAT: There was a rather drastic change in sentiment and advancing prices met with little opposition until sufficient advance had been made to make profit-taking attractive. There was no general broadening of interest, but there was no important selling pressure and the short covering took in some interests that have previously withstood all opposition since last November. The situation did not reflect an improvement in the trade so much as it did a spreading conviction that bull headed opposition to political influence is useless in prevailing conditions. Seaboard indicated 300,000 to 400,000 bushels worked for export. There were also sales of 200,000 bushels to go to store. Liverpool will be closed until Tuesday. Dullness in export circles is expected to result. Some local experts placed a bullish construction on condition in the northwest with respect to moisture in the American northwest and delayed seeding in the Canadian northwest. The outstanding argument against short selling at present is the impending McNary-Haugen bill, which, if passed, either the house or senate, would result in a reflection of bullish sentiment, even though it might ultimately be vetoed by the president.

CORN: Profit taking developed on the late bulge but offerings were well taken as the impending holiday and the indications of continued small receipts discouraged short selling. Cash basis firm with shipping sales 75,000 bushels. One hundred thousand sold to go to store. Weather conditions generally favorable for spring planting and this leads to expectations of an unusually large acreage. Recent selling of September has been based on this and reports indicate reduced feeding operations. There is a growing belief that the deliveries on May 1 will be well taken.

OATS: Trade fairly active with buying of a good character on strong cash news and limited offerings bringing a good upturn. On the advance there was profit-taking on resting orders; 100,000 sold to go to store.

PROVISIONS: Extremely dull. Firmness in grains a sustaining influence. Hogs 5 cents lower; top, $7.55.—Fenner & Beane.

Detroit Industrial Figures Still Show Gain Over 1923

BY R. L. BARNUM.

New York, April 17.—With tomorrow a holiday and many leaving to be gone over the week-end, the stock market was very quiet. Steel common was the feature of the market on yesterday's prediction by the Iron Age that if existing demand continues steel buyers who bought heavily in January and February will be back in the market next month.

Average daily production of crude oil throughout the country shows another increase, this time 38,350 barrels. However this statement was offset by the report made by the commission on oil reserves appointed by President Coolidge that the over production now under way is only temporary.

Industrial employment in Detroit for the week is reported as down 652 to 236,976 against 225,081 for this time last year. Compared with the 1924 peak of employment reach in February there has now been a decline of 5,355; but against the 1923 high made last May there is still an increase of 7,005.

Sales of structural steel for March were estimated today by the department of commerce at 184,600 tons against 189,800 for February and 241,800 for March of 1923. March shipments were 169,000 tons or 65 per cent of capacity contrasted with 153,400 tons or 59 per cent of capacity for February.

For the second week the average prices of eight principal iron and steel finished products show no change. The figures remain at $56.59 a ton Pittsburg.

Secretary Mellon, whose business judgment as far as Well street is concerned stands second to none, expressed the belief today that business conditions generally are good. He says there is a lessening of activities in spots due to the small amount of new business offered.

Directors of Norfolk and Western are scheduled to meet next Tuesday and elect a successor to President Maher, who has reached the age limit under the pension plan which applies to all employees from the president down. A. C. Needles, now vice president in charge of operation and traffic will be his successor, it was said.

Silk made a new low for the year today. Demand here has been falling off. President Rubens, of United States Industrial Alcohol, told the shareholders of the company today that the directors would declare a dividend on the common stock as soon as it became reasonably certain that the rate declared could be maintained.

Cities Service reports for March show a gross of $1,803,000, an increase compared with a year ago of $26,000. The surplus after dividends was $1,182,000 a gain of $98,000. For the quarter gross was $16,631,000, an increase of $988,000 with the surplus over dividends $8,681,000, a gain of $921,000.

DEPOSED BANKER DIES SUDDENLY

Kansas City, April 17.—John M. Moore, deposed president of the Fidelity National Bank and Trust company, died at his fashionable apartment home today without making a statement as to a discrepancy of $600,000 which had been found in his accounts.

Mr. Moore left the bank complaining of illness shortly after the shortage was discovered last Friday. Later that day Mrs. Moore found him lying unconscious on the bathroom floor at their home. Moore rallied only slightly Monday noon and was unconscious from then until his death.

Physicians said the banker was suffering from a recurrence of a diabetic condition that became critical Friday.

Moore was removed as president of the bank Monday at a meeting of the directors at which time the shortage in the accounts was made up. The board of directors in a statement said the bank was sound and that the deficit had been made up in part with more than a quarter million dollars of securities owned by Mr. Moore and his bond of $100,000. The remainder of the shortage was charged out of the surplus and undivided profits of the institution.

Moore had been president of the bank since its reorganization in 1916.

5 NEGRO BURGLAR SUSPECTS TO FACE JUDGE SATURDAY

Trial of five negro burglar suspects arrested recently by Detectives E. W. Ginn and Joe E. Wiley has been set for Saturday afternoon in police court. Hearing was delayed in the hope of recovering additional loot.

The loot was recovered by Officers Wiley and Ginn in a raid staged upon a negro house at 33 Davis street, following arrest of three suspects. Clues gained by the officers at the time of the raid brought about arrest of the other two.

The negroes gave their names as Percy Ivey, Jesse Tribble, Robert Davis, Roy McAfee and Oliver Ivey.

Another arrest of importance, in the opinion of the detectives, was that of Vincent Harris, negro, who is suspected of being an auto accessory thief. He was taken into custody Thursday by the same officers and accused of stealing a suit case containing typewriter supplies from a parked machine.

SHOWERS ARE DUE, WEATHER COOLER, TODAY'S FORECAST

C. F. von Herrmann, official weather forecaster for Atlanta and vicinity, again predicts "showers and cooler" for today. This has been the prediction for the last two or three days and, until late Thursday, the showers failed to appear.

However, they are coming, says Mr. von Herrmann, and the fact that they have traveled from the midwest at an unusually slow rate doesn't make their ultimate arrival any less certain. They should be here today, beyond doubt, he asserts.

Temperatures remain about normal, running a little over 70 degrees Thursday afternoon, and 58 degrees at 7 a. m. Thursday.

JAIL ATLANTA WOMAN AS CHILD KIDNAPER

Roanoke, Va., April 17.—The four-year-old daughter of Rev. J. R. Cooper, Methodist minister, was kidnaped late last night by four unidentified assailants after they had attacked and severely beaten the preacher in his home here. The police said they were informed the kidnapers were accompanied by Mrs. Jack Lane, of Atlanta, Rev. Cooper's former wife.

A few hours after the abductors had sped out of the city in an automobile, fighting off friends and neighbors who came to the minister's assistance, a telephone message from Bedford, near here, reported the detention of a party of five motorists and a child answering the general description of the kidnapers.

Jailed in Salem.

Birmingham, Ala., April 17.—Mrs. Ida Lou Lane, divorced wife of Rev. J. R. Cooper, and four other persons are in jail in Salem, Va., on charges of assault with intent to murder and kidnaping as a result of the abduction of the four-year-old daughter of Mrs. Lane and Rev. Cooper at Roanoke last night an an assault upon the minister, according to G. M. Edmonds, attorney for Rev. Cooper here.

The couple came prominently into the public eye here several months ago when the minister sued B. M. Holcombe, a dairyman and member of his congregation at Union Hill, near here, on charges of alienating the affections of his wife. Rev. Cooper lost his suit. A suit over the custody of the child is pending. The minister had custody of the daughter pending settlement of that case.

No relatives of Mrs. Lane could be located in Atlanta Thursday, and it could not definitely be ascertained whether she ever resided in this city.

personal hygiene

Physicians strongly discourage the use of poisonous, irritating or burning solutions for personal hygiene. In addition to the danger of having them around, they eventually injure delicate tissues and membranes when used strong enough to have real germ-killing power.

Zonite is non-poisonous and non-irritating. It may be used regularly strong enough to destroy bacteria without harm to the sensitive tissues of the body. It has ushered in a new era of effective and safe personal hygiene.

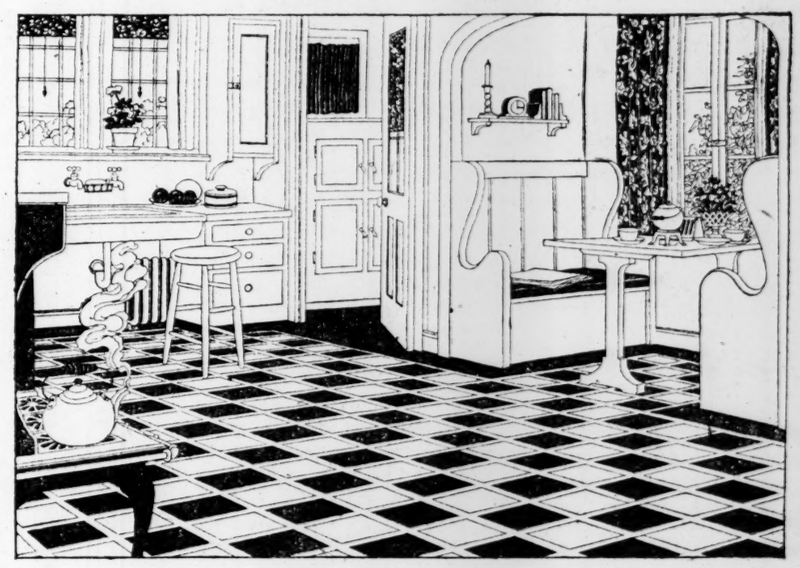
Armstrong's Linoleum

for Every Floor in the House



For Kitchen and Breakfast Nook

Armstrong's Inset Tile Inlaid Linoleum is the floor of this attractive kitchen

"When you build your house, that's the time to lay linoleum floors"

THE architect was discussing with Mr. and Mrs. Judson the plans for their new house. They asked him about linoleum floors, not only for kitchen and pantry—that was decided—but for other rooms as well.

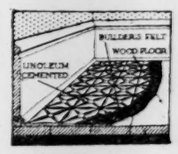
"We believe in them," said the architect. "In fact, we are recommending them right along both in new homes and in houses we are remodeling.

"Floors need attention almost from the day you start planning a house until you sweep them for the last time. But the linoleum floor is less of a care than any other kind.

"With linoleum we can get color harmony in floor, walls, and ceiling. Whatever you choose for such a room—furniture, rugs, curtains, lamps, pillows—will look better when you have that foundation color note to build upon.

"Of course a fine linoleum floor is laid according to definite specification. It is cemented down—not directly to the wood underfloor, but over a lining of builders' deadening felt, which is pasted to the wood. Then, no matter how the wood base expands or contracts in summer and winter, the linoleum doesn't crack or stretch or wrinkle. Waterproof cement used at the edges makes it water-tight, a really permanent floor that should last as long as the house itself.

"You will find that linoleum floors make very easy housekeeping, Mrs. Judson," he continued. "They never need refinishing. Linoleum floors are thoroughly waxed once or twice a year. Going over them on cleaning day with a dust-mop moistened with liquid wax takes up the dust and renews the polish, and is an easy task indeed."



Linoleum properly laid makes a permanent, water-tight, good-looking floor.

Presidents' Club To Initiate Social Events at Biltmore

The Presidents' Club of Atlanta will celebrate the tenth anniversary of its founding with a brilliant dinner at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel this evening at 7 o'clock. Seventy-five men's organizations are represented in the Presidents' club, composing a representative and distinguished group of men. The distinction of being the first Atlanta group to gather within the magnificent hotel which throws open its doors today, was sought by the Presidents' club immediately following the announcement that far-visioned men of Atlanta were planning to crown the city with this palatial hotel. More than a year ago the place and date was decreed for the elaborate social event which will be attended tonight by the most outstanding men of Atlanta and Georgia accompanied by their wives.

Dinner will be served in the Georgian ballroom, and the modified Adam treatment of columns and ceiling will present an artistic background for the many handsome costumes which will be worn by the wives of the presidents and the special guests of the occasion.

Mell Wilkinson, president of the club for life, will preside, and Governor Walker will be the official representative of the state of Georgia. Colonel Frederic J. Paxon, vice president, is chairman of arrangements.

Members of the executive committee include W. O. Foote, secretary; Ivan Allen, treasurer; Robert C. Alston, Preston S. Arkwright, Lee Ashcraft, Eugene R. Black, W. H. White, Jr., J. Epps Brown, W. D. Ellis, Jr., V. H. Kreigshaber, Wilmer L. Moore, Edward P. McBurney, Alfred C. Newell, Robert B. Pegram and E. L. Quinn.

The distinguished honor guests, William Candler, of Atlanta, and John McEntee Bowman, of New York, will be seated at the speakers' table and surrounding them will be a group of well-known Georgians.

Garden Week Is Celebrated.

One of the most beautiful entertainments given in celebration of National Garden Week took place Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the auditorium of the Atlanta Woman's club.

Thirty-five talented young pupils of Mrs. Charles E. La Fontaine participated in dances interpreting "The Spirit of Flowers."

The children were dressed in flower costumes and the program was artistic and appropriate as to the ideas of children aiding in celebrating National Garden Week.

Mrs. Joe R. Bracewell, a talented musician, served as accompanist for Mrs. La Fontaine's program.

Miss Helen Bagley, pupil of Miss Carolyn Cobb, gave several readings very appropriate for Easter Sunday.

Robert Bryan Harrison, director of the school, will preside and extends a cordial invitation to the public to attend.

Garden Club Will Visit 'Hills and Dales'

The members of the Peachtree Garden club will motor to LaGrange today where they will be the guests of Mrs. Fuller E. Calloway at her handsome home, "Hills and Dales."

Luncheon will be served to the guests promptly at 12:30 o'clock and those who motor down are requested to leave the city in time to reach LaGrange by that hour.

The gardens surrounding the magnificent Calloway home are some of the oldest and best known in this section of the country and it is a distinct compliment to the Garden club to be given the pleasure of visiting them. They are noted for their formal hedges of boxwood, which, planted before the war between the state, have grown to great height, for their large collection of foreign plants and flowers, and for the originality of arrangement which is their chief charm.

The gardens are especially beautiful at this season of the year, with quantities of white and purple wistaria and yellow Banksia roses in full bloom. The members of the club will spend the afternoon hours inspecting the gardens and greenhouses, returning to Atlanta at a late hour.

Miss Katherine Roberts Weds W. J. Bone, Jr., at Home Ceremony

An elaborate wedding of interest to a wide circle of friends throughout the state and characterized by great beauty was that of Miss Katherine Roberts, younger daughter of Mrs. Henrietta Baker Roberts, and Walter Jennings Bone, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Bone, which was solemnized Thursday, April 17, at 8:30 o'clock in the evening at the home of the bride's mother on St. Charles avenue.

Dr. C. B. Wilmer, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church, performed the beautiful and impressive wedding service in the presence of relatives and numerous friends.

An artistic selection of appropriate music was rendered with Lohengrin's wedding march heralding the approach of the bridal party.

Beautiful Decorations.

The home was decorated with ferns, palms, smilax and Columbia roses, white hyacinths and narcissi. The reception hall was attractive in its graceful arrangement of palms and pink roses. The winding stairs was adorned with garlands of smilax and varied spring blossoms seemed a fitting descent for the happy bridal party. Garlands of white ribbons, tulle and smilax formed an aisle leading to the large library where an improvised altar of ferns and palms lent a rich and pleasing background for the Easter lilies in tall pedestal vases and the Cathedral candelabra bearing white tapers.

Mrs. Fain Coleman Thompson, the bride's sister, was matron of honor. She was lovely in a gown of pink crepe interspaced with bands of rich, rare lace, while a girdle of dainty French flowers added a touch of color to her costume. She carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses caught with tulle.

Miss Mary Frances Baker, a cousin of the bride, was her only bridesmaid. Her becoming gown of pink crepe with ruffled panels of val lace and a soft-crushed girdle of chiffon completed a pleasing picture. Her flowers were pink roses.

Preceding the bride came the little flower girl, Martha Crawford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Crawford, in a gown of blue, rosetted with blue and pink ribbons and cream lace. She carried a basket of sweet spring flowers to strew with beauty the pathway of the bride.

Radiant Bride.

The bride, who was radiantly beautiful, entered with her brother, Fain Coleman Thompson, who gave her in marriage. They were joined at the altar by the groom and Charles M. McPherson, of Chicago, who acted as best man.

The bride's exquisite wedding gown of white crepe interwoven with crystal and silver beads was fashioned in perfect harmony with her charming piquant brunette beauty. In soft mistiness the veil of tulle and rich old rose point lace encircled the bride's head and fell in graceful folds to the floor, while a coronet of orange blossoms and pearls fastened it to her soft dark hair.

She carried a bouquet of white roses showered with valley lilies.

An informal reception followed the ceremony. Receiving the guests were Mrs. Henrietta Baker Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Bone, Sr., and the bride and groom.

In the dining room the color scheme of pink and white was accentuated by silver baskets of Columbia roses and white swansona. The bride's table was covered in rich laces. A silver basket filled with pink rosebuds and valley lilies gave its charm while the bride's cake in snowy whiteness, embossed in pink roses, graced the center on an ancient silver stand supported by cupids encircle with rosebuds and valley lilies. Four silver candlesticks bearing unshaded pink tapers and silver comports of pink and white decorated mints completed the table appointments.

Punch was served on the enclosed garlanded porch from a crystal bowl embedded in the beauty of smilax and bridal wreaths. Mrs. James Roy Holloway presided at the table.

Mrs. Charles Mathew Powell kept the bride's book.

Mrs. Roberts, the bride's mother, was attractive wearing a gown of orchid and silver lace, veiling satin of the same shade. A corsage bouquet of Ophelia roses and sweet peas completed the costume.

The groom's mother, Mrs. Bone, wore a becoming gown of crepe in peach-blossom tulle embroidered in lusterless white beads with a corsage of pink roses.

Prominent Families.

The bride is of noted English ancestry, paternal and maternal, the youngest daughter of Mrs. Henrietta Baker Roberts and the late William B. Roberts, who is well remembered as a most valued official of the Bell Telephone company. His mother was Miss Anne Allison, a member of Virginia's aristocracy.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Bone. His father is a gentleman of influence and held in high regard in Atlanta. He is connected with the Queen Insurance company. He is a graduate of the Georgia School of Technology in the class of 1919 and a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity.

During the evening Mr. Bone and his bride left for a wedding trip to places of interest in Florida.

The bride's traveling costume was a smart model of midnight blue charmeuse. Her coat was a handsome spring design in broadcloth. The becoming hat of black milan with rhinestone ornaments across the front completed an exquisite costume.

Atlanta Music Club Presents Miss Bartholomew in Recital

The Atlanta Music club departed from its usual morning programs in presenting Miss Eda E. Bartholomew in an organ recital at Westminster Presbyterian church last Wednesday morning. The innovation was a happy one and afforded great pleasure to those in attendance.

Miss Bartholomew, long known as one of our leading organists, offered a program that brought forth the full artistry of her playing, embracing compositions of several periods from the golden era of Bach and Handel to our own days.

That Miss Bartholomew thoroughly understands the possibilities of the noble instrument was evidenced in the varying interpretations she gave of the many dissimilar styles of music covered by her program. Nothing, indeed, could have been finer than the contrast between her scholarly rendition of the severe classicism of Bach and her sympathetic expression of the haunting dreaminess of the "Andante Cantabile" of Tschaikowski. Miss Bartholomew has the true artistic instinct with not overloading her work with color. Color she has in abundance, but it is judiciously displayed. One is not overwhelmed by a bewildering mingling of tone qualities, and her finest effects are often achieved through the simplest means. Never does she err in overstepping the bounds that divide the artist from the mere manipulator of the keys.

The program was skillfully constructed in regard to variety, lighter numbers being inserted here and there, thus avoiding the error of wearying the listeners with too many of the weightier compositions that abound in the literature of the organ. Only a true artist can hold the close attention of an audience throughout an entire organ recital and it is no exaggeration to state that everyone present considered this recital too short in duration. No greater tribute could have been rendered to the fine musicianship of the performer.

Want of space prohibits extended criticism, but especial mention must be made of the exquisite rendition of the moving aria by Lotti, "Pur dicesti," the dainty minuet from Gluck's "Orpheus," and the delightful gavotte from Rameau's "Temple of Fame." In the D minor Toccata of Bach Miss Bartholomew rose to her greatest heights and in her truly reverential performance of the prayer from Wolf-Ferrari's "Jewels of the Madonna" and of Wagner's "Dreams" (one of the really great songs of all time), Miss Bartholomew made an affecting appeal to the profoundest emotions of her audience.

Commits Suicide In U. S. Consulate For Country's Sake

Sofia, Bulgaria, April 17.—(By the Associated Press.)—Choosing the American consulate as his place of sacrifice, Nikola Guenoff, a former high Macedonian official, today committed suicide that his estate might go to the Macedonian cause.

Guenoff had been desirous of turning over his entire fortune to the Macedonian organization but found he was unable to do so, under the Bulgarian laws, unless he died on foreign soil. The estate of a person dying in Bulgaria without legal heirs is confiscated by the state.

The former official entered the consulate and asked the vice consul, F. Leroy Spangler, a few questions, the answers to which confirmed his understanding of the law. Then shouting: "This is American soil!" he drew a revolver, fired a shot into his brain and fell dead.

Fifty thousand levas and $4,000 in currency were found on his body, together with a will leaving it all to the Macedonian cause.

McLaren at Cairo.

Cairo, Egypt, April 17.—Stuart McLaren, the British aviator, reached Cairo this afternoon from Athens, having safely negotiated the trans-Mediterranean passage on his attempted globe encircling flight.

"College Life Brings Self Reliance," Says Mrs. Clark

Talking before the college preparatory girls of the Girls' High school last week Mrs. Elizabeth Lawrence Clarke, past president of the Smith College alumnae, made an acrostic of the "Reason" of going to college, a reason that might obtain in all walks of life whether in college or out of college. First she put reliance, self-reliance that enabled one to make decisions whether as to courses of study or the multitude of pleasurable experiences that are forever urging acceptance when only so many may be chosen.

"Self-reliance," said Mrs. Clarke, "is gained from decisions made in the complexity of the present college life. Teachers say the girls from high schools more easily adapt themselves to freedom than those from private schools where time has been more planned out for them. College life on the whole is a sane one, though a very complex one, but in the necessary selection resulting from this very complexity lies one side of the development which we look forward to as a rseult of the four college years.

"And do have a certain amount of self-esteem," counseled Mrs. Clarke. "It is perfectly legitimate to have enough esteem to avoid aggressiveness and egotism and yet to be able to control your situation by confidence in yourself."

Adaptability was the third requisite; sociability, the talent of making friends, fourth; openmindedness, fifth, the ability to accept each other's view of life with tolerance and appreciations, a great attribute in the life of any of us; and sixth, the noblesse-oblige, which ought to be made the selected group who have the advantage of a college education, eager and willing to help others with something of what has been given them. Thus, reliance, esteem, adaptability, sociability, open-mindedness, nobility, all may be gained in four years of college if the decision has been made to go.

Mrs. Clarke told the girls a great deal concerning the history of Smith College, and some interesting statistics concerning the longevity of girls who have been educated there. Out of her class of 1883, all would have been the fortieth commencement anniversary, had not one member been killed in an automobile wreck a few months previous, leaving forty-eight out of forty-nine original members.

Mrs. Clarke announced the Atlanta Smith College club scolarship, a full tuition, which is a most unusual concession for the college to make in the way of scholarship, however, with students from 44 states and 9 different countries, still, the per cent of southern girls is not as great as Smith would like it. At present there are thirty-five alumnae in Georgia, three girls from Georgia in the freshman class, three in the sophomore, three in the junior and six in the senior.

A committee from the Atlanta club has been appointed to award the scholarship, which is open upon application fro many girls whi is up in her credits, and has the necessar yrequirements for its award.

Miss Rogers Is Entertained At Many Parties

Miss Lillian Grace Rogers, who becomes the bride of John David Kappeler on Monday, continues to be honored by a number of lovely social affairs.

Miss Effie Daniel will entertain the members of the bridal party at a luncheon on Friday.

Mrs. Laura Kilburn will have as her guests at luncheon on Satruday the bride-elect and her attendants, and Miss Cobbie Randall will give a matinee party following the luncheon.

A silver bowl of flame-colored sweet peas decorated the tea table, and the same lovely flowers were placed in the living room. Mrs. Rogers was gowned in brown satin, trimmed with ecru lace, and Miss Rogers wore a lovely dress of beaded black georgette.

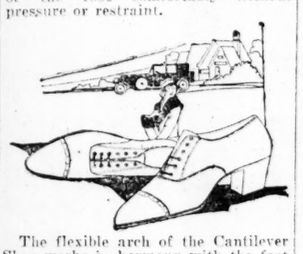
Comfort Depends on the Shoes You Wear

You find foot comfort or discomfort in the construction of a shoe. It should not be necessary to "break in" new shoes. Shoes that are correctly built with consideration for the shape of the human foot, such as the Cantilever Shoe, fit every part of the foot comfortably—without pressure or restraint.



The flexible arch of the Cantilever Shoe works in harmony with the foot arch in the action of walking. This feature accomplishes a natural exercise of the foot muscles—strengthening and keeping the arch in a healthy condition. Where the arch of the foot has become weakened, it is advisable to exercise these foot muscles through the natural action of walking. The flexible arch of the permits natural exercise to these muscles, thereby promoting good circulation and strengthening the entire foot arch.

Beauty Chats

BY EDNA KENT FORBES

HOLLOW SHOULDERS.

The boat-shaped neck line of last year which will continue in fashion for at least one more year is very hard upon the girl with hollow shoulders. It shows all her bad points and none of her good ones, and I would advise her not to adopt it. She will find those dresses cut to a V shape or a U shape in front the most becoming, for even though her chest may be as bony as her shoulders, the particular lines of these two styles will hide the fact. The U shape is new and more original than the V, more appropriate to evening dresses where she will want the effect at least decollette.

Rub them with cold cream.

However, she will not be content with hollow shoulders, so here are some suggestions which should give even the thinnest girl prettier lines. If the shoulders are not very hollow rub them at night with a good quality nourishing cold cream. If they are very bad rub them instead with cocoa butter. Now cocoa butter by itself is an extremely difficult thing to massage with. You must melt it first in order to make it workable. Even then, though it is kept melted by the warmth of the skin, it does not massage easily. I would suggest that you purchase a small cake of cocoa butter, say about two ounces, put it in a small white enamel saucepan with an ounce of olive oil, melt the two and let them cool in a china jar, an old cold cream jar being the best. While this may not be quite as fattening as cocoa butter by itself, it will do very well and will be much easier to handle.

One of the important things is to massage thoroughly all over the hollow part of the shoulders and down over the chest, even over the bust if you think you are too flat. Massage helps wonderfully by stimulating the blood and by helping the skin to absorb a larger quantity of the cream. You'd best cover the skin afterwards with a piece of muslin to keep the cocoa butter from staining your nightgown. Always wipe off with cold water whatever cream remains on the surface of the skin.

Tomorrow—Ovid's Advice About Beauty.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be inclosed with the question.—The Editor.

Enforcement Backing By D. A. R. Urged By Miss Willebrandt

Washington, April 17.—Enforcement of law, immigration and the educational activities of the Daughters of the American Revolution, together with the annual balloting for officers, held the attention of the Daughters of the American Revolution at today's session of the thirty-third continental congress. Several resolutions were acted upon and others introduced for action before the close of the congress Saturday.

Another resolution, to place the society on record as indorsing the immigration bill with its Japanese exclusion provision, was introduced by the Oregon delegation. It was referred to the resolutions committee by the president general with the statement that the society wished to be informed on the subject and had the acceptance of Chairman Johnson of the house committee on immigration to address the society tomorrow. A similar resolution introduced yesterday by the Maryland delegation was not reported today by the committee.

The daughters gave close attention to Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general, who appealed for support of the society in the law enforcement, especially in regard to the Volstead act. Immedaitely a resolution was introduced indorsing the movement.

Immigration was the principal subject of the evening session, with Secretary of Labor Davis as speaker, while Major W. M. Humm spoke on the national defense. Confirmation of newly elected state regents and vice regents took place this evening.

There is as much danger to the United States from enemies from within as from enemies from without, Mrs. Willebrandt declared, and those from within represent the spirit of disregard for the constitution.

The Daughters were told they should do their utmost to bring about law obedience, focus their attention on the federal, state and local governments' operation with regard to enforcement, and give their help to bring about legislation to take the evidence-gathering bodies of the federal government such as enforcement officers under civil service. They also were urged to do everything they could to bring about legislation imposing more drastic penalties for violation of the Volstead act.

Restoration of the castle at Fort Niagara, N. Y., and preservation of the old frigate Hartford, now at Charleston, S. C., as a national monument to be placed in the Potomac river at Washington, were proposed in resolutions which will be acted upon later.

THOMAS MOFFATT SPEAKS AT MEET OF INSURANCE MEN

Columbus, Ga., April 17.—(Special.)—An address from Thomas J. Moffatt, of Newark, N. J., chairman of the executive committee of the National Association of Insurance Agents, delivered at the banquet session held Thursday night at the country club, featured the first day's session of the state convention of the Georgia Association of Insurance Agents in session here. About 200 insurance men from every part of the state are in attendance at the meet.

First sessions were held Thursday morning at the American Legion hall and were presided over by E. A. Erwin, president of the state association. Mayor J. Homer Dimon welcomed the delegates to the city, and a response was made by Coke Davis, of Atlanta. At noon the convention was the guest of the Georgia Home Insurance company, of Columbus, at a luncheon held at the Waverly hotel.

The afternoon session included the reports of committees and general discussions of business. The delegates will be taken to Camp Benning Friday and firing demonstration will be given in their honor by General Briant H. Wells, the commanding officer. The local committee on arrangements is composed of Herbert Grooser, chairman, Herbert S. Banner, William C. Morton, Terrell W. Hill, R. H. McNulty, Jr., J. R. Fitzpatrick and William Hart.

The Half-Time Wife

BY VIOLET DARE

CHAPTER XVII.

Some Good Advice.

Suzanne called a cab and was driven straight home; she was thankful later to Anne Graham for not reminding her of their engagement to go to the matinee that afternoon, but at the moment she quite forgot it, in her eagerness to be alone.

She tried not to think about Geoffrey and Mrs. Vale, but her thoughts refused to leave them. She kept going back to Mrs. Vale's telephone call of the morning—certainly she had said that Geoff would not be home until the next day. And certainly he had been lunching with her that noon. She did not feel angry, but she could not help feeling hurt.

"I won't say anything to him about it," she told herself, "I'll just wait and let him explain—of course he will explain."

The moment she entered the house she asked if there had been any telephone calls; she felt sure that Geoffrey would have telephoned her, by that time; of course, it was quite simple. He probably had tried to reach her by phone as soon as he got into town, and failing, had thought he would reach her later. Why, perhaps he had wanted her to lunch with him, and had been disappointed that she was not at home to receive his message.

And why shouldn't he lunch with his secretary, after all? They must have had a great many things to talk over, and Geoff could not afford to waste his luncheon hour; why souldn't he take Mrs. Vale to luncheon and talk business with her then?

"That's all right—but they needn't have picked out a restaurant that was miles from the office," a still, small voice reminded her. "And they certainly didn't look as if they were talking business; they seemed to be just having a good time."

The afternoon dragged itself along, and there was no word from Geoffrey. "He's going to come in unexpectedly tonight and surprise me," she told herself, and tried to be content with that. Once she went to the telephone, thinking that she would call him, and turned away at the last moment, forbidden by her pride.

Suddenly it seemed to her that she could not wait any longer for something to happen, and put on her wraps, intending to take a walk. But she had barely reached the front door when Mrs. Haynes appeared.

Suzanne drew back instinctively, thinking only of Mrs. Haynes' last meeting with her. She had offended the elder woman; why should Mrs. Haynes come to her now?

"My dear, I want to talk to you," Mrs. Haynes exclaimed. "I want to give you some advice. You may not like it, but I feel that I ought to give it to you, whether you want it or not."

Suzanne meekly escorted her into the living room and sat down. Evidently this was to be a day of many troubles for her.

"I heard from Anne Graham of what happened this noon," Mrs. Hayne went on. "That is, of your going to luncheon with her, and seeing your husband and his secretary there, when you thought he was out of town. Now, my dear, don't let this upset you; just be on your guard. That same secretary is a very clever woman; I've known Linda Vale ever since she went to work for Geoff—she has tried very hard to land him, and she was furious when he married you. She won't give up; she'll always try to oust you and get your place, if she can.

"Don't trust her. And don't let her annoy you. Geoffrey is a very smart man, and I don't believe any man could get around him, but a woman like Linda Vale can do things a man can't. I know, because I've seen it happen in my own family. In these days the wife at home is at a dreadful disadvantage; her husband has what amounts to another wife, in his office, if he has a clever, attractive woman for his secretary. She can make herself indispensable to him. My husband had just such a secretary!

"Now, my dear, Geoff is in love with you! he's not in love with Linda Vale. But you're got to watch her, nevertheless. Don't let her make you jealous, don't let her annoy you; just watch her, and beat her at her own game. When you married Geoff, you married a man whom women had been pursuing for years, and now you've got to hold him."

SNUGGLE FROLIC NO. 17.
Write a Title.

How to Win a Snuggle Pup Today:

You've been reading the comics in The Constitution for years and you know that over some of them is a heading, or a title, which adds to the fun of looking at the pictures.

Today we have a Snuggle Pup cartoon. All you have to do is to write a funny title for it, in not more than 10 words. For instance, you might write something like this, after looking at the Snuggle Comic: "It isn't what's in your head—it's what's on it." Of course, that isn't very good; you'll be able to do much better.

To each of the 10 readers who send in the brightest titles for today's Frolic, Mother Snuggle will send one of her little metal pups.

Write your title in the box at the top of the picture provided for it and then fill in your name and address in the box below the picture. When you have finished, clip out the picture, with title and your name attached and mail to Mother Snuggle, The Constitution. Answers from children within 50 miles of Atlanta must be in The Constitution office not later than 6 p. m. Saturday, but boys and girls living more than 50 miles from Atlanta have until 6 p. m. Sunday. Write on the outside of the envelope, "Grolic, No. 17."

ONE FRIEND TELLS ANOTHER

The fame of a successful remedy is often spread far and wide by women telling one another of its merits, as is evidenced by a letter written by Mrs. Delbert Bush, of Masena, N. Y. She writes: "I was in such a bad condition I could hardly walk, a friend who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with excellent results advised me to try it. It has given me back my health and I cannot praise it enough." There are women everywhere who have been benefited by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and gladly tell their friends and neighbors about it.—(adv.)

At My Age

My Youth Cream keeps this baby skin

By Edna Wallace Hopper

Thousands upon thousands of women have asked me to tell what cold cream I employ. They see me with a girl's complexion. It is even softer, even rosier than 40 years ago.

Yet my life has been lived in the limelight. And I served France for five years in the rigors of the war.

A French Creation

French experts perfected this cream for me many years ago. It contains products of both lemon and strawberry. Also all the best that science knows to soften, whiten, smooth and feed the skin.

Neither I nor my friends have ever found a cream to compare with this. The expert makers tell me it is the greatest cream produced. So I have arranged to have them make the identical cream for you. It is called Edna Wallace Hopper's Youth Cream. All druggists and toilet counters now supply it at 60c per jar. It comes in two types—the Cold Cream type and the Vanishing type. Be sure to get the type you want. Both have the same essentials constituents. Neither grows hair on the face.

They also supply my Facial Youth my famous liquid cleanser. Also my White Youth Clay—the last word in facial clay. Also my Hair Youth, to which I owe my heavy, lustrous hair. My Beauty Book comes with each.

Go try my Youth Cream. Learn how it excels all others. Then I think you will want all the beauty helps which have done so much for me. Edna Wallace Hopper, 536 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago.—(adv.)

TECH MEETS KILLINGER'S PENN STATE NINE TODAY

Jackets at Full Strength With Palmisano, Yoemans, Wycoff, Collins in Lineup

BY JOHN STATON.

Tech and Penn State meet this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the first contest of a two-game series. This series should be one of the most interesting on the Tech schedule; partly due to the caliber of teams participating; partly due to the athletic history surrounding the two institutions, Tech and Penn State.

Last year Tech won both games of the series rather handily, but it must be remembered that the series last year was the first of the season, and the Nittany Lions had not enjoyed one particle of outdoor practice.

Glenn Killinger, star football player at the State college some years back, particularly in 1921, is the coach of the Lions. Glenn played on the Atlanta baseball team last year, and enjoyed a large friendship. Consequently, there are many who will view these two games eager to see that Glenn makes just as good a coach as he did a player. This is his first year as baseball coach of the Penn State baseball team.

Veterans With Penn State.

This year the Lions come to Atlanta fortified dwith a goodly array of varsity men. Harrellson, Fixter and Longquist, all veteran pitchers, will be ready to work against Tech. Fixter and Longquist pitched the two games last year.

Then there is an airtight infield, with three veterans in the pack, which will hold Tech's safeties to a minimum. Palm, quarterback on the football team, plays centerfield. Palm only played a few moments against Tech last year due to the fact that he had an injured back. He was rated, however, as one of the best quarterbacks in college football last year.

Tech will be able to present a formidable lineup against the Lions in this series. First, Palmisano has recovered from his attack of the flu, secondly, Wycoff is off probation, third, Yoemans has stepped back into grace of the faculty, and last, Wenie Collins, warhorse of the pitching staff, is ready and raring to go.

Tech at Full Strength.

This good fortune will enable the Yellow Jackets to start with their full potential strength, with all their men able to participate.

It is probable that Collins or Allison will be used in the box by Coach Clay this afternoon. Collins is a right-hander, while Allison throws from the port side. Both are all weather men, just as good under one set of conditions as under another.

Two Golf Matches At Thomasville

Thomasville, Ga., April 17.—(Special.)—Glen Arven Country club pulled off a double-header golf match on the local links today in the Georgia-Florida Golf league, Tallahassee, Fla., playing Valdosta, Ga., and Valdosta winning 12 to 9, while Albany was defeating Thomasville 15 to 7.

Van Brunt of Tallahassee won two and lost one to Jack Oliver, Sweeney lost two to Converse, Cailey lost three to Feagle, Moran lost three to Billy Oliver, Collins won one and lost one to Mackey, Brewer won two from Loggins, Burr won three from Belote and Golphin won one and lost two to Dasher.

For Thomasville, Jemison won one and lost two to Goss, Turnbull lost two to Baldwin, Watt won one and lost one to Redfern, Mays lost three to Hunter, Gill won three from Tift, Wall lost three to Davis, Mason lost three to Lanier and Pardee won two and lost one to Weston.

First Play of the Game

Pennington, Chattanooga's centerfielder, is shown crashing out the first hit of the game between the Crackers and the Lookouts in the opener of the Southern league season. Pennington's hit went to centerfield. Johnny Brock, peppy little receiver of the Crackers, is shown back of the plate.

Oglethorpe Petrels Play Nine From South Carolina On Hermance Field Today

BY BILL MORROW.

What the governor of North Carolina said to the governor of South Carolina in reference to the latter state's ball club is what's puzzling the Petrels prior to their meeting this afternoon with the South Carolina lads on Hermance field. The game this afternoon, the first of a two-game series between the Oglethorpe representatives and the visitors, will start at 3 o'clock.

Mark Humphrey will return to the mound for the Petrels with Captain "Pug" Bryant receiving his slants. Humphrey is off to a fine start this season, handing in two wins out of an equal number of starts. Although working in only two battles to date, Humphrey holds a win over the Dartmouth forces and a near shutout against Furman, the Hornets falling in the first meeting by a one-sided score of 15 to 1.

The Petrels will return the regular nine to battle with the visiting South Carolina lads. The regular infield combination of Lindsey, Partridge, Wall and Maurer with the garden trio of Kemp, Morris and Parrish will be on hand to give a warm welcome to the invading force.

Information concerning the strength of the South Carolina club has been meager, but it is expected that the Carolina force will be no easy foe for the Oglethorpe representatives to put aside.

While the varsity combination is having its little fracas on Hermance field, the freshmen team will take a jaunt to Columbus, meeting the high school of that city in two battles Friday and Saturday.

The Petrel rats have a fairly formidable nine that has disposed of the leading prep teams of the city with ease. "Duke" Terrell, Ed Miles and "Ike" Cousins are three former city prep stars who are expected to run the Oglethorpe varsity players a close race for places next season.

PLAY FINALS IN MEET TODAY

Pinehurst, N. C., April 17.—Four national figures in the tennis world will meet on the courts here tomorrow in the finals of the two chief divisions of the annual north and south tennis tournament, the final sport event of the season here.

Miss Martha Bayard, Shorthills, N. J., who ranks among the "first 10" women players of the country and Miss Leslie Bancroft, Boston, another first 10 player and an alternate for the American Olympic team, today won their way into the finals. Miss Bayard, however, had to battle hard for her victory over Mrs. H. S. Green, New York, formerly a ranking player, losing the first set 3-6 but coming back in the second 6-1 and taking the third 6-2. Miss Bancroft disposed of Mrs. B. F. Briggs, New York, in straight sets 6-0, 6-1.

The semi-finals in the men's singles furnished two thrilling contests. G. Carlton Shafer, of Philadelphia, lost the first set of his match with Josiah Wheelwright, of Boston, 2-6 but won the second 6-3 and the third 6-4 with Wheelwright battling every game stiffly. S. Howard Voshell, former national indoor champion and runnerup in the north and south tournament last year, defeated R. B. Bidwell, Longwood Cricket club, Boston, 6-1 in the first set, dropped the second 5-7 and won the third and match 6-6.

Roster Increased.

New York, April 17.—With the election of eight active and 17 allied clubs, the United States Golf association announced today it now has a roster of 674 clubs, of which 406 are allied and 268 active members. The new allied clubs include: Jekyl Island Golf club, Brunswick, Ga., and Parris Island, S. C., golf club.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

DEAN IN GOOD FORM.

New York, April 17.—Wayland Dean, McGraw's $50,000 pitching recruit, got off to an auspicious start here today in the New York Nationals' 3 to 2 victory over Brooklyn. Dean engaged in a brilliant twirling duel with Vance, which was decided in the tenth inning on singles by Groh, Frisch and Kelly.

Johnston and Fournier hit Dean for home runs in the first inning, but the youngster quickly settled, only two hits being made off him after the third inning. A home run by Groh tied up the score in the fifth inning for the Giants.

TIGERS PLAY ALLIGATORS TODAY

BY EMMETT SIZEMORE.

Auburn, Ala., April 17.—(Special.) Coach Cole and 12 Tigers, baseball men, embarked late tonight for Tallahassee, Fla., where they will engage the squad of the University of Florida in a couple of tilts Friday and Saturday.

Three pitchers are included in the team roster, Market, Hines and Knight. Sheridan, who has been suffering with a sprained ligament in the hurling member, was left behind. The Bessemer lad started the Michigan game in Montgomery Wednesday, but was forced to retire on account of the injury. It is feared the veteran of two seasons will not be able to participate in any games for the remainder of the season.

Hines went well for four innings against the Wolverines and will probably start against the Floridians Friday.

Davis will probably do the receiving. Fancher at first, Captain Griffin at second, Allen at short and Stewart at third will constitute the infield lineup.

Coach Cole intimated that Market would work in right Friday and probably pitch Saturday. Harrison at center and Self in left will constitute the other outer garden men. Ansley will likely be called on Saturday for duty in right field.

Reports from the Florida campus indicate that the Alligators, too, are having a rather checkered campaign this spring with defeats registered rather frequently.

The Auburnites are leaving the campus with a determination to stop the jinx of reversals that has followed closely on their heels this season. In addition to the squad and coach, "Rickey" Mellon, student manager, is on the Florida trip. The freshmen baseballers will play a two-game series with the Shawmut outfit Friday and Saturday at Shawmut.

ATHLETICS DROP SENATORS.

Washington, April 17.—Weather more suitable for football than baseball prevailed today for the third game of the season here, which Philadelphia won, 4 to 3. A mental slip by Zahniser, who threw to second instead of home, when a double steal was essayed by the Athletics in the eighth inning, gave Philadelphia its winning run. President Johnson, of the American league, was a spectator.

SHADE AND SMITH BOUT IS POSTPONED

Cincinnati, O., April 17.—The boxing match to have been staged here next Monday night, between Dave Shade, New York welterweight, and Warnie Smith, of Oklahoma, was called off when word was received from Smith's manager stating the Oklahoman had sufered an injury to his right hand.

FAKE LAIRD, DECATUR BOY, IS HONORED AT DAVIDSON

Davidson, N. C., April 25.—G. Flake Laird, of Decatur, Ga., has been elected as the best athlete of Davidson college, and in recognition of his ability will be awarded the Norris trophy cup. This is a magnificent loving cup offered by the Norris Candy company, of Atlanta, to the best athlete of the college. Laird was opposed by C. M. Davis, of Winston-Salem, and R. E. Boggs, of Birmingham, Ala.

Laird is only a sophomore, and when he came to Davidson he had a good prep school record behind him. In his freshman year he was used with the varsity football squad, but not enough to entitle him to be a wear of the "D." However, he was a member of last year's quint and was awarded a letter. In addition he was a member of the pitching staff of the freshman team. This year he has already made a letter in football, added a star to his basketball record, and bids fair to be awarded another "D" at the end of the baseball season. He has been pitching well this season, notably when he held the strong Trinity nine to five hits in six innings.

The next highest man, Davis, was captain of this year's quint, and is captain-elect of next year's eleven. Boggs is captain-elect of the basketball team.

Exterminator Romps in Winner

Havre de Grace, Md., April 17.—Exterminator, the 9-year-old gelding who won a Kentucky derby in his youth, stepped home ahead of the field in the $2,000 Edgewood purse Thursday afternoon, bringing his total earnings to $251,156. He still lags behind Harry Sinclair's Zev, last year's derby winner, but Zev had a special opportunity in match race with Papyrus, which added $75,000 to his total.

Old Bones, as Exterminator is fondly known on all the American tracks, shouldered 107 pounds and clattered over the distance, one mile and 70 yards, in 1:44. Golden Sphere was beaten in a drive to the wire.

Anderson Leads Net Team on Tour

New York, April 17.—Frank T. Anderson, one of the high ranking tennis players and former national indoor champion, Thursday led the Columbia varsity tennis team away for an Easter trip southward, during which the men will play six matches.

Columbia's opponents will be the Richmond Country club, the Norfolk A. C.; George Washington U.; Dumbarton Country club; the U. S. Naval academy and the Baltimore Country club.

Signs as Manager.

Paris, Ark., April 17.—"Bobby" Kling, a member of the St. Louis Cardinals, of 1902, has signed as manager of the Paris club of the Western Arkansas league.

CRACKERS SWAMP LOOKOUTS IN OPENING GAME

Locals Pile Up 16 to 4 Count

CORBETT EXPRESSES HIS APPRECIATION.

Jack Corbett, president of the Atlanta baseball club, in a statement made last night was elated over the monster crowd that greeted the Crackers in their opening game yesterday.

"Personally, I wish to thank the Junior Chamber of Commerce for the part they took in handling the affairs of opening day. They were in entire charge and deserve all of the credit for everything going over in first-class style.

"It was one of the best-handled crowds that I have ever seen, and I wish to thank everyone taking part," said Corbett.

BY HENRY ALLEN.

Jack Corbett's turnstiles clinked off 14,216 times yesterday as that many fans passed through the gates to see the Crackers in action and get a glimpse of the manginficent new stands in the opening game of the Southern league stands.

And its safe to say that everyone of the fans that packed into the park went home to supper perfectly satisfied with the Crackers and the stands. For Boss Nichoff's crew certainly had their batting eye primed and the Chattanooga Lookouts were tagging along on the small end of a 16 to 4 score, when Bill Brennan announced that it was time to go home after the eighth inning.

It was a typical opening day crowd that packed into the stands. By the kindness of the Cracker sluggers, Chattanooga staged a review of their pitching staff. Four twirlers were sent to the rifle pit in an effort to stop the bombardment of the Crackers, but all seemed to meet with little success. Roe, Yowell and Camp were sent to the showers in double time and Morris, who took over the burden, fared little better than his predecessors.

Four doubles, one triple, one circuit clout and 15 singles made up the total of safe base knocks that were credited to the Crackers' hit column.

But standing way out above the hitting of the club was the more than sensational fielding of Dutch Krehmeyer, who is a candidate for the shortfield position held down by Eddie Monroe last year.

When the news of Eddie's sale to Pittsburg was announced last year there was weeping and gnashing of teeth in the Cracker camp. But if this Krehmeyer person keeps up the gait he has started no one need worry over the loss of Eddie Moore. Krehmeyer's fielding was backed up by his excellent hitting. Two hits out of four times at the plate was the number credited to his count. One of the most brilliant plays seen at Spiller's field in sometime came as the result of his efforts. He ran way back in left field to snag a hot bounder with his left hand and then threw the runner out.

All Deserve Credit.

But all of the Crackers deserve credit. There is going to be a lot of smart baseball pulled for the benefit of the fans this year before the season is over. Every man was on his toes and anxious to take advantage of the misplays of the 'noogans.

Here is a section of the new stands at Spiller park as they were packed Thursday for the opening game at home between the Crackers and the Chattanooga team under Lee Nunnamaker. Scarcely a seat was vacant when play started at 3 o'clock. In the upper left hand corner is Roe, Chattanooga pitcher, who started for the Lookouts, but who was replaced early after walking four men. At the right is George Dumont, Cracker twirler, who went the whole seven innings played Thursday, giving up 10 hits and striking out two men.

ALABAMA BEATS MERCER

4 TO 1 AND EVENS SERIES

Macon, Ga., April 17.—(Special.) The Alabama tide evened the count with the Mercer Baptists here this afternoon by taking the last game of a two-game series by a 4 to 1 score.

Jumping on Hamilton, Mercer's mound choice of the day, in the fifth inning for five hits, the Crimson pushed over four runs, its total count of the session.

With the exception of this fatal inning, Hamilton held the Tuscaloosans under control, allowing only two other hits, these separated.

The slants of Cunningham, Alabama hurler, were puzzling to the Mercerians throughout, except in the seventh, when safeties gave them their only tally. Cunningham gave up five safe knocks.

Thursday's encounter marked the third collegiate defeat for the locals this year, they having won 10 out of 13 starts on the diamond. Alabama has suffered but one reverse this season, this being yesterday's contest with Mercer.

Olympic Talent To Be Developed

Columbus, O., April 17.—Competition in the Ohio relays, to be inaugurated here Saturday in the Ohio stadium, is expected to shed considerable light on prospective members of the American Olympic team to be chosen in June. Check-up of the individual entries today revealed a number of notable names.

De Hart Hubbard, Michigan's outstanding broad jumper and hurdler, is expected to be one of the shining lights of the meet. Frieda, Chicago javelyn expert, and Boni Petcoff, captain of Ohio State's football team last year, are expected to wage a duel in the triathlon, the special event for weight men, and in the javelyn throw in particular. Both have done close to 200 feet.

Fulton-Malone Barred From Ring

St. Paul, Minn., April 17.—Fred Fulton, Minneapolis heavyweight, and Jock Malone, St. Paul middleweight, are to be barred from appearing in Minnesota rings so long as they are under their present managements, W. F. Sailor, secretary of the state boxing commission, announced today.

Sailor declared that the commission will enforce its rule which prohibits promoters of boxing clubs from managing fighters in this state. Malone is under the management of Tommy Walsh vice president of the Minneapolis Fight club, and Jack Reddy, matchmaker for the St. Paul club, handles Fulton's affairs.

Three Prep Games on Today

GAMES TODAY.

University vs. Tech High (Almond park).
G. M. A. vs. Decatur (in Decatur).
Fulton vs. Marist (at Marist).

BY GORDON KEITH.

Preps complete another week of their schedule today with three good games on deck. The Tech High-University fracas is about the best of these games, and will probably affect the standing of the first division clubs more than the other battles.

University, although only credited with two victories, has yet to be defeated, and Tech High, although it dropped one game to Marist, has won three starts and is well in the running.

G. M. A. and Decatur are about evenly matched, and another close game will likely come of this meeting. The Cadets have won one and lost three, while Decatur has won one and lost two.

Marist will probably add another win to its list this afternoon when the Cadet nine runs up against Fulton but it should prove a good game. Fulton has yet to win a battle, but has thrown some terrible scares into opposing nines. Marist has won four straight and is leading the league.

Pinehurst Golf Finals Today

Pinehurst, N. C., April 17.—Joseph Bydolek, Buffalo, who today furnished an upset in calculations by putting Donald G. Herring, Philadelphia, out of the mid-April golf tournament here, and John D. Chapman, Greenwich, Conn., tomorrow will meet in the finals of the anual event. Chapman today defeated P. S. P. Randolph, Jr., of Point Judith, R. I.

Herring, who had been playing sensational golf since the beginning of match play, went to pieces today and lost 7 up and 6 to play. Bydolek was always ahead.

Chapman in his match with Randolph displayed a high class brand of golf. He won the first hole, lost the second and then went three up by winning the next three, and held this advantage at the turn. Randolph took the tenth with a birdie three after a sensational putt from off the green. The next two were halved but Chapman took the next three, winning he match 5 up and 3 to play. Chapman played the entire fifteen holes in even fours.

Olympic Track Star Injured

Philadelphia, April 17.—Nelson Sherrill, former indoor intercollegiate pole vault champion and American Olympic team prospect, dislocated his right ankle today while attempting a twelve-foot vault on Franklin field and probably will be out of competition for the remainder of the season.

BILLIARDS IN BEDROOM.

Temperament Plays Part In Schaefer's Game.

A few weeks before Jake Schaefer, former champion of the world at 18.2 balkline billiards, came east last winter to play Willie Hoppe in a challenge match in which he hoped to regain his lost title, the Hotel Pennsylvania received the following telegram:

"Los Angeles, Cal.

Hotel Pennsylvania, N. Y.

Will arrive in about two weeks begin practice for championship match. Hold rooms. Have billiard table set up in bedroom.

JAKE SCHAEFER."

The Hotel called in an executive of a famous firm of billiard table manufacturers to help cater to the needs of the temperamental former champion.

According to this gentleman, only one other person has made a similar request in his forty years of experience with the billiard game. She was another "long-bird," none other than Adelina Patti, the famous singer.

A WHIRLWIND AT 63.

Remarkable Record of Woman Golfer.

Mrs. Caleb F. Fox of the Huntingdon Valley Country Club of Philadelphia has never failed to qualify in a single championship in which she has taken part since 1899.

This almost remarkable in the annals of golf, considering the fact that Mrs. Fox is sixty-three years old, and at present counting, has ten grandchildren.

Last year in the February tournament at Belleair, Fla., Mrs. Fox took the measure of Miss Glenna Collett, the present National Champion, who had distinguished herself at that time by taking the medal in the National championship and defeating Miss Cecil Leitch, the British Champion, in a tournament at Philadelphia. Just to prove that this was not a fluke, Mrs. Fox has repeated the performance at Belleair again this past winter

THE ETERNAL EXTERMINATOR

W. S. Kilmer's Horse Completes Five and One-Half Racing Years.

There is a wonder horse cropping up in racing circles every year. He runs a season or two seasons and another horse surpasses him and becomes the horse of the century. What happens to the former star? Is it a total eclipse? In most cases yes, but not so with Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Exterminator.

At seven years, after having won four Saratoga Cups, one Kentucky Derby, three Pimlico Cups, one Latonia Cup, three Toronto Autumn Cups, two autumn Gold Cups and one Independence handicap and earned $233,000 for his owner. Exterminator still gallops on to victory, side by side with two and three-year-olds whose sires Exterminator ran neck and neck with at the beginning of his career

After beating Billy Kelly at Havre de Grace last April, Exterminator galloped his mile and a quarter in 2:04 2-5 in the Kentucky handicap at Churchill Downs, a remarkable performance. Next he defeated Grey Lag in a renewal of the Brooklyn handicap.

Although Firebrand defeated him in the Independence handicap later in the season, Exterminator finished unpaced and Mr. Kilmer still has enough faith in him to send him to Tijuana in February. This after five and a half years of racing!

TECH ATHLETES ENTERED IN SOUTHERN TRACK MEET

* * * * * * * *

Athletes of Georgia Tech are expected to compete in the second annual track meet of the southern conference to be held in Montgomery, Ala., May 9 and 10.

Seventeen southern schools have entered a total of approximately 300 athletes in the meet. The entrants include practically all the outstanding stars of last year, it is stated.

This year's event is expected to be a greater success than that of last year, despite the announced intention of several colleges in the south Atlantic group to withdraw from the Montgomery meet and hold one of their own, according to those in charge of arrangements.

Maryland, North Carolina and South Carolina will enter the Montgomery meet, it is stated, leaving only the University of Virginia, Virginia Military Institute, Virginia Polytechnical Institute and Washington and Lee in the south Atlantic meet.

In addition to the Georgia Tech challenge trophy, the F. J. Cramton relay trophy, gold and bronze statue, will be awarded to the winner of the one-mile relay. Gold medals are to be given athletes who win first place in each event; silver medals for second and bronze for third and fourth.

The following schools are expected to enter the meet: Maryland, North Carolina, Clemson, South Carolina, Florida, Georgia Tech, University of Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi A. & M., University of Mississippi, Sewanee, Tennessee, Tulane, Louisiana State university, University of Alabama, Auburn, Vanderbilt and possibly V. C. W. Strelt, of Birmingham, has been engaged as referee.

MINISTERS ARE ENTITLED TO PASSES

All ministers of the gospel who are assigned to the different churches in Atlanta are entitled to a season pass to all Cracker games played in Atlanta this year, according to President Jack Corbett of the Atlanta baseball club.

Due to the fact that President Corbett is not acquainted with the different ministers in the city he requests that those desiring a pass communicate with him at the Atlanta baseball headquarters.

It is customary to give passes to the ministers each year and President Corbett desires that they reach the proper parties.

CHARLOTTE IN 6-1 WIN.

Augusta, Ga., April 17.—The Augusta Tigers, unable to hit Rube Wilson opportunely, lost the opening game of the Sally season to the Charlotte Hornets, 6 to 1, before a crowd of 3,000 spectators.

Fielder and Carlisle, each with a double and a single, led the Hornets' batting spree, which consisted of 11 hits. The Tigers secured eight hits off Wilson.

NO RESULTS HERE.

Spartanburg, S. C., April 17.—Spartanburg and Asheville fought to a 2-2 draw this afternoon in the opening game of the South Atlantic association season, the contest being stopped at the end of the ninth on account of darkness.

The squabble was a pitching duel between Smith and Tewell, with the work of the local hurler improving so in the latter part of the game that the Skylanders were unable to do anything with his delivery.

Poor base running cost Asheville a run that would have won the game, while a daring dive for the home plate by Wilson in the sixth after a fly ball that fell just behind second gave Spartanburg the tieing run.

A catch by Harris in left featured the game. Harris fell against the fence after taking a drive with one hand and had to leave the field, Weaver taking his place. Miller retired for Spartanburg, after he had hurt his hand in the seventh.

PEACHES ARE BEATEN.

Greenville, S. C., April 17.—Timely hitting enabled Greenville to defeat Macon here this afternoon in the opening game of the South Atlantic league season by the score of 6 to 1. Norman Lehr hurled a remarkably good game, and a sparkling double play, O'Connell to Young, in the seventh inning with the bases loaded, extricated him from a dangerous predicament. O'Connell robbed Thompson of a hit to start the double, tagged second and threw high to Young who made a spectacular leaping stab. Beck also started a neat double play in the second.

Spellman led in batting with three safeties, one a double, in four times up. Loren Thompson, 19-year-old southpaw, hurling for the visitors, had but one bad inning, the sixth, when Greenville counted three runs on four hits and a sacrifice.

Each pitcher cut loose and the teams seemed in good condition in spite of the chilly blasts and mist from a leaden sky. The unfavorable weather held down the attendance, estimated officially at about 3,500.

CRIQUI WILL RETURN TO U.S.

New York, April 17.—Eugene Criqui, of France, world's featherweight champion for sixty days last summer, plans to leave for the United States May 2 to seek a return match here with Johnny Dundee, who won the title from the Frenchman at the Polo grounds last July.

Criqui notified Dundee that he would hold the latter to his promise of granting a return battle, made when the Frenchman dropped last year.

Dundee has signed for three fights this summer under the direction of J. J. Johnston, matchmaker of clubs which will operate at the Yankee stadium and Polo grounds. Criqui's signature will be sought by Johnston for a title bout in either June or July.

Wills-Fulton Bout Fizzles

St. Paul, Minn., April 17.—Harry Wills, negro heavyweight boxer, will be unable to meet Fred Fulton in a bout here on May 6, as proposed by Jack Reddy, St. Paul promoter, it was announced today.

Reddy had wired Paddy Mullins, manager of Wills, an offer of $10,000 for the Fulton-Wills contest. Wills is scheduled to meet Bartley Madden in New York May 12 and because of this will be unable to appear to accept Reddy's offer. Mullins indicated he might consider the proposal for a later date.

Dave Shade, California middleweight, will headline the May 6 card here, Reddy announced. Shade's opponent will be selected from Jock Malone, St. Paul; Morrie Shaffer and Harry Greb, middleweight champion.

Georgia Association Of Home Economics To Meet in Savannah

Savannah, Ga., April 17.—(Special.)—The Georgia Home Economics association will hold its annual meeting May 2-3 at Savannah at the session of the Georgia Educational association, with which it is affiliated. At that time the winners in the essay contest fostered by the association will be announced. The prizes are three scholarships at state institutions, value $100, $50 and $25.

The association, organized by home economics workers, has broadened its scope under the leadership of Miss Lois Dowdle, leader of girls' club work, and includes in its membership homemakers, club workers in allied subjects, and all women interested in the home.

Three members of the field committee are state chairmen of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs. The dues of the organization carry with the state membership a membership in the American Association of Home Economics.

This association is doing a worthwhile work, leaders declare. The prizes of scholarships in the essay contest will be awarded in Savannah and as the contestants are from all parts of Georgia it will be of statewide interest.

CRACKERS ROMP IN OPENING GAME

last season was on the mound and handled himself well. At times George let up considerably but when the pinches came he was in there ready to halt the 'noogans.

The Atlanta baseball company is to be congratulated on the way the monster crowd was handled. Not a single accident, fight or any disturbance occurred to mar the afternoon's proceedings.

After speeches and numerous other festivities that go to make up an opening day program, the game finally got underway. Pennington greeted George Dumont with a screaming single through the box and took second and Bate's sacrifice. Aldolph Niehaus, who once upon a time wore the livery of a Cracker, scored his mate on another single, thus accounting for Nooga's first tally of the game.

But the Crackers knotted the count in their half of the first when Frankie Zoellers walked. Burris grounded out but Frankie advanced to second on the play. McCabe lifted to Pennington, and Ben Paschal crashed out a double to right scoring Zollers.

Crackers Score Six.

Then in the second came the review of the 'Nooga pitchers. Roe walked the first three men to face him filling the bases. Yowell then took over the burden but also walked three more pushing in the Crackers already on base. Camp was then sent to the box to try his hand. McCabe forced Dumont at the plate, Niehaus to Kress. Paschal crashed out a single to center and Zoellers scored. Smith singled down the first base line bringing home Burris and McCabe.

The Lookouts pushed over two in the third when John Anderson crashed a homer to the top of the left field stands scoring Niehaus in front of him.

But the Crackers added three more in their half of the inning, Brock singled and was forced at second by Dumont. Zoellers went out to Niehaus, Burris tripled to right-center scoring Dumont. McCabe walked and stole second. Paschal crashed out his third hit scoring Burris and McCabe.

The Crackers pushed over four more in the fifth by a walk, two singles, and Krehmeyer's home run.

The sixth and seventh also added two more counters for the Crackers and the Lookous pushed over their final counter in the eighth by three straight singles when Dumont let up.

The two teams will play the second game of the series this afternoon. The game will start at 3 o'clock.

Dr. Lasker Wins Chess Tourney

New York, April 17.—Dr. Emanuel Lasker, of Germany, won first place in the international chess master's tournament which ended tonight after 22 rounds of play. Jose Capablanca, of Cuba, world's champion, finished second; Alexander Alekhine, of Russia, third; Frank Marshall, of New York, fourth, and Richard Reti, of Czecho-Slovakia, fifth among 11 contestants.

Dr. Lasker and Capablanca earned their positions two days ago, but the fight for the next three places which carried the last money prizes was not decided until today. Alekhine drew with Dr. Savielly Tartakower, of Austria, in 32 moves while Marshall lost to Dr. Lasker in 44 moves. Reti, after a string of reverses, rallied and secured fifth place by defeating David Janowski, of France, in 43 moves.

Geza Maroczy, of Hungary, made a gallant fight to finish within the money by defeating F. D. Yates, of England, in 38 moves. Eldfin Rogoljubow, of Ukrania, also failed to tie for fifth place when he lost to Capablanca in 65 moves. Ed. Lasker, of Chicago, had a bye.

Dr. Lasker, the winner, was world's champion for 27 years previous to 1921 when he lost to Capablanca at Havana. The championship was not involved in the international tournament and could be lost only in a challenge match.

The Honorable Mr. Bing

"You always were a gadder," said . Bing, not yet having looked at ybody else. Rather trite, what both them had said to each other. But ifference was better, thought Mr. ng. He'd never let Rosa catch him other way but indifferent—now—e what her father had done. His friend, Lucius Smith, was right, a keen judge of women. There really nobody like Rosa. But—re was her father, old man Bron- ! Damn Bronson—a silent damn. "And you are getting to be a gad- , aren't you, Beverly?"

"Yes, some gadder."

"What are you doing up here?"

"Came to have a talk with a pub- er." That was enough for her to w—that—that father of hers. If adn't been for him, that father of s. He might have been warmer, re engaging, at least lukewarm. d, Rosa was the sort of woman to the cockles of any man's heart.

It was, he was a bit changed: nething had come over him, for the er. His mood, and the change in , was almost festive. He looked er, straighter in the shoulders; he more than ever the prepossessing, gant individual he had always been. t so much now laudator temporis of what had been, but of what e. He was as modern as anything Broadway: more at ease in his derness and sense of well-being. that savoir vivre, second nature h him, bred-in-the-bone—oh, who, t calamitous circumstance, ill or fortune could shake it. Noth- .

He was the Honorable Mr. Bing, In ew de luxe edition, over and over in, the one and only Beverly g!

Rosa saw the change too, and her rt jumped a little at the discovery. hadn't been so pleasantly sur- ed in a long while.

"Why, Mr. Bing, why, Mr. Bing!" said several times in succession, his pleasure and then amazement. never saw you looking better. lly, Beverly? You mean the book told me about? The one I said ought to send to a publisher. This wonderful. I always knew it. Oh, —how stupid of men! My friends: s Ruth Leavitt, Mr. Bing; Mrs. Conte, Mr. Bing—and—and—have ever met Mr. Douglas, Mr. Bing? Douglas, Mr. Bing."

"Douglas?" asked Mr. Bing, ex- nging nods and finding himself king hands with Mr. Douglas. —I don't know—have I, Mr. uglas?" He looked at Mr. Douglas ely. But for the life of him he dn't remember if it was the same uglas. This fellow, handsome ugh, was in evening clothes; and an in evening clothes looked dif- nt to a man in a sport plaid cap salt-and-pepper suit. But why uld he ask himself if it was the e Douglas; certainly it was not same Douglas! Perfectly absurd—

"Where were you going? Won't join us?" said Rosa, still ex- d. "I want you to tell me all ut that book—that publisher." d Mr. Bing was very much moved spite of himself. "We are going see 'Abraham Lincoln,' by an Eng man. Drinkwater. Imagine a n by the name of Drinkwater ting a play on Abraham Lincoln!"

"Thanks—but I am not dressed for said Mr. Bing, looking at Mr. uglas.

"Nonsense," said Rosa, impatient- like her father could say it, but re irascibly. And reminded of him in, Mr. Bing was drawing back his shell again; slowly he was ing the turtle.

"Nonsense," repeated Rosa. "You always dressed up, Beverly. Don't foolish. Come on!"

He yielded. He felt better when did yield. It was as if he had own aside a heavy, heavy burden. ing Rosa by the arm, actually ing the warmth of her, and say- "Well, thanks."

t was great to be with her. So h like his own kind—Rosa, the s Ruth Seavitt, Mrs. Le Conte— Douglas. Only, he now and would look at Douglas suspi- sly.

Rosa had been at the Ritz, or some- re. But now she was visiting h Miss Ruth Leavitt and Mrs. Le te in their apartment up on the ve.

"What apartment building?" asked Bing.

"The Lavernia."

Mr. Bing caught his breath. Same e where Lu and Lil were stop- —and his name, or Lu's stolen on their door.

"Will you come and see me tomor- afternoon?" asked Rosa, friendly, excited.

Mr. Bing regained some of his com- ure.

"Well, yes," he answered. "Be glad yes." Then he added, "Don't w just what hour, but maybe e or four." He first had to get name—his name—off of Lu ks' door. The nerve of it! And ourse he had to see Lil, too. This a ticklish situation. Lucky, after all, he had met Rosa. He would manage it—my word, he had to manage it!

He was glad, too, deeply, unspeakably glad, to meet Rosa like this. It was almost—yes, was romantic, meeting Rosa like this in New York. It was as romantic as the way in which he had met the Lady of the Veil. And —well, let the Lady of the Veil have her Douglas! Foolish infatuation, anyway—his ever thinking he had cared for the Lady of the Veil. Rather bizarre if he had cared.

But Rosa! She was the article, the genuine article!

CHAPTER XIV.

Even Brad Sawyer had the perspicacity to note a sudden as it was a marvelous change in Mr. Bing, and he didn't fancy it. He liked it less because it was on the part of Mr. Bing an unconscious assumption of authority as well as superiority. Instead of Mr. Bing being taken by everybody as the hired secretary, invariably everybody took him to be the millionaire and he, Brad Sawyer—think of it!—Mr. Bing's lowbrow valet. As far as appearances went, he might as well follow Mr. Bing around like a dog, or with a clothes-brush in hand, saying "yes, sir, no, sir, very well, sir;" and he believed the absent-minded Honorable Beverly Bing would have had the audacity to offer him a tip, flipped it at him, if that had been his way of showing off. That made it the more trying, Bing's not wanting to show off, but still getting all the honor, ignoring the honor, ignoring, in fact, everything and everybody that looked like or smelled of sycophancy. If a boy brought up a letter or a telegram, he always gave it to Mr. Bing, who, not so much as scanning it, would wave him to Mr. Sawyer. And the waiters would always invariably lay the bills upside down in front of Mr. Bing's plate; they'd looked under his napkin for the tips. He—Sawyer might be leading the way into the dining room(but the head into the dining room, but the head shoulder at Mr. Bing, and say, "This way, sir!"

Sawyer was getting enough of it. But he needed Mr. Bing. He couldn't afford to get huffy with his restraining secretary, but he could get sore and snort like an old bear that has had a ring put in its nose—yes, by Mr. Bing!

"Say, Beve, where you been all night?" he demanded, when Mr. Bing did not get back to the hotel until 1! o'clock after meeting Rosa Bronson and her friends.

"To a show," said Mr. Bing.

"Well, cripes. When you left Atlanta you told me you wouldn't stay out for anybody after 10 o'clock. Them was your very words."

"Well, yes, I believe they were, Mr. Sawyer."

The easiness of it aroused the old nick in Sawyer. But he said no more. Neither did Mr. Bing, who seemed too preoccupied for words. He was having a tussle with himself, a strange tussle. He was facing a sudden as it was a very revealing bouleversement in himself. Regardless of how he hated Bronson, and regardless of how he may have mooned over the mysterious Lady of the Veil, he knew without peradventure of doubt that he was and always had been in love with Rosa, and no other. He was a very perverse human being, indeed, to change around like that. If Rosa knew it, she would put him down as unreliable—and justly. Rosa probably wouldn't have him anyway. And that was the real crux of the matter! She wouldn't have him. She just took a friendly interest in him because she was good-hearted, amiable, magnanimous in her nature. She really didn't, couldn't give a damn. Because he had never done anything to make her give a damn. He was a failure in life. All he had ever done was write a couple of thick manuscripts that a publisher would probably return to him in a few days. He had gone through life hating responsibilities. He was selfish. Lu Banks had told him so. And Rosa was rich. People would say he was after her money. She would think it—yes, even Rosa would think it, if at this late day he got sentimental, and proposed.

The more he cogitated, the more his cogitations revolved themselves in a tangled quincunx. He was a fool. He was a knave. He felt like a knave. He would stay away from Rosa, remain glacial, keep up his air of indifference. He had suffered of too much misrepresentation already. Nor would he ever be willing to accept Bronson as a father-in-law. He'd never give Bronson that satisfaction, the chance to gloat. Damn Bronson—yes, damn Bronson!

Damning the father of Rosa, and getting a pleasure out of the damning, he went to bed and slept peacefully.

He came to next morning with a sort of shiver. He had to see Lil, and she was in the same building where Rosa was. If ever a man had to watch his step, he did—and he was a poor diplomat, besides. He didn't know what he was going to say to Lil, and he would certainly run from Lu. Nor must Rosa ever know about Lu and Lil in the same building, and Lu taking his name in vain as she had.

He didn't want to act as a meditator between a man and his wife no matter how irrationally knotted together they were. And asking himself if it was a religious duty of his to try to make a round peg fit a square hole, he shuddered at the thought—shuddered the more upon a realization of his own moral crudities. He didn't know that it was a conviction of his Lil and Brad Sawyer ought to be brought together again. It was better they be put in different kennels, not in the same garden like twin pansies. Furthermore, being careful and finickly in his own ways, not liking to do what he didn't like to do, he didn't care what other people did—and never had. He didn't want the responsibility of wanting to care what they did. But it semed now he would be forced to the exigency of doing something against his will. And a social reformer was the biggest butt-in and lowest form of human being on earth. They kept the world in a continuously unsettled and unstable state. They simply played hell—undid everything as fast as human nature could repair the damage. Why wasn't everybody like him anyway? Then there wouldn't be any problems, social unrest, murders or divorces. Let everybody alone. Keep aloof.

But he went to have his interview with Lil, unfortunate Lil. Precarious mission! And suppose Rosa saw him? Or suppose, on approach, Lil came at him like a veritable virago, which justly she might. What would he do? And suppose she wound up by telling him to attend to his own business and let hers alone? Well, it wouldn't be any of his business, really.

"But I promised to do something for Sawyer," he said, trying to get up courage for the ordeal. "Lord pity the man, though, who engages another man to unsolve, or solve, his family problems! I can only be sincere. I wouldn't try to falsely influence her—I don't know that Sawyer is worth it. I am a contemptible meddler!"

Nor did he have any idea what he was going to say to Mrs. Sawyer, or how he was going to begin amenities, those little polite sallies that were to pave the way to a serious talk. He was certainly not going to row with her, or be rowed at by Lu if she was around. He'd get his hat and stick and leave. He'd do that before either of them could start a row.

And what would Lu or Lil say about his name being on their door? What they would or might not do put the whole affair in a still more dubious light. For it was easier to deal with a plain thief than an impostor. If anything, the fact that both the women were impostors as well as other things, was going to make it harder for him to accomplish anything satisfactory in the way of a patched-up peace between Lil and Brad. Fate, working always through the mistakes of human beings, is a sly old jade. Wanting to be loyal to Lu, and feeling no love for her husband, Lil might just slam a door in his face as the quickest way out. Brave of her if she did. And if that was what she was going to do, then that was what fate had intended from the first in Lil's and Brad's case. Fate had thought it out and designed the whole infernal mess for the bringing about of her own ends.

So, he hoped that Mrs. Sawyer's reception of him was going to be brief and very pithy. If so, she would of course not stop to ask him how Sawyer was, and he would not have to say unless he lied like a trooper, "Well, rather drunk when I left him, madam. He's broken parole again. He hasn't the honor to keep any of his promises." Being strictly on a peace mission, he hoped she would not force him to say that. Or to say that he was disgusted with Sawyer himself. That he was no man for any woman to live with. Devilish. Whole affair devilish—most idiotic.

He got in the elevator and was lifted to the eighth floor of the sumptuous Lavernia without seeing anything of Rosa, and breathed relievedly. (Rosa was on the fifth floor.) He rang Lu's and Lil's bell, then ran a hand down the front of his coat (he was nervous) to smooth it, hooked his stick in an arm to have his shaking hand ready, felt of his tie, looked down at his shoes, and with a sudden after-thought took off his glasses and put them in a pocket. He was bowing graciously before the door was half open.

"Good afternoon, Mrs. Sawyer," he said, pleasantly. "This is unexpected, isn't it? I hope you are alone." Getting no reply, he added, "But I hoped you wouldn't be surprised. I always hoped we would meet again."

Standing there before her, suppliant almost, and wanting to be friendly, he also wanted her to think that he had not noticed the two names on the door. He even appeared to grope a little as if suffering of some but temporary phase of blindness, or short-sightedness. In fact, he did not look natural without his glasses. Tall and dignified as he was, but now with an astigmatic squint, he purposely looked as if the slightest puff would blow him over; that she needn't be afraid he was going to harm her.

"And," he went on, when she didn't say anything, but just stared and froze in her tracks, "in my unfortunate predicament I've had a difficult time finding my way up here. Broke my glasses. Couldn't read even the number over your door. Big enough, though, isn't it? I am glad to see you again, Mrs. Sawyer. You remember me, I suppose?"

"Sure!"

UNDERWOOD URGES VOTE ON FORD BID

Washington, April 17.—Demand was made on the floor of the senate today by Senator Underwood, democrat, Alabama, for a vote on the Ford bid for Muscle Shoals at an early date.

Senator Underwood said an opportunity should be offered the senate to declare itself on the Ford bid one way or another and action should not be delayed.

Chairman Norris, of the senate agriculture committee, said hearings were started by the committee on the Muscle Shoals' question yesterday and two weeks probably would be required to complete the hearing. He declared there was no disposition on the part of the committee to delay action and that he would do nothing to prevent a vote in the senate.

Senator Underwood said the Ford bid was invited by the government, could not be changed and there was no reason why the senate should not vote on it.

Hooker Explains Bid.

Elon H. Hooker, one of the bidders behind the Hooker-White-Atterbury proposal for operation of Muscle Shoals, resumed his testimony today before the senate agriculture committee, which is considering all bids offered for the property.

Chairman Norris drew from the witness that the Hooker bid provides $10,000,000 for research work at Muscle Shoals. Hooker said he did not contend that his company would give the government any patents or any process that the government could not get for itself, but, he added, the company could save the government large sums of money, through operation on a business basis.

Senator Ralston, democrat, Indiana, asked if there was any objection to amending the bid to prevent stock transfer without consent of the government. The senator said provisions of the offer do not prevent the company from transferring its holdings to some power company or organization.

Hooker replied that his company was not affiliated with any power company or organization, and asserted:

"I challenge the power companies, the Ford crowd or the Grey Silver crowd to come before this committee now and say that my company represented any power company. I want them to come now, or forever hold their peace and stop these rumors."

Senator Ralston said personally he did not believe the reports, adding that Hooker had "the ring of an honest man."

"If you want Muscle Shoals handled in a proper way you must have a capable power man," Hooker continued. "I looked all over the country and found J. G. White, who agreed to come in with me. Mr. White is one of the foremost builders of hydroelectric power and transmission lines in America."

Hooker said he and his associates were "perfectly willing to withdraw their proposal and let Ford or any other bidder have Muscle Shoals if they can produce fertilizer for the farmer cheaper than we can and conserve the property for the government."

Hooker said he hoped Ford would appear before the committee, and Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, said he understood Mr. Ford's chief engineer would appear before the committee.

Hooker said he did not see why Ford does not appear before the committee, and Chairman Norris interjected:

Indorsement of Coolidge.

"You must remember that Mr. Ford did come to Washington and talk with the president, but very little publicity was given to it."

The chairman then asked:

"How do you account for the fact that Ford came to Washington angry with the administration, and after his visit he endorsed Coolidge for president?"

Hooker said he did not see why the Ford offer should have precedence and Senator Heflin declared he thought the Ford bid should have precedence because Ford offered a proposal to take over Muscle Shoals after it had been placed on the scrap heap and agreed to help the millions of farmers by giving them cheap fertilizer and "taking them out of the clutches of the fertilizer trust."

Hooker said he personally was going into the venture "for the pay of achievement" and he felt that his company should have the property on their own terms.

Going over details of the bill, Hooker said the secretary of war was authorized to lease Muscle Shoals for 50 years.

Senator Kendrick, democrat, Wyoming, elicited testimony that funds obtained from salvage property would be placed in the treasury of the corporation with the government owning 75 per cent and the corporation 25 per cent. This fund would be used as working capital, Hooker said. Originally the salvage was expected to yield several million dollars but now the secretary of war estimates this at only three of four hundred thousand, he said.

Hooker said the bill restricted ownership of 75 per cent of the stock to American citizens.

Chairman Norris asked if Hooker had any objection to the government owning 50 per cent of the stock and the witness replied he did object because the changing administration would bring politics into the enterprise and it would not be successful under such conditions.

Wants Dam No. 3 Built.

Hooker said he wanted the government to feel it had to build Dam No. 3, and if the dam was not built the life of the lease would be increased over 50 years. The company's interest in the whole proposition would be materially lessened if Dam No. 3 was not built because Dam No. 2 has very little power possibilities without Dam No. 3 as an adjunct.

Hooker said his company also wanted Dam No. 1 built for navigation purposes as the navigation features of Dam No. 2 and Dam No. 3 would be lost without Dam No. 1.

Senator Capper, republican, Kansas, asked in what way the salvage features of the Hooker bid differed from Ford's.

Hooker said the Ford bid provided for the transfer of all of the salvage property in fee simple to Ford while his bid put these funds in operating capital.

Hooker said his company asked to be relieved of all taxation on the property, either federal, state or municipal.

The corporation would receive a profit of 10 per cent on all construction work under his bid, Hooker said.

The present steam plant at nitrate plant No. 2 would be enlarged to afford 60,000 kilowatts' additional capacity, the witness explained.

Hooker said he looked for very little profit from the enterprise for the first 10 years. Net profits of the company, Hooker said, would be placed in a rotary fund controlled by the secretary of war to be used in the Muscle Shoals' enterprise or otherwise as provided by law.

When Hooker completed his testimony the committee adjourned until tomorrow.

Joy and Tragedy In Baby Mix-Up At City Mission

New York, April 17.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Shoemart got their baby back today and Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Fiorella mourned the death of a son, as the result of a mix-up at St. Barnabas house, city mission, which District Attorney Banton said was one of the strangest cases of mistaken identity he had ever investigated.

The head of city mission and the nurses at St. Barnabas were reported to have admitted there had been an error in recording the death of 22 months' old Charles C. Shoemart last March 6. Instead, Joseph Fiorella was the child who died on that date, but Shoemart, informed that the baby was his son, paid for the funeral.

The Fiorella child had been sent to St. Barnabas house, a charitable institution, to be cared for pending the impending arrival of another baby at the Fiorella home. Mrs. Fiorella wouldn't accept the child returned to her some days later. It was not her Joseph, she said.

The fate of the little fellow was learned after an investigation, in which the body buried was exhumed and identified as Joseph's.

MEANS' TALE LIE, PALMER ANSWERS

Atlantic City, N. J., April 17.—Touching on charges made by Gaston B. Means before the Daugherty investigation committee of the senate, A. Mitchell Palmer, former alien property custodian, tonight declared:

"Gaston B. Means' lurid tale of a plot on the part of Attorney General Daugherty to blackmail me into using my influence with congress on his behalf is a tissue of falsehood from beginning to end. It is an amazing thing that a committee of the United States senate would allow itself to become the medium of broadcasting to the world the false and ridiculous charges of a witness of the character of Gaston B. Means, designed to blacken the reputation of honest and conscientious public officials.

"For 18 months after the Harding administration came into power, the department of justice was investigating the operation of the alien property custodian under the administration of Francis P. Garvan and myself. Inspired by the complaints of Germans whose property we had lawfully taken during the war, their attack was directed chiefly at the sales of the Bosch Magneto company and the chemical patents to the Chemical Foundation. Similar charges were made as to both, but we no longer hear about the Chemical Foundation, for in that case the government finally brought suit, and the United States court for the district of Delaware, in a sweeping decision, confirmed all that the alien property custodian had done, and administered a stinging rebuke to the department of justice for bringing the suit upon false and baseless charges.

"The same result will be reached in the Bosch Magneto case, if it is ever brought into a tribunal where the laws of evidence obtain. The reason no indictment was found in the Bosch Magneto case was not the fantastic and absurd plot of blackmail that Means describes, but because there was no evidence of wrongdoing. In fact, the case was presented to two grand juries, one in Washington and one in New York, when the department offered all of the evidence that vindictive and prejudiced agents of the Germans were able to produce, and both grand juries refused to indict. Nothing even amounting to a technical irregularity could be shown."

Lie of Whole Cloth.

"As for my conference with Mr. Daugherty, the version of Means is a lie out of the whole cloth. When I learned of the investigation and discovered that the agents of the department were prying into my private and personal affairs, examining my bank accounts and listening to all the calumnies of my political enemies in true Burns detective agency style, I went to Mr. Daugherty of my own volition, told him that I welcomed an investigation into all and any phases of my administration as alien property custodian, and offered every assistance in my power to facilitate it. I asked no favors and expressed no fears. I did insist that when the investigation was over, the results should be published in order to put an end to the German-inspired insinuations which had heretofore filled the columns of sensational newspapers.

"It has always seemed to me that an ordinary sense of fairness should have moved the department of justice to publicly announce the result when the grand jury investigations developed no wrongdoing whatever on the part of either Mr. Garvan or myself. In the face of these findings, which must be within the knowledge of the senate committee, for that committee to allow a witness like Means to repeat his unfounded charge, long since disproved, is well calculated to discount the sincerity of this present investigation, and to justify the widespread criticism of the senate for becoming a mere distributor of slander and slinger of mud.

Irregularities in Philippines.

"There were some irregularities in the administration of enemy property in the Philippines Islands, in the early months of our work, due chiefly to lack of knowledge of the law on the part of Governor General Harrison before a copy of the trading-with-the-enemy act could reach him. When I learned of these irregularities, prompt steps were taken to correct them, first by setting aside by executive order all the sales made by Harrison, and second, by removing Harrison as agent of the alien property custodian, and sending a new agent, Mr. Douglas Moffat, of the New York bar, to replace him. Moffat remained in the Philippines for nearly a year, and I am sure the fullest investigation will show that all the enemy properties in the island were handled by him in strict accordance with every provision of the law."

HAMLIN ARRESTED AS WIRE TAPPER

New Orleans, April 17.—Walter W. Hamlin, 35 years old, was arrested here tonight as a fugitive from Atlanta, where the police stated he is wanted in connection wtih an alleged $11,000 wire-tapping swindle. Hamlin told the police he was willing to return to Atlanta immediately.

HEAVY RAINFALL CAUSES WASHOUT; STREET CLOSED

West Peachtree street, between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets, will be closed to vehicle traffic for a short time as the result of a washout due to the heavy rains of Thursday night. Considerable improvements had been made in the sewer system near that place recently, and the washout uncovered some of the newly-laid pipes. Two policemen were stationed in that block Thursday night and will be on duty until the danger stretch is blocked off toady.

The heavy drainage on Auburn avenue between Piedmont avenue and Bell street backed up over the curb and flooded the basements of several stores in that vicinity, it was reported, although no serious damage was done.

Macon Presbytery In Three-Day Meet At Dublin Church

Dublin, Ga., April 17.—(Special.) The Macon Presbytery opened a three-day session here last night at the Presbyterian church. Mrs. B. A. Hooks, president, presided over the meeting. Following the address of welcome by Mrs. M. C. Mahon and the response of Mrs. Charles Powell, of Macon, Dr. Homer McMilland, of Atlanta, delivered an address on home missions.

Today has been filled with the business session and reports from delegates. Dr. B. D. Beddinger, missionary from the Belgian Congo, addressed the meeting concerning his work in Africa tonight. The session will close tomorrow with an old-fashioned barbecue to be given at the Country club. Visitors were entertained with a luncheon today by Mrs. L. C. Pope.

CITIZENS OF FORSYTH LIGHT WHITE WAY

Forsyth, Ga., April 17.—(Special.) The white way around the courthouse consisting of 16 tall iron posts, with large white globe on top, has been completed by W. Y. Andrews, and the lights were turned on by R. B. Stephens, prominent banker and citizen, who in an address recounted the progress of Forsyth.

It is now proposed to extend the white way from the square to the depot. Bessie Tift is also contemplating the installation of lights on the campus.

Tortola island, composed almost entirely of iron ore, is used by the United States as a target for airplane bombs.

Advance Guard Here To Prepare For Grand Opera

BY PAUL WARWICK.

Mr. Leader—subdue for a moment the brasses of baseball and the tympani of commerce in Atlanta's great symphony of activity; allow the sweet and clear tones of the violin, now and then pizzicato with conversational excitement, to resume the opera motif—for the 1924 season of Metropolitan grand opera is upon us; so near, in fact, that shirt studs are already in place and patent leather pumps and silver slippers are dancing in glee.

Next Monday night at 8 o'clock it all begins, with Frances Alda's welcome return in Von Flotow's "Martha." The old auditorium is primping itself in gayest colors for its annual coming-out party. For one glorious week it will shudder at the very thought of whirring wheels and cash and carry conventions it has willingly entertained and will revel in its feast of music, splendor, perpetual variety and libretto boys.

The advance guard of that vast army required to stage the vast productions in their deserved completeness is already at work on the great stage, placing equipment and arranging preliminary props so that after the whole force arrives on Monday the work can go ahead with the fewest possible number of hitches. It's a tremendous undertaking to arrange the drops and the settings so that they can find their wonted order on schedule time; those in charge must think for the arrangement of "I. Pagliacci" on Saturday evening just as thoroughly as they do for "Marta," the premiere.

Sunday afternoon the first appreciable arrival of the stars will occur, when trains from the east roll into Atlanta stations with their loads of song birds anxious to keep as fit as possible for their duties in the opening performance. Then, more than likely, just as the sun scatters the darkness on Monday morning another packed and jammed train will roll into the Terminal station, disgorging its bigger load of stars and lesser lights.

Those Monday morning arrivals, albeit often sleepy-eyed, usually furnish the merriest scene of all as they pile off the train. The corps de ballet is accustomed to arrive on Monday mornings, and it has not yet been learned whether or not the fact they appear first Tuesday afternoon will disarrange this time-honored custom.

However that may be, the opera season is just around the corner. The ticket sale has been unprecedentedly brisk and the flood of opera visitors bids fair to rise higher than in any of the previous years the Metropolitan has visited us. Hotel reservations have reached a higher level than before and despite the vast accommodations Atlanta hotels afford, placards in hotels throughout the south are today proclaiming their gentle warning to the knight of the grip, lest he arrive in the city and find no place to lay his weary head.

All police arrangements for handling the throngs, especially that part of it which will motor down to the auditorium, are made and will be announced in detail so that there will be no mix-up in approaching and leaving the edifice for the performances.

METRO, GOLDWYN AND MAYER FORM MERGER

New York, April 17.—Metro pictures, Goldwyn pictures and the Lewis B. Mayer company have merged and will operate in the movie industry as the Metro-Goldwyn, it was announced Thursday.

Among othr films the new company will distribute Cosmopolitan productions, according to the formal announcement, and will be capitalized in the neighborhood of $5,000,000.

Marcus Loew is slated for the presidency of the company or the chairmanship of the board.

The combination represents a business alliance rather than a pooling of properties, according to the statement, which says a desire to increase production inspired the amalgamation.

IN-LAWS BATTLE, ONE IN HOSPITAL, OTHER IN JAIL

Another of those troublesome in-law differences Thursday night landed Tom Styers, of Warren place, in St. Joseph's infirmary with a deep knife wound in his side, and Paul Jones, of 62 1-2 Piedmont avenue, Styers' brother-in-law, who is charged with doing the stabbing, in jail. When it was found that Styers' wounds were not dangerous, Jones was released on $200 bond.

Jones told Detectives B. A. and A. E. Davis that Styers had visited his home twice Thursday night while in a quarrelsome mood. He stated that he ignored Styers' insults on the first visit, but that the second time his brother-in-law came to the house, he went outside to fight it out, and the stabbing resulted.

Styers said that his wife, who is Jones' sister, was a visitor at the Jones residence Thursday afternoon. While there, Styers claims that her brother reprimanded her, later slapping her face. According to Styers' story, he resented the insult and gave that as his reason for his visits to his brother-in-law.

MEMPHIS RECORDS ITS 27TH MURDER SINCE JANUARY 1

Memphis, Tenn., April 17.—This city's twenty-seventh homicide for 1924 was recorded tonight when Vida Privett killed her husband, James Privett. She told the police that her husband was whipping her when she fired the fatal shot.

Police records show that Privett was the fourth man to die by the hand of a woman within 60 days. A like number have been wounded, but not killed during the same period, while one woman was slain by one of her own sex.

Ruth Sumrall was found guilty by a jury last night and sentenced to a term of not more than five years for the slaying of Frank B. Strange.

Three other women are awaiting trial on charges of murder in connection with the deaths of their husbands. They are Mrs. Levy Owens, Mrs. W. W. Wood and Mrs. Previtt.

Owens was killed in his mother's home, "because," his widow said, "he stayed away from home three nights." Mrs. Woods said her husband had not been home for several days. He was shot in the back following a quarrel with his wife in his electrical shop a week ago.
